GIANT B-36 DOWN—Two airmen were killed yesterday and seven injured as they bailed out of a B-36, the world's largest bomber, over a farm near Cleburne, Tex. Seven others who also parachuted landed safely. The plane burst into flames as it crash-landed, detonating ammunition and hampering efforts of firemen to put it out. (Men standing by tail section—extreme lower right—are dwarfed by the huge plane.) Engine failure was blamed. (Story, Page 2)

Two Seized As Leaders In Truman Death Plot

Puerto Ricans Held At New York; Other Arrests Are Likely; Grand Jury Acting

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—Two top officials of the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party in New York were arrested today as the possible brains behind a recent plot to assassinate President Truman.

Two Nationalist gunmen stormed Blair House in Washington November 1 but were cut down by guards' bullets before they could get to the President. One gunman and one guard died in the duel.

27 U. S. Wounded Troops Released By Chinese Reds

YONGBYON, Korea, Nov. 22 (AP) (Delayed).—Twenty-seven wounded American prisoners of war were released by the Chinese Communists today.

The American soldiers carried this verbal message:

"The Chinese do not want to fight the Americans."

The 27 were released 3 miles from the American lines north of Yongbyon. They had been taken to that point in a 60-mile drive from a prison camp at Pyoktong on the Manchurian border.

The 27 included three sergeants and four corporals but no commissioned officers. All had been wounded.

Nation's Thoughts on Korea

Unusually Quiet and Solemn Thanksgiving in Prospect Here

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

Washington and the Nation settled down last night for what promises to be an unusually quiet, unusually solemn Thanksgiving.

On the surface, the rush and bustle yesterday was the same as any Wednesday - before - Thanksgiving.

From noon until late evening, 200,000 Washingtonians left the city to travel "back home" for dinner. In the city, grocery and food stores were busy with last-minute purchasers.

But Thanksgiving Day, 1950, seemed to have a special tone.

Secretary of State Acheson put it this way:

"Our most devout Thanksgivings have been in time of national concern. This Thanksgiving will be no exception . . . .

"This Thanksgiving," Acheson said, "the thoughts of all of us will be with the men who are on the firing line in Korea . . . ."

President Truman's Thanksgiving Proclamation requests Americans "in church, chapel and synagogue, in their homes and in the

China Probe Move in U. N. Appears Lost

Little Assembly Study Urged by U. S. in Face of Heavy Opposition

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 22 (AP).—Strong opposition from Britain, France and Russia today apparently doomed Nationalist China's appeal for a U. N. committee to investigate charges that the Soviet Union has been aiding the Chinese Communists.

The United States countered that the issue could not be buried and suggested the Little Assembly study it another year.

Australia, Canada and members of the Soviet bloc teamed with the Big Three powers in the U. N. political committee debate on Nationalist China's charges. Those countries said it would be a waste of time to deal with the problem any longer, that the evidence was in and the countries could make up their minds without further investigation.

The committee debate dragged on all day, with speakers of the Latin American and Middle East groups lining up behind a Syrian resolution that would send the charges back to the Little Assembly for more study. John Foster Dulles, United States delegate, insisted that the Assembly

Huichon 'Destroyed'; U. N. Forces Push Closer to Siberia With Navy Gun Aid

SEOUL (Thursday), Nov. 23 (AP).—United Nations forces pushed closer to the Siberian frontier in northeast Korea Wednesday and United States airmen today claimed destruction of one anchor of the Red defense line in the northwest.

On the northeast coast, South Korean troops advanced under cover of United States planes and naval gunfire to a point within 63 air miles of the Siberian border. The troops were approcahing the big port of Chongjin.

On the northwest front, United States bomber pilots reported Huichon "destroyed" by repeated air attacks. Huichon is the east end of defense line thrown up by Chinese and Korean Reds westward 20 miles to Onjong. United States Fifth Air Force reported three Red tanks knocked out Wednesday by planes in the northwest.

Second Red Line Reported

There have been reports of another Red defense line below the Onjong-Huichon line—one extending east from Taechon to the Chongchon River. Reports received today from U. N. patrols

U. S. Brands Communist Party Here a Tool of Soviet Russia

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The United States last night formally branded the Communist Party a tool of Soviet Russia and demanded its registration under the McCarran Act.

In a petition to the Subversive Activities Control Board, set up under the act, the Justice Department declared that for 31 years the party has owed its chief allegiance to Moscow.

"In the event of war," the petition said, ". . . . the Communists in the United States have obligated themselves to act to defeat the military aims of the United States and support the Soviet Union."

The Justice Department summed up its indictment of American communism in this sentence:

"To the leaders and members of the Communist Party, patriotism means solidarity with and support of the Soviet Union."

More Than 2000 In Thanksgiving Jam Thrown About as Cars Are Crushed

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—The Nation's worst rail disaster in years, a rear end collision between two Long Island passenger trains jammed with Thanksgiving eve commuters, killed a police-estimated 75 persons tonight.

The estimate of the dead came from Police Inspector Joseph A. Curry, commanding rescue work at the scene. He said 44 bodies had been removed with many more still buried in the wreckage.

More than 125 passengers were injured as the two trains came together with a roar in Eastern New York City on Long Island.

It was New York City and State's worst wreck ever. The estimate of 75 dead would make it the worst in the United States since a 1943 disaster at Frankfort Junction, Philadelphia, killed 79 persons.

An estimated 2100 to 2300 passengers were crammed on both trains, some standing in aisles. Many were home-bound. Others

1000-Ft. Link Of Pipe Line Explodes

3 Persons Burned, Farm Buildings Set On Fire Near Culpeper

One thousand feet of a new 1400-mile natural gas pipe line burst in Culpeper County, Va., yesterday with a shattering roar heard for 15 miles.

The explosion occurred at 4:15 p. m. near the town of Stevensburg, 9 miles south of Culpeper. Several farm buildings were ignited and at least three persons suffered flash burns.

State Troopers C. H. Moore and Richard Saunders said the Culpeper station was receiving inquiries from as far as 15 miles away from the blast, which sent flames and black smoke shooting high into the air.

Line Having Final Tests

Moore said the 30-inch pipe line belongs to the Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., and was getting final tests before being put into service. It runs from Houston, Tex., to New York City.

Police said John F. Suter, a farmer working in his fields, had to drive 15 miles to get to his house a quarter of a mile away

Tax Mandate Redefining Asked by GOP

Reed Says Democrats Misconstrued Intent; Doughton Sarcastic

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Republicans yesterday moved to re-define the "mandate" Congress gave House and Senate taxmakers to report out an excess profits tax bill, as the Ways and Means Committee closed hearings on the four-billion-dollar tax program.

Charging Democratic committeemen "misconstrued" congressional instructions, Representative Daniel A. Reed (N. Y.), ranking GOP member of the committee, said he will ask the House to amend the directive when Congress convenes Monday.

Reed's proposed resolution would instruct the committee to report out a bill for raising revenue "and combatting inflation" by providing either an excess profits tax or "corporate defense profits taxes," or both.

Republicans, in many a party-line committee bout, have contended that the "mandate" does not limit the House tax-making

President Hoped to Convert Mussolini to Path of Peace

Installment Twelve

This is the twelfth of 31 installments of the personal letters of Franklin D. Roosevelt from the two-volume work, "F.D.R.: His Personal Letters."

F. D. R. to Benito Mussolini in Rome

THE WHITE HOUSE,
July 29, 1937.

My dear Signor Mussolini:

I have waited for many months to thank you for your gracious and much appreciated letter to me, which I found on my return from South America last December. I have delayed writing you because through all these months I have been hoping that the world situation would clarify sufficiently for me to discuss with you measures looking toward the stabilization of peace among nations.

But unfortunately the situation today seems no clearer than before, and indeed, in some aspects the drift of events has been toward and not away from an ultimate crisis.

I have been gratified in reading of your statements in favor of the principles of reduction of armament. As you know, the Secretary of State has had my full support in his effective efforts toward the increase of international trade and lowering of barriers against trade.

Nevertheless, all of these efforts, even if they are joined by additional nations, and even if a greater total of world trade results in the coming years, will not prove a completely effective guarantee of international peace if world armament among the nations continues on its present scale.

The two things must go hand in hand. It seems clear to me that if the nations can agree on armament reduction, even if it be in the form of a progressive reduction over a period of years, they can far more effectively discuss practical instruments for reduction of trade barriers, thus building up employment in industry to take the place of employment in armament.

And I recognize that as a part of the discussion of increasing trade, every consideration

U. S. Plans No U. N. Veto Of Red China

Acheson Insists GOP Stand Not Applicable To Present Situation

Secretary Acheson insisted yesterday that the United States would not use its veto to prevent the admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

A number of Republican Senators have urged using the veto if necessary, but Acheson argued that it was not applicable. The question involved, he said, was not whether China should be a member, but who should represent China in the United Nations.

Many countries, he argued, have changes of government that are not strictly constitutional and not popular with every other country. He said that if the veto were used to block one claimant as against another, it would result in a dwindling number of U. N. members.

Acheson said he hoped the Chinese Communist spokesmen now en route to New York would be able to discuss problems other than Formosa, but thought it too early to discuss possible procedures for dealing with them.

He denied that the United States had agreed to a demilitarized zone south of the Yalu River, although there had been many suggestions and consulta-

2 Found Guilty Of Conspiracy In Espionage

Miriam Moskowitz, Brothman Accused At Trial by Gold

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—Abraham Brothman and Miriam Moskowitz tonight were found guilty of conspiracy in a spy case.

The case went to a Federal court jury at 3:38 p. m. (EST) today and the verdict was returned after nearly four hours of deliberation.

The defendants are accused of conspiring to cover up Brothman's dealings with Soviet atom spy Harry Gold by lying about the relationship to a grand jury.

Conviction carries a maximum penalty for Brothman of seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine; for Miss Moskowitz two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The two-week-old trial closed with the Government attorney waving a white card before the jury and labelling it the "silent witness" against the defendants. The card—found in Gold's home—bore notations connecting Brothman with Gold, the prosecutor said.

Gold, star Government witness against Brothman and Miss Moskowitz, was attacked by the defense in closing statements as "a

Hyattsville Boy Chided for Grades Is Found Wounded

The 17-year-old son of the chief of the Brentwood Rescue Squad, scolded earlier in the evening for a poor report card, was found critically wounded last night at his home, 3703 Tilden st., Brentwood, Md.

The youth, James Carroll Reeves, a student at Hyattsville High School, was found at 8:25 p. m. in his room by his 12-year-old brother, Ronald, who told police he hurried upstairs after hearing one shot. Police said a single .22-caliber bullet had entered James' stomach.

Ronald called his father, James Courtney Reeves, on duty at the Brentwood Rescue Squad house. The elder Reeves came in an ambulance and drove his son to Prince Georges County Hospital.

Police said Reeves told them he had scolded his son earlier for bringing him a poor report card. He had also warned his children to keep away from his .22-caliber rifle, police said.

CAB Rules Airline Not to Blame In Use of Faked Telegrams

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided to take no action against an airline whose advertising agent, without authorization, put the names of Congressmen on fake telegrams protesting a CAB decision.

CAB Chairman Delos W. Rentzel told The Washington Post that the board reached this decision after investigating the hitherto unpublished episode involving National Airlines. They became convinced, he said, that officers of the carrier were not culpable and had no knowledge of the incident.

Earlier, Rentzel had called in National's Vice President John L. Morris and issued an oral and private reprimand to the company for what was held to be an improper attempt of a representative to influence the CAB. The wires protested against a board action denying National permission to inaugurate low rate day coach service between New York and Miami.

At that time—when the false telegrams incident was first discovered—the CAB also referred the matter to the Department of Justice for possible criminal action against the individual or individuals concerned.

The faked telegrams came to light when the CAB replied to the telegrams. They wrote Representa-

Doctors Decline Commissions As Trick to Avoid Induction

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Some draft-liable physicians and dentists are using a new dodge to escape immediate induction into the Army, it was learned yesterday.

These reluctant doctors are rejecting reserve Army commissions, offered after they pass the physical exams and are classified 1-A. Instead, they insist on being drafted.

"It's pretty obvious what this small group is thinking of," a high Army medical official told The Washington Post. "These doctors figure that enough other 1-A medical men will accept Army commissions and take care of the current shortage of military doctors. Thus, doctors refusing to accept commissions will in effect be given deferments, while cooperative doctors will be called into the armed forces right away."

Throughout the Nation, physicians, dentists and veterinarians in Priority I—deferred in World War II to continue their training, who saw less than 90 days' service with the armed forces—are being processed by the local boards. State and local quotas are still to be announced, but whatever the quota, those Priority I registrants who accept commissions in the Army will be counted as part of the draft quota.

If enough Priority I medical

21 Feared Victims Of Mountain Crash

End in Sight

2 Rivers Still On Rise in California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Two converging rivers yet to crest in the Lower Sacramento Valley posed the last threat today in California's worst flood in history.

Elsewhere throughout the flooded areas of California and Nevada authorities said the danger appeared ended and conservatively estimated property damage at more than 20 million dollars.

Blue skies and bright sunshine prevailed over the area ending nine days of steady rainfall that set off the floods blamed for the loss of ten lives. The last danger spot was in the coastal Delta section above where the Lower Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers flow into San Francisco Bay.

The threatened area, mostly sparsely populated truck farm land, lies several feet below sea level and is protected by earthen dikes, 20 to 30 feet high. Reclamation District guards were on watch and the major towns of Antioch, Brentwood, Oakley and most of Pittsburgh are on high ground out of danger. Hard by the river's edge, however, are the Columbia Steel plant, Dow Chemical Corporation and the Pioneer Rubber Company.

Reno, Nev., flooded by the rampaging Truckee River Monday night was declared a "disaster zone" by the Reconstruction Finance Corp., today. An RFC crew arrived from regional headquarters in San Francisco and opened an emergency agency to handle loans for private and municipal interests.

MORAN, Wyo., Nov. 22 (AP).—Twenty-one persons are believed dead in the wreckage of a chartered plane which apparently crashed into the side of jagged Mount Moran last ngiht.

All evidence indicated the missing twin-engine DC-3, carrying members of the New Tribes Mission, a religious organization, caused a fire spotted 1000 feet below the crest of the mountain.

A resort owner said he believed he saw a glowing fuselage in the flames.

Less than 12 hours later a B36, largest of the world's bombers crash-landed 25 miles south of Fort Worth, Texas, killing two men. Seven others were injured, and another seven parachuted to safety.

The giant bomber was trying to reach its home base at Carswell Field with three of its six engines dead. The plane burst into flames, detonating ammunition.

Aboard the missing Wyoming plane were eight children, four women and nine men. Three of the men were crew members.

A ground party this morning began the slow, difficult job of ascending the rocky peak.

The craft was bound for Billings, Mont., from Chico, Calif., on the first leg of a flight to South America where the mission is engaged in missionary work.

2 Widowed in Earlier Crash

Two of the young mothers aboard with their children were widows whose husbands were killed in the smashup of another mission-owned plane in Venezuela last June. Apparently they intended to carry on the work their husbands had planned to do.

The plane has not been heard from since 3:48 (MST) yesterday afternoon, when the crew radioed its position over Idaho Falls, Idaho, 50 miles west of Moran. It was due in Billings at 6:30 p. m., and at approximately this time residents of the Moran area heard aircraft engines overhead.

About 30 minutes later, acting Teton Park Supt. Paul Judge received a report of the fire on the mountainside. Clarence Harris, who owns a mountain lodge near Mount Moran, also saw the blaze. He pinpointed it with binoculars and "saw what looked like a burning fuselage way up there in the snow."

Four seasoned mountaineers started at sunrise up the side of the mountain. They were led by Forest Ranger Blake Van de Water and faced the task of making the climb through wind-whipped snow, with wind velocities up to 40 miles an hour.

4 Marines Killed In Crash of Trainer

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Nov. 22 (AP).—A rescue crew today reached the burned wreckage of a two-engine Marine training plane that crashed 4500 feet up Santiago Peak in the Santa Ana mountains last Saturday, killing its four occupants.

The plane became lost in fog while on an instrument training flight to Tucson, Ariz., from El Toro Marine Base, near Santa Ana.

Killed were M/Sergt. William Follmer, 27, Newport Beach, Calif.; T/Sergt. Keith Ferguson, 27, Orange, Calif.; Sergt. Milton Johansson, 21, Galveston, Texas, and Lieut. Willard Grubbs, St. Louis.

Bavarian Vote Sunday Key to German Army

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 22 (AP).—The biggest state in the American zone of Germany votes next Sunday in an election that could decide the fate of American plans to rearm western Europe in the near future.

The voters of Bavaria elect a new state Parliament. The results may determine whether western Germany will take part in the defense of Europe against Russia.

Two large German states gave a ringing "no" to rearmament in similar elections last Sunday.

Allied officials said victories by anti-rearmament Socialists in Hesse and Wuerttemberg-Baden spurred their nation-wide drive to keep Germans disarmed. Similarly, the forces seeking to enlist the West Germans in the western defense setup were weakened.

The result of the Bavarian election—where rearmament is also the big political issue—may turn the tide either for or against the creation of a new German army, these officials said.

Allied military officials agree that Western Europe cannot be effectively defended without the full military participation of both France and Western Germany.

The Atlantic powers now are considering how German armed units could be integrated into a unified Western defense force.

If the pro-rearmament Christion Democrats win or hold their own in Bavaria, there will be a good chance that the Federal government which they dominate can ram rearmament through the national parliament at Bonn once the question of German aid is settled by the West.

But if the anti-rearmament Socialists win—or even make sizeable gains in Bavaria—then the forces opposing rearmament may well vote down German participation in Western defense when the issue comes before Parliament.

Voters in the states of Hesse and Wuerttemberg-Baden last Sunday spurned the big Christian Democratic party, which is seeking to enlist the Germans in the Western defense setup. Victories went to the Socialists who attach what Allied officials consider impossible conditions to German rearming.

The Socialists demand that the Germans hold up on rearmament until the Allies give them full independence and until the Allies have enough troops along the Elbe to defeat any Soviet attack. Military men say, however, that Germany cannot be defended without German help.

'Sea Devil' von Luckner Coming Here to Tell How ECA Works

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—Count Felix Von Luckner, the daring "sea devil" of World War I, is about to weigh anchor again—this time flying the standard of the Marshall Plan.

Von Luckner, who made his sailing vessel the nemesis of Allied steamers in 1917, is now in New York working out final plans for a tour of the United States to tell Americans what their dollar gifts have accomplished in Germany.

The Count's private sailing yacht is due here from Malmo, Sweden, in about three weeks. It is to bring a special movie film on German recovery prepared with the aid of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Von Luckner will not be a stranger to American audiences. Throughout the 1920's and 1930's he toured the United States, telling youths about his adventures as an almost legendary German naval raider in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

He was particularly noted for his exploit in sinking 14 Allied freighters without killing a single sailor. He always made sure that crews were removed before he blew up the ships. Later he boasted that no mother and no wife shed a tear for a loved one because of him.

The cities of San Francisco and Miami even made him an honorary citizen.

Von Luckner brought Hitler's wrath upon himself when he refused to renounce this honorary citizenship. Hitler later sentenced him to death when he arranged the surrender of his hometown, Halle, to the approaching American armies in 1945.

In his suite in Manhattan's Park Chambers Hotel, Von Luckner said he "could never fight America."

"What kind of a man would I have been if I accepted the honors bestowed upon me by the United States and then renounced them for the sake of Hitler's propaganda?" Von Luckner asked. At 69, he still is hardy and husky after almost 50 years on sailing vessels.

Lee Nominates Chang For Premier of Korea

SEOUL, Nov. 22 (AP).—President Syngman Rhee announced today he has proposed the nomination of John M. Chang, Korean ambassador in the United States, to be premier of Korea.

The National Assembly has rejected three other nominees proposed by Rhee for the post. It has been vacant since the resignation of Lee Bum Suk last April.

The Assembly turned down the nominations of former Minister of Social Affairs Lee Yoon Yung, defense Minister Sihn Sung Mo and Education Minister Paik Nak Choon.

He said the exact date and place of the deputies' meeting had not yet been decided.

O'Conor Denounces Steel Leak to Reds

By The Associated Press

Chairman O'Conor (D., Md.) of a Senate investigating committee yesterday angrily denounced Federal authorities and western European countries for permitting the shipment of steel to Red China —some of it since the outbreak of the Korean war.

"It's a disgrace," O'Conor declared.

The Maryland Senator said the steel was sent from Britain, France and Belgium to New York and then transshipped to Communist China.

Under Senate fire, the Commerce Department announced during the day that it is considering a ban on all shipments of war potential goods en route to Red China via the United States.

The embargo, if put into effect, would apply to transshipments bound for other Soviet-dominated countries.

Present bans apply only to "war potential" goods originating in the United States.

O'Conor's blast at the export policies of the Commerce Department came after a Boston shipper, who described himself as anti-Communist, told of having transshipped silicon steel plates from Western Europe to Red China. He testified before a Senate Commerce Subcommittee headed by O'Conor. The subcommittee is investigating the question of export controls.

O'Conor said the steel was "highly strategic" for military purposes. He said he understood it was impossible to build generators, transformers, motors or radio transmitting equipment without using that type of steel.

Earlier in the day, the Commerce Department had offered to "take another look" into the advisability of clamping down controls over scrap steel and other items, even if they were considered of dubious strategic value.

By midafternoon, the department came up with its new suggestion: to exterd export controls to all ship cargoes docked here en route to Red China or other Soviet-bloc countries.

The department said the proposal will be discussed with trade and finance representatives in New York next Tuesday before any move is made to put it into effect.

The department took issue with O'Conor on the strategic importance of some materials allowed to reach China from this country. Ray C. Miller, chief of the Department's Office of International Trade, said in a telegram to O'Conor that United States materials shipped to the Chinese Communists were:

1. "Not of sufficient importance" to warrant putting them under control.

2. In surplus supply in this country.

Miller said, however, that in view of the "interest" shown by O'Conor's committee, Federal officials will take another look at present control policies.

Chairman O'Conor's outburst against aid to Red China followed testimony by Shao Ti Hsu, president of the Pacific Trading Co., of Boston, that his firm transshipped 463,559 pounds of silicon sheet steel from the United States to Communist China since the outbreak of the Korean war.

But Shao's lawyer, Herbert S. Avery of Boston, hastened to assure the committee:

"You can be sure there won't be any more such shipments through the Pacific Trading Co."

Gerald L. McGrath, president of the T. J. McGrath Co., a customs brokerage firm which figured in the transshipments, testified that as far as he knows, it is still "perfectly legal" to transship such materials to Red China.

McGrath said that before acting as forwarder of the steel, he checked with New York Customs officials and the Department of Commerce. He said he was assured that the transshipment was legal.

Got Souvenir

Scientist Pays 18 Months for 'A' Sample

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 22 (U.P.). A 28-year-old university scientist was sentenced to 18 months in Federal prison today for taking home samples of top-secret atomic bomb material as a "souvenir."

U. S. District Judge Lee Knous ignored the defense plea that Sanford L. Simons was like all scientists who are "all darned fools" when it comes to experiments.

Attorney Ira Quiat said curiosity alone prompted Simons to take samples of fissionable plutonium and iranium from the Los Alamos, N. Mex., atomic bomb project when he was employed there in 1946.

Knous ruled, however, that "it did constitute a crime and he did know better." He said Simons "broke his trust" by taking the secret materials which the FBI found four years later in his modest Denver home.

Simons' wife, the mother of three young children, wept as she left the courtroom. She told reporters she did not know how she would provide for her family while her husband was in prison.

The bearded and bespectacled Simons was silent during the proceedings. He was arrested in mid-August while working as a research expert at Denver University.

The FBI said it found a bottle of plutonium buried under his house and some uranium hidden in a dresser drawer. Simons admitted taking the atomic material as a "souvenir." Then, he said, he didn't know how to sneak it back.

Warsaw Meet Urges Big 5 Peace Talks

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 22 (AP). The second World Peace Congress proposed a Big Five peace meeting to include Communist China, criticized United States foreign policy and lectured the United Nations in its final sessions today.

The congress program, which follows in several respects proposals of Soviet Russia in the United Nations, was approved by an overwhelming vote of 1655 to three, with two abstentions.

No one was obliged to say how he voted, but the rebel of the congress, O. John Rogge of New York, reported he was one of the "noes."

The last business was election of 208 persons to the Council of the Defenders of Peace. Some enthusiasts were of the opinion the council ultimately will supplant the U. N. as an international agency for peace.

Delegates who had listened to hundreds of speeches in the last six days paraded and watched fireworks in downtown Warsaw tonight. Prime Minister Stalin's name was cheered. Many Red flags marked the parades which converged on Victory Square where Polish speakers declared the U. N. has failed to preserve peace. The same charge had been made earlier at the congress.

In its message to the U. N., the congress emphasized its view that the dispatch of foreign troops to Korea was illegal, and that a legal commission should sit to determine General MacArthur's responsibility in the matter.

Half-Mile Jap Queue

TOKYO, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Japanese stood six deep in a half-mile-long queue today to buy second-hand American clothing at a "cost price" sale by the Tokyo Department Store. Some stood in line from the night before. Some 15,000 were in the line.

Thousands Flee Volcano

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Thousands of persons fled in panic today from the city of Leon and other communities threatened by an increasingly violent eruption of a nearby volcano.

'Disrespect' of Peron Brings 5-Year Term

LA PLATA, Argentina, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Dr. Ricardo Balbin, leader of the radical minority bloc in the Chamber of Deputies, was sentenced today to five years in prison for "disrespect" of President Juan D. Peron and other government officials.

Balbin has been in Olmos prison here since March 12. The charges stemmed from campaign speeches made while running for governor of Buenos Aires Province

Soviet '2-Phase War' Victory Seen Despite U. S. A-Bomb Lead

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP). — A survey of Russian strength, undertaken by Time magazine, concludes that the Soviet Union by making full use of its assets could win world domination in two wars or two phases of one war.

The magazine says:

"Washington estimates that Russia has anywhere from 5 to 60 atom bombs; a favorite guess is 20-25. (Estimates about the United States bomb stockpile run from several hundred to "a small four figures." Inferiority in atomic bombs continues to be the main short-range Russian weakness.

"From the nature of Russian strength and weakness, observers can get a fairly clear idea of the kind of war Russia would like to fight. The greatest defect is mobility, especially at sea; Russia is still militarily landlocked and will probably have to stay that way unless it can add the industrial resources of Western Europe to its own.

Substitutes for Sea Power

"Russia partially compensates for its lack of military mobility by control of the Communist Party throughout the world. The party carries the Red offensive into distant lands, dupes other peoples into fighting Russia's battles and ties up (as in Korea and Indochina) the armed forces of the West. The Communist Party is the most effective substitute for sea power the world has ever seen.

"Russia has three other main assets: (1) defensive strength based on self-sufficiency and tight political control of its own people; (2) a position within reach of the industrial centers of Western Europe; (3) possession of atomic bombs which might be able to reduce United States and other Western production to the level of the U. S. S. R.

"If allowed full use of these assets, Russia could win world domination by two wars, or two phases of one war.

"First phase—Russia would hold together under United States atomic bombing while the Red army took over western Europe and the Communist parties consolidated Red power in Asia. Meanwhile, Russian atomic bombing of the United States would try to force an armistice or, at least, throw the United States off balance so that its offensive strength could not be brought to bear.

"Second phase—Russia, controlling western Europe and with help from Asiatic satellites, would have a productive base far stronger than that of the United States today. Most of today's limitations on Russian mobility could be overcome in five or ten years.

"The present Russian strength makes Red victory in the first phase a distinct possibility. Russian victory in the first phase would make victory in the second phase a heavy probability."

Mass Slayer Called 'Sane at All Times'

WOODBURY, N. J., Nov. 22 (U.P.). Mass slayer Ernest Ingenito was "perfectly sane" when he killed five of his wife's relatives and wounded her and three others in an attempt to "wipe out" her entire family, a psychiatrists' report disclosed today.

The report, prepared by Dr. Robert S. Garber of the State hospital at Trenton, and Dr. J. B. Spradley, former superintendent at the hospital, said Ingenito "is perfectly sane at all times."

Rail Service Paralyzed

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 22 (U.P.). Railway communications between Buenos Aires and the southern half of Argentina were paralyzed for the second day today by a strike in the State-owned General Roca Railway system. The strikers demand wage increases.

Moscow Says Thailand's Reds Call on People for 'Struggle'

LONDON, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Moscow radio said today that Communists in Thailand have warned the people of "grave danger" and have called on them to begin a " a struggle for national independence and democracy."

The broadcast, quoting a Tass dispatch from Peiping, said the Communists warned that : "A grave danger hangs over Thailand (Siam) since the government signed military and economic agreements with the American imperialists."

It said "the people of Thailand must . . . unite with other peoples in the struggle for lasting peace throughout tthe world and the prevention of a new war."

Thailand lies between Indo-China, where the French and loyal Viet Nam troops are fighting the legions of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh, and Burma, where Communist guerillas have been harassing the Socialist regime.

Foster Lists 5 Nations Needing Aid in Far East

BANGKOK, Thailand, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—William C. Foster, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration said today that he believed at least five Far Eastern countries are "urgently" in need of aid.

Foster, who is making a survey of the Far East, listed them as Formosa, Korea, Indo-China, Indonesia and the Philippines.

Thailand is much better off economically and in position now to ward off any Communist penetration, he told a press conference here.

R. Allen Griffin, ECA Far East director who accompanied Foster here, added that Malaya needs no dollar aid, itself a great dollar earner.

Foster cautioned against Communist attempts to misrepresent the ECA program in Thailand. He described the ECA project here as an opportunity for the United States to demonstrate to the world the benefits to be derived by free peoples' working together.

Foster and his party plan to be in Jakarta, Indonesia, on Friday, and in Rangoon, Burma, on Saturday.

Allied Patrols Near Reds' Defense Line

probing that sector emphasized contacts with Red troops.

United States bombers and fighters rained explosive and fire bombs on Yalu River bridges connecting Manchuria and Korea and on Red battle staging areas all along the northern rim of Korea.

On the northeast front, South Korean (ROK) Capital Division spearheads advanced 4 to 5 miles on the east coast to a point about 8 miles southwest of Chongjin, a big port 55 miles south of the Siberian-Korean border.

The ROK troops drove ahead under covering fire from eight-inch guns of the United States cruiser St. Paul. American B-29 Superforts bombed Chongjin, where Reds were expected to make a stand.

(Pacific fleet headquarters in San Francisco reported a Capital Division coastal spearhead advanced 10 miles Tuesday under cover of the St. Paul's guns. The Navy did not locate the start or finish of the advance.

(It said the first salvo from the St. Paul set off a "tremendous explosion" in the Chuuronjang area. Chuuronjang, three miles inland, is 14 miles southwest of Chongjin.

(The Navy said the United States Destroyer English, accompanying the cruiser St. Paul, maintained a "steady stream of harassing interdiction and fire support bombardment.")

Across a rugged snow-mantled mountain range and 50 miles southwest of Chongjin, the ROK Third Division's Twenty-second Regiment entered the rail and highway center of Hapsu. The Third's Twenty-third Regiment ran into a battalion of Reds seven miles southwest of Hapsu. A spokesman for the United States Tenth Corps reported the Red battalion is being squeezed between the two republican forces.

The United States Seventh Division on the Korean-Manchurian Yalu River frontier sent patrols west and south of the border town of Hyesanjin, 37 miles northwest of Hapsu, and reported the first opposition since it reached the Yalu Tuesday. One patrol skirmished with 40 Reds six miles west of Hyesanjin and killed 17 before the Reds pulled back. Another patrol met a small Red unit south of the city, but the Communists fled after a few shots were fired.

The United States Seventh Marine Regiment sent patrols 10 miles to Yudam on the west thumb of the Changjin reservoir. The patrols met no opposition. Marine patrols are operating along virtually the full length of the reservoir; the Seventh Marines are on the west bank and the First Marines on the east bank.

On the northwest front, the ROK Eighth Division captured Yongwon and, with other South Korean divisions, established a line running 5 to 6 miles north of Tokchon. Chinese Reds were reported digging in 11 miles to the north of the new allied offensive line.

About 100,000 Chinese and Korean Communists were estimated in northwest and northeast Korea.

United States First Cavalry Division patrols found Reds dug in on high ground north of the old walled city of Yongbyon.

On the west end of the line ROK First Division patrols skirmished with Red patrols foraging for food behind the allied front, southwest of Pakchon.

U. S. B-29 bombers dropped 140,000 pounds of explosives on Musan in the northeast. North Korean and Chinese Reds were reported massing at that Manchurian border point in an effort to block the allied drive aimed at both the Manchurian and Soviet Siberian frontiers.

U. S. Fifth Air Force Mustangs dug 14 holes with 500-pound bombs in the runway of a Red airstrip at Kanggye in deep north-central Korea. Kangyye is on the main Red supply route from the border point of Manpojin to Huichon on the northwest front.

Already battered Huichon was hit hit again by B-26s, firing explosives, fire bombs and rockets. Pilots said they considered that key Red supply base destroyed.

American jets made a low-level strike with 1000-pound bombs on the Korean end of the Yalu River bridge at Sinuiju in northwest Korea. Heavy smoke, apparently from oil fires, prevented observation of results.

Heavy antiaircraft came from the Chinese Communist side of the river at some points.

Navy and Air Force spokesmen in Washington said most antiaircraft guns firing at United Nations planes along the border were safe from counterattack because they are on the Manchurian side.

Behind the front, two regiments of the South Korean Second Division attacked by-passed Reds in Chunchon, 40 miles northeast of Seoul. Elements of the U. S. 187th airborne regiment struck at Red guerrillas at Singye, 55 miles southeast of the former North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

It was Thanksgiving Day in Korea, and turkey was on the menu for the United States troops. How to get it to the frontline men was the problem of individual units.

The menu called for 5.4 pounds of Thanksgiving dinner per man, including roast turkey servings of one and one-quarter pounds each.

U. N. Forces Advance in Korea

MOVING NORTH—South Korean troops of the ROK Eighth Division (1) capture Yongwon, as United States Marines (2) send patrols to Yudam, on the west side of the Changjin Reservoir. United States Seventh Division patrols (3), operating out of Hyesanjin, on the Yalu, probe along the banks of the river. Near the eastern end of the battlefront (4), South Koreans capture Hapsu, key road and rail center, and hit beyond Chongjin under covering guns of the cruiser St. Paul

Medical Men Ask to Be Drafted

men volunteer—as is hoped and anticipated—it won't be necessary to call any of the men who refuse commissions, at least for some time to come.

One medical officer expressed the fear that the draft "might be turned into a farce," since, in effect, a premium is being set on noncooperation, and the penalty of quick induction is being given those who cooperate by accepting reserve commissions.

There is no indication that the draft-deferment dodge is being tried in the District. Eight Washington Priority I medical men—four physicians and four dentists—were offered Army commissions after they passed the physicals last week. Six are expected to accept before the week is up. The other two are due to refuse the tendered commissions to make sure their appeals against classification 1-A will not be prejudiced.

Since September 1, the Army has commissioned into active service 113 Priority I medical men, and is currently processing 112 others, of whom 56 asked for immediate service.

China Probe Opposed

would bury the hopes of millions if it dropped the charges completely. He urged the committee to accept the Syrian proposal.

Kenneth Younger, British Minister of State, told the political committee that further study of Nationalist China's charges would be useless.

Sir Keith Officer, Australia, said the United Nations members can draw their own conclusions and another committee would do little good.

Francis LaCoste, France, said an examination by such a committee would be "platonic." He opposed it.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik said the "Kuomintang libel" should be thrown out of the committee.

Dulles said it would be a "black day" for the United Nations if it dropped the matter. He said the man in the street would not understand and would wonder if the U. N. Assembly had a double standard, one for the big powers and one for the little countries.

R. G. Riddell, Canada, replied that the United States itself had often placed before the Assembly items hotly opposed by another great power. He said no reasonable man in the street would think that the committee had been moved by reasons given by Dulles.

T. F. Tsiang, of Nationalist China, said he was not asking for material aid but for a moral judgment.

Elsewhere in the U. N.:

1. The trusteeship council rejected a new Russian demand for seating Communis China in place of Nationalist China. The vote was 2 in favor, 9 opposed and 1 abstaining. Russia and Britain were for it and Australia abstained.

2. The Assembly's social committee elected 15 countries to a special body that will meet in New York before next March to revise a proposed convention of freedom of information. The 15 are Cuba, Egypt, France, India, Lebanon, Mexico, Netherlands, Philippines, Russia, Britain, United States, Ecuador, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Yugoslavia.

3. Ethiopia accepted, in the special political committee, a 14-power proposal for a federated Eritrea.

Brothman, Miriam Moskowitz Are Convicted

traitor, a spy, who testified here to save his rotten neck."

The seven men and five women on the jury began deliberating after listening to an hour-long charge from Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman.

Evidence that Brothman was a Communist and a tool of Soviet spies should not prejudice the jury, Kaufman said, except as it may have related to any efforts to cover up such a career when he went before a grand jury.

Brothman, 36-year-old chemical engineer, and Miss Moskowitz, 34, are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice during a 1947 Federal grand jury investigation into subversive activities.

Specifically, Brothman is accused of persuading Gold to lie to a grand jury about their relationship. Miss Moskowitz is charged with helping him manufacture the story told the grand jury.

The Government pinned its case chiefly on the testimony of Gold, a mild-mannered biochemist from Philadelphia. He was a go-between for Dr. Klaus Fuchs, imprisoned British atomic scientist, and a Russian spy ring.

The Government's star witness testified the two defendants induced him to lie about his relations with Brothman when FBI agents quizzed him in 1947. He said the pair prevailed upon him to tell the FBI that "we had been writing a book together."

The lie, he said, cloaked their actual relations of Russian spy and spy ring courier.

Bond's
Let's face facts! Some men are paying a lot more for good clothes. Some aren't! How about you? Do you want to take the pressure off your pocketbook? With no letdown in quality? Three words point the way: SWITCH TO BOND'S!
Why is Bond's different from most?
Because Bond's is America's biggest clothier—and the biggest naturally enjoys advantages second to none. Economies in buying, economies in making, economies in selling. And because for 41 years, Bond's has steadfastly maintained "the more we make and sell, the lower our prices."
What's in it for me?
Famous-name woolens—every one. Rochester-tailoring—a quality feature of the most expensive men's clothing. 240 different sizes and shapes to guarantee perfect fit. All for so little because Bond is both maker and seller. The usual price-hiking independent maker's profits land squarely in your pocket.
How can I be sure?
Look around—compare! Let your own common sense, and business sense, tell you. Perhaps the best testimonial is this: more men wear Bond clothes than any other clothes in America.

D. C. Marine Officer Gets Second Wound

Marine First Lieut. William F. Goggin, 27, of 2613 Newton st. ne. was reported slightly wounded in the right hand on November 8. This is his second wound suffered in the Korean fighting, the Defense Department reported.

Goggin suffered a slight wound in the left forearm in eight hours of fighting near Seoul on September 26, when 20 of the 56 men in his platoon were lost.

His wife, who lives at the Newton st. address, is employed in the office of Representative Robert L. F. Sikes (D., Fla.). Goggin left the West Coast for Korea August 28. He was stationed at the Marine Barracks here in 1946 and 1947.

A native of Peabody, Mass., Lieutenant Goggin has been in the Marines eight years, was graduated from officers candidate school in 1945 at Quantico, Va., and served two years aboard an attack transport, the USS Winston.

Also listed as wounded on the Defense Department's latest casualty report was Corpl. Charles B. Pennington, nephew of R. C. Pennington, 2106 N st. nw.

Lieut. Goggin Cpl. Pennington
. . . Casualties in Korea

Corporal Pennington, 19, was born and attended schools in Spartansburg, S. C. He visited his uncle here for several months in 1948 when he enlisted. About three months later he went to Japan and later to Korea. His father lives in Lexington, Ky.

His uncle said he was wounded by a burstirg mortar shell. Several months ago he was hospitalized for wounds which, his uncle said, were not officially reported.

CIO to Expand Political Work Despite Its Election Reverses

CHICAGO, Nov. 22 (AP).—Seemingly undaunted by recent election setbacks, the CIO thrust its political arm out farther today instead of pulling it back.

Delegates to the national CIO convention voted to "redouble" efforts of the Political Action Committee to elect candidates satisfactory to labor.

They adopted unanimously a resolution commending Director Jack Kroll and other PAC officials. The resolution also directed an immediate start in the voluntary collection of $1 from each of some 6,000,000 members for use in the next elections.

Kroll declared the CIO will "bounce back politically" from its election defeats as it has recovered from setbacks in the organizing and bargaining fields.

Secretary of Labor Tobin told the delegates that the Democrats' losses this year were the smallest suffered by a majority party in any of the last four off-year elections.

Before the resolution went through, however, one union leader lit into the Democratic party for asking PAC to support some "political hacks."

George Baldanzi, executive vice president of the CIO textile workers, said the Democrats had some candidates who did not have the "confidence, ability or character to go before the voters with a definite program."

There was a growing fear among CIO leaders, meanwhile, that economic dislocations caused by America's mobilization program might throw hundreds of thousands of workers into idleness.

The CIO urged that restrictions on the use of aluminum and copper be held up lest they incur widespread unemployment.

The convention sent a telegram to Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Commerce, asking that restrictions already ordered in use of aluminum be rescinded temporarily and that any planned curbs on copper be deferred.

A dispute over the CIO's stand on government operation of utilities touched off the first floor fight of the convention.

All top officers of the CIO utility workers protested that a resolution on "principles of the Tennessee Valley Authority" would put the CIO on record as favoring nationalization of public utilities.

Other CIO leaders, headed by President Philip Murray, said that was not the intent at all. The dispute was settled and the resolution was adopted with only scattered opposition after Murray "clarified" the proposal.

Final 'Walks' Scheduled On Weekend

The two final outdoor events of the season conducted by the National Capital Parks will be held this weekend, according to Harry T. Thompson, acting park superintendent. One hike will be in Rock Creek Park Saturday afternoon, and another will be on the Leiter estate on the Virginia Palisades of the Potomac in Fairfax County on Sunday.

The Rock Creek Park event will organize at the corner of Calvert st. and Connecticut ave. at 2 p. m. Park Naturalist Robert Shepard will lead the hike, ending at 16th st. and Missouri ave. nw. at 5 p. m.

Participants in the Sunday afternoon party should be prepared for rough walking. Busses for the Leiter Uplands outing will leave 1416 F st. nw. at 1:30 p. m., returning about 5:30 p. m. Reservations may be made by calling Capital Transit Co. Persons driving private cars may meet the group at the gateway to the Bureau of Public Roads, 2 miles north of Chain Bridge on Virginia State Highway 123.

Wife of Soldier Tells Court Of 2 Operations in Year

The pretty 22-year-old wife of a soldier now in Japan testified yesterday in District Court that she underwent two abortion operations this year.

Mrs. Helen Aldrich, 1028 N. Irving st., Arlington, told the jury that the "treatment" given to rid her of her unborn children was administered by Walter J. Quantz, 56, a watchmaker, of 1311 20th st. nw.

Quantz is charged with one of the abortions only, which according to the indictment was performed September 2 in his home.

Mrs. Aldrich, brunette, buxom and wearing white bobbysox, testified that Quantz used two long instruments. She said he wore only yellow swimming trunks when the operation was performed.

She accused him of performing another illegal operation on her in aJnuary, and said that a boy friend had given her Quantz's name.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire refused to grant a mistrial sought in the case by defense attorney James J. Laughlin.

The lawyer said that the judge prejudiced the jury in making a statement directed at him. Judge McGuire "severely castigated and reprimanded" him about not appearing in the courtroom on time, Laughlin said. He explained that he was unavoidably engaged before another judge.

The trial will resume at 10 a. m. Monday.

Paste in Pancake Unsticks Marriage

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22 (AP).—Sam Savitz was awarded a divorce decree from Esther Savitz today on the ground she put paperhanger's paste in his potato pancakes.

"And when I discovered it and showed her the sack, plainly marked, in the kitchen cupboard, she swore at me and disappeared for three days," Savitz said.

4 Ford Plants Closed By Dispute at Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 22 (AP).—A shutdown of Ford of Canada manufacturing operations, stemming from an isolated seniority dispute on the assembly line, stopped work at all four of the company's production plants here.

Some 7000 men on the day shift were temporarily idle and another 3500 on the afternoon and late-night shifts joined them when the 4 p. m. shift failed to enter the plants.

No settlement of the dispute was reached in a two-hour meeting of the company and union

'Active' U. S. Support In Indo-China Asked

PARIS, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—France appealed today for "active and powerful support" of the United States and Britain in the Indo-Chinese war and indicated it might appeal to the United Nations if Communist China intervenes openly in the conflict.

[At Taipei, Formosa, the China News today said Chinese Red leader Mao Tze-tung had ordered a sizable number of Communist troops to leave Hainan Island for Indo-China, the Associated Press reported. It said the troops would help Indo-China's rebel leader, Ho Chi Minh, conquer Haiphong seaport.]

The anouncement was made by Jean Letourneau, Minister for the Associated States, in a statement of government policy to the National Assembly. The statement was approved by the Cabinet today.

Letourneau added, however, that, in the present circumstances and as long as there is no direct Chinese intervention, the French government considers an appeal to U. N. "neither possible nor desirable."

Viet Minh Rebels Open New Attack Near Hanoi

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Communist-led Viet Minh rebels have opened a new and large-scale attack against French positions around Hanoi, capital of embattled Tonkin Province, a French military spokesman said tonight.

Eight French fortresses were under attack, according to the spokesman, and the French were winning "in most cases." He said the rebel followers of Ho Chi Minh appeared to be driving toward the rice basin in the Red River delta north of Hanoi.

Rebel units struck also at the stone fort of Rachbap, 35 miles north of Saigon, the spokesman said, and were driven back by French forces.

Big Spy Ring Exposed, Nationalists Report

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Defense Ministry of Nationalist China today announced the expose of a spy ring that it said reached into the ministry itself.

An official announcement said the ring had agents also in the Foreign Ministry, the Navy and the headquarters of Gen. Sun Li-jen, commander of Nationalist ground forces. The announcement said two major generals, one colonel and several lower ranking officers had confessed.

Anti-British

Emergency Declared in Egypt Furor

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—A state of emergency was declared throughout Egypt today and police were issued submachine guns as angry students and workers marched on government buildings demanding that the British get out of the Suez Canal zone and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Cries of "Down with British imperialism" and "Revolution!" rang through the ancient streets of this capital. The approaches to the British and United States Embassies were sealed off.

Students in Cairo and Alexandria demonstrated against the United States as well as Britain. Some 12,000 took part here and three persons were injured by stones in a clash with police near Alazhar University.

All public meetings and parades were banned here.

MPs Call for Halt In Arms Shipments

LONDON, Nov. 22 (NYHT).—While anti-British demonstrations were being staged in Cairo, members of Parliament in London called on the government today to halt shipments of jet planes, tanks and other arms earmarked for Egypt. They warned that these weapons might boomerang against Britain.

The demand, voiced by both supporters and opponents of the government, caught Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell in an embarrassing crossfire from both sides of Commons.

British Doctors Vote on Strike Over Low Fees

LONDON, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The first serious revolt among doctors since the National Health Plan went into effect in July 1948, was spreading today as Britain's 60,000 physicians took a "strike poll" on demands for more pay and fewer patients.

The British Medical Association has set a March deadline for government action on its contention that the 17 shillings 5 pence ($2.44) a year that a health plan general practitioner gets for each patient is not enough.

But the BMA wants to make certain enough doctors feel strongly enough about the issue before it calls a mass withdrawal from the plan. Unless 80 percent of the doctors favor such drastic action, no "strike" will be called. To determine sentiment, the poll is under way in the 200 divisions of the BMA throughout Britain.

First returns—from Manchester, Leeds and Sheffield—indicate the figure will be attained.

Minister of Health Aneurin Bevan is making two surveys—one to determine how much overhead costs have risen in the profession; the second to find out how much money each doctor is making. The department has agreed to submit its findings by March.

West German Socialist Asks Equal Place in Europe Union

STRASBOURG, France, Nov. 22 (AP).—Dr. Carlo Schmid, a West German Socialist leader, said today his Socialists will support plans for a European government and parliament in which West Germany would be an equal partner of Britain and the Continental nations.

He spoke in the Consultative Assembly—the lower house of the Council of Europe. His speech gave new and unexpected backing to a European government plan introduced in the Assembly earlier this week by a British Laborite, Ronald W. Mackay.

British Conservative Robert Boothby called today for withdrawal of the British, French and American High Commissions from West Germany and equal German partnership in the Western European Union. That union is a military alliance of Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Mackay's plan had not been included in the Assembly's General Committee report proposing piecemeal European federation through regional pacts and supra-national authorities like the Schuman coal-steel pool. The committee, instead, suggested that the Assembly submit the Mackay proposal to a government committee of experts along with other proposals for strengthening the Council of Europe.

Mackay proposed setting up a European cabinet and a two-house parliament possessing full political, economic and military authority. The governmental right of veto in the upper house, the Committee of Foreign Ministers, would be retained.

Schmid praised the plan as the best way open for European unity and as a nucleus of real European government. He rejected federalist plans for a "Little Europe" without Britain and Scandinavia, and said "one day we will have to achieve a United States of Europe."

Vandenberg Visits Michigan Hospital Briefly for X-Rays

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 22 (AP).—Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) visited Butterworth Hospital briefly today for X-rays. The hospital declined further comment.

Vandenberg, 66, underwent a major lung operation a year ago and has been hospitalized at intervals since. Altogether, he has had seven major and minor operations.

Friends say the senior Michigan Senator has "good" days when he walks in the yard outside his home. On election day he was driven to the polls, rejected a suggestion that he be given preferential treatment and waited in line until his regular turn to vote.

Vandenberg reportedly is aiming for a January 1 return to the Senate floor and if he fails is reriously considering resigning.

Commonwealth Parley Called

LONDON, Nov. 22 (AP).—Prime Ministers of British Commonwealth nations are to meet here in January "to discuss questions of common concern, including aspects of the present international situation."

Prime Minister Attlee announced the meeting today. He told Commons the Prime Ministers of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan and Ceylon have accepted invitations to attend and Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan of South Africa will send a representative.

The talks will last about 10 days and will be private to permit "a confidential exchange of views," Attlee said. The meeting is believed to be set tentatively for January 4.

The idea of such a Commonwealth gathering was indorsed by leaders of the Labor government's opposition in Commons, Conservative Winston Churchill and Liberal Clement Davies.

Among other things, the Prime Ministers probably will review the Korean war, the threat of further Communist expansion in southeast Asia, relations with Communist China, European affairs and development of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Acheson Sets Policy Talks With Congress

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson promised yesterday to resume active consultation early next week with Republican and Democratic members of the Congressional foreign policy committees.

He told a press conference that, of course, he believed in regular and continuing Congressional review of the State Department's policies and programs.

The Secretary made it plain that he was by no means backtracking from his now-famous "re-examinist" speech of last Friday night. On the contrary, he stood by the speech, which had provoked Republican wrath, and said it had been more widely interpreted than widely read.

This was the speech in which he likened unnamed Republican critics to farmers who want to pull up the crops each night to see how they are growing.

The speech had followed a press conference in which Senator Robert A. Taft called for a new congressional study of "the scope, method and character" of American military aid to Europe.

Yesterday a reporter asked Acheson whom he had in mind in his talk about pulling up the crops. The Secretary declined to answer; then, to another questioner, he acknowledged that he had not read the full transcript of what Taft had said.

He said some quite extraordinary interpretations had been put on his "re-examinist" speech—one being that he seemed to resent Congressional examination of State Department programs. He thought his speech said exactly the opposite.

There are always plans for meeting with Republican Congressional leaders, he said under a rapid-fire of questions. He recalled that the State Department had consulted the regular foreign policy subcommittees of both houses throughout the last Congress, and said he himself had talked by telephone with some members, including Republicans, during the recent recess.

Asked whether he would see Senator Taft, the Secretary said he had had some talks with Taft during the last session, and was always very glad to have them.

If all this was intended to mollify his critics, it had no effect on at least one of them. Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, promptly called again for Acheson's resignation and for "a thorough and extensive housecleaning" of the State Department.

"The utterly unrealistic policies of the Administration and the State Department—as far as China, Formosa and Korea prior to the Korean War are concerned—have led us directly into the mess we are in," Hickenlooper said. The Senator added that "it would accomplish very little to replace the Secretary unless at the same time the housecleaning of policy-making subordinates can be had."

U. S. Plans No Red China Veto

tions on the subject with friendly governments.

On other subjects, Acheson told questioners:

1. He had no reason to doubt a New York Times story from New Delhi that Soviet agents had mapped potential airfields in western Tibet last spring;

2. He did not regard the Socialist victories in the German states of Wuerttemberg and Hesse as votes against rearmament, since one of the chief election issues was the high cost of living;

3. He hoped the United States and the North Atlantic allies could reach agreement soon on the use of German units for the defense of western Europe; and

4. He had made such good progress on plans for helping Yugoslavia that he hoped within a few days to hand President Truman a program for submission to Congress.

U. S. Jeep Rifle Can Knock Out Any Foreign Tank

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md., Nov. 22 (AP).—The Army has a new jeep-mounted recoilless rifle capable of knocking out the biggest known foreign tank, it was announced here today by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace.

The new weapon, 105 millimeter rifle, was unveiled at a demonstration of American combat weapons at this Army testing ground.

The rifle is an easy-to-handle weapon operated by a two-man crew and normally fired from a jeep.

It is the largest weapon of its kind, not only in calibre, but in size and weight as well.

U. S. Communist Party Called Tool of Soviet

Government presented an eight-point bill of particulars. Its principal points were:

1. From 1919 to the present the Communist Party "has been and is substantially dominated and controlled" by the Soviet government and international Communist organizations.

2. The Communist Party has "never knowingly deviated" from Soviet policies, even when they conflict with those of the United States.

3. The Communist Party "now receives and from time to time in the past has received" financial aid from the Soviet Union and international party organizations.

4. The party reports regularly to Moscow and sends its members abroad "for instruction and training in the principles, policies, strategy, and tactics of the world Communist movement."

5. American Communists are subject to discipline by the Soviet government and international Communism.

6. The Communist Party has cloaked itself, its members and its activities in secrecy.

After reviewing the formation of the American Communist Party and its history, McGrath cited numerous instances in which its policy has veered and even reversed itself to follow fluctuations at Moscow. These included the shift from opposition to support of World War II after the Nazi attack on Russia, support of the rape of Poland, Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania and Czechoslovakia, the Red invasion of South Korea and subsequent Chinese intervention.

Dissolution of the Communist International in 1943, McGrath said, did not halt the party's reports to world Communist leaders. As an example he cited a "vital document" on its affairs which was suppressed here but was transmitted abroad "by means unknown." The American party's policies, he said, are directed by comments and criticisms in "Pravda" and other official Soviet publications.

Not only has the party kept its membership and operations secret, even from the courts, McGrath said, but it employs a terminology which has "one meaning to the uninitiated and a completely different meaning" to its members. He said false swearing, secret meetings and the limited size of important committees are among devices employed to maintain secrecy.

McGrath's petition, for which information was supplied by "investigative reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation," was prepared in an effort to force the party to register under the McCarran Act, passed in the closing hours of the last session of Congress. The act provides that all organizations described by it as "Communist action" must register with the Department of Justice. Upon their failure to do so by a specified date, the Justice Department was directed to petition the board, set up by the act, for an order requiring the organization to register. Should the board, headed by Seth W. Richardson, issue such an order, the organization can then be brought into court if it fails to comply.

Neither the Communist Party nor any of its affiliates or members has registered.

Thanksgiving To Be Quiet

busy walks of life, every day and everywhere, to pray for peace."

Religious ceremonies will be held many places in Washington today.

The traditional Pan-American Mass will be pontificated at 10 a. m. at St. Patrick's Church. A joint service will be held at 11 a. m. at the First Congregational Church for the congregations of four downtown Protestant churches and one Jewish congregation.

Pentagon employes who work today will have services in the building itself—for Catholics in the Signal Corps Auditorium, for Protestants in the building concourse.

Among other services: St. Paul's Methodist Church and the Montgomery County Jewish Community Center, joint devotions at 10:30 a. m. at the Center, 2901 East-West hwy.; National Presbyterian Church, 1764 N st. nw., at 11 a. m.; Youth For Christ, at the Washington Bible Institute, 1445 Rhode Island ave., 7:45 p. m.

President Truman and the first family will sit down to a White Holland tom at 1:30 p. m. at Blair House.

The Armed Forces have ordered a complete turkey dinner for every man who can be served. Those too busy fighting today can expect their share Friday.

At all District institutions except the jail, there'll be turkey and trimmings. (It'll be beefsteak at the jail today authorities said.)

The weather across the Nation will be brisk. Washington is due for cloudy skies, with an afternoon high of about 52 degrees. It will turn colder Friday and the skies may brighten a bit.

As for travel, observers expect two home-coming peaks: from 6 p. m. to midnight today, and again Sunday afternoon and evening.

Chest Drive

Thanksgiving Day is a peculiarly appropriate occasion for remembering the Community Chest. Those of us who will gather today in the warm kinship of family circles to celebrate the happiest and most devout of American holidays will find an added grace and cheer in some sharing of our good fortune. There is no better way to give thanks than to give it in the form of a helping hand to those whom this day finds in desperate need of help.

The Community Chest is an instrument by which the helping hand can be made an effective one. Its careful study and assessment of community problems gives assurance that every contribution to it will be used where the need is most urgent—toward the prevention of delinquency, crime and ill health as well as toward the relief of poverty, illness and human suffering. This agency does for each of us a job that we cannot do for ourselves—a job which constitutes a responsibility that none of us can escape. For in this sense we are our brothers' keepers. The Chest enables us to act collectively in the discharge of a collective—that is to say, a community—obligation.

One hundred thousand more individual donors are needed to put the Community Chest campaign over the top; one hundred thousand who were contributors in 1949 and have not yet given to the Chest this year. The amount to be given by each donor is, of course, a matter of individual conscience. It ought to be enough so that it represents an individual sacrifice—a yielding of something desired for the sake of giving something needed to one's fellow-man. This is, certainly, the highest meaning of Thanksgiving.

Campaign Spending

There is not likely to be any dissent from Senator Gillette's conclusion that Congress should once more try to prevent excessive use of money in political campaigns. The cost of getting elected to the Senate has, as Mr. Gillette points out, reached a point where candidates of "limited means" are likely to be eliminated unless they are willing to compromise their independence by accepting large contributions from special interests. That is a sad commentary on our representative system. If Senator Gillette comes up with a reasonable and feasible answer, it will certainly command widespread sympathy.

The difficulty to date has been not in controlling what the candidates themselves spend but in limiting the contributions of their friends and supporters. Noting that Senator Taft spent only $1529 out of his own pocket in his recent campaign and that various committees swelled the expenditures in his behalf to $243,740, Senator Gillette says that maybe contributions should be routed through one central point. But would it be feasible to say, for example, that labor union funds pledged to a candidate should be cleared through regular party channels? Would it be constitutional to limit the number of independent committees spending money in behalf of a candidate? It is one thing to put restraints upon individuals and established political parties, but it is difficult to see how independent groups could be suppressed or forced into the two-party system without creating more evils than would be cured. All that can be done at present, therefore, is to commend the Gillette Subcommittee for re-examining the problem and to await its specific recommendations.

Appeal To The Banks

Chairman McCabe of the Federal Reserve Board has made another appeal to member banks to impose voluntary curbs on loans to customers, and the appeal is justifiable. The more than five-billion-dollar increase in commercial bank loans since the outbreak of the Korean war has "been the major cause of the recent inflationary increase in the money supply," not any change in the budgetary picture. As defense outlays are stepped up, Government deficit spending will, of course, add many more billions to the money supply, but since the beginning of the present fiscal year to date the Government has actually received more money than it has paid out, so that there has been no budgetary inflation. Post-Korean additions to consumer purchasing power are due to the creation of new deposits brought about by an expansion of bank loans.

Some expansion of bank loans is, of course, essential to provide industry with the working capital required to increase the production of defense goods and essential civilian goods. The purpose of Mr. McCabe's appeal is not to discourage this kind of loan expansion, but to insure a more careful screening of loan applications in order to reduce borrowing by customers to the "lowest limits consistent with their rockbottom needs." For instance, he urges the banks to see that customers are not using borrowed funds to build up excessive inventories, or to expand business operations that do not contribute to the defense effort.

Banks that follow this advice will have to reject many loan applications that are sound insofar as the individual bank is concerned, but nevertheless would have an inflationary effect on the economy by putting more dollars in the hands of borrowers who are competing for limited supplies of labor and materials. The recommended screening process would not preclude increases in the volume of purchasing power, but it would very soon result in increases in the production of essential goods that would offset the inflationary effect of the loan increases. At the same time the screening process would discourage borrowing by producers of nonessential or less essential civilian goods.

It is to be hoped that the banks will respond to this appeal from the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board by intensifying their efforts to restrain credit expansion by careful scrutiny of loan applications. It will entail a sacrifice of some earnings, but, as Mr. McCabe says, "that is a small price to pay for the defense of the dollar which is of paramount importance."

Thanksgiving

The slight confusion in many minds, including, it seems, those who designed our own calendar for 1950, concerning the date of this year's festival has now, we trust, been straightened out, so that both the festivity and the rendering of thanks will occur more or less concurrently throughout the Nation. The confusion arose from the fact that this month contains five Thursdays; and according to an Act of Congress the date of Thanksgiving has been permanently fixed beyond power of executive interference as the fourth Thursday, which is usually but not always the last one.

Unless there is a sharp and now unforeseen improvement in world affairs, this may be the last Thanksgiving Day for some years to be celebrated under the conditions of vast and widespread material abundance that have characterized the recent anniversaries of this ancient institution. But this reflection, as it seems to us, should better serve to emphasize the true meaning of the festival, so often overlooked, which is our dependence upon Providence for all the prosperity we have so long enjoyed.

This of course does not mean that we should permit the glow of the occasion to be diminished by black and ominous clouds that gather over the roofs that shelter our festive boards. For even though a new season of sacrifices and sorrows may wait ahead, there will remain much for which thanks to God are owing. And among these blessings we should count the very opportunity to express our gratitude in a manner hallowed by custom and tradition. That is chief among the many favors we still enjoy and in which a very large proportion of the earth's peoples may no longer share.

Complacency Dies Hard

Some very sharp prods are used by the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee in its second expose of defense program blunders. In its first report issued some weeks ago it assailed "siesta psychology." The second report declares that "it ill becomes Government officials to conduct the public business with less prudence than they would display in operating a charity bazaar." But Senator Lyndon B. Johnson and his colleagues are not merely carping. The boners they have brought to light justify pointed criticism because of their critical bearing upon the national security.

On August 17, for example, Administrator Jess Larson of the General Services Administration notified the committee that the disposal of surplus property was being "frozen" so as to avoid selling anything that might be useful in the preparedness effort. The same day, however, GSA accepted a bid from distilling interests for purchase of the Government's alcohol plant at Kansas City. The committee insists that, in spite of the abuse of the plant by a former lessee, it could be rehabilitated for the production of alcohol that is urgently needed in the synthetic rubber program. This plant was built during World War II for approximately four million dollars. The cost of reproducing it (less depreciation) was recently estimated at $2,508,000. Yet it was sold to a distilling company for $701,000 nearly two months after the war broke out in Korea. The subcommittee raises a question as to the validity of the sale consummated while the GSA "freeze" order was in effect, and in any event it suggests that a "national security clause" be inserted in the contract.

In the case of the seven million dollar alcohol plant at Omaha, the GSA abandoned its proposed sale after the Preparedness Committee's protests. But it then proceeded to lease the plant for 10 years (with the right to purchase it at the end of that period for $1,750,000) to a group of distillers who are pleading financial irresponsibility in their dealings with another arm of the Government. The investigators recommend that the lease be canceled if financial responsibility cannot be established and that in any event GSA should invoke the clause in the lease permitting the Government to take all the output of the plant for defense use.

The critical shortage of high-octane aviation gasoline would be less critical, the subcommittee points out, if the Government had not disposed of its aviation gasoline plant at Cotton Valley, La., without a recapture clause. The Air Force, as well as GSA and the Munitions Board were inexcusably slow in responding to the changed situation that the war in Korea brought about. Complacency dies hard. Even the new National Production Authority comes in for some ribbing for its issuance of an inequitable order limiting nonmilitary consumption of new rubber to 90,000 tons a month and then granting "hardship allotments" that wiped out the saving. After protests from the committee, however, a modified order was issued.

The investigators have a good deal of praise for the President's rubber preparedness program. Yet it is still a study program at a time when our resources are perilously inadequate. Chairman Symington of the National Security Resources Board also comes in for commendation for his efforts to get the defense program into high gear. But the evidence of bumbling and lack of foresight is all too prevalent. One of the healthiest aspects of the program is that its weaknesses are thus being brought to light by an alert and public-spirited congressional committee.

Grotius Revised

Senator Lodge has given an excellent elucidation of the seeming ambivalence of Soviet conduct in relation to the non-Communist world. The Soviet policy is not really ambivalent in the sense of being simultaneously attracted and repelled by the idea of world peace. It is all admirably logical and consistent, if you are able to accept the major premise, as it appears in the following syllogism:

1. Wars to liberate peoples from capitalist slavery are not aggressions.
2. The Soviets make war only to liberate peoples from capitalist slavery.
3. Therefore Soviet warmaking is not aggression.

The reasoning may be further elaborated thus:

1. All wars not fought to liberate peoples from capitalist slavery are aggressions.
2. Capitalist wars are not fought to liberate peoples from capitalist slavery.
3. Therefore all capitalist wars are aggressions.

This is what Senator Lodge in his statement at Lake Success the other day called "the Vishinsky Doctrine." It makes perfectly clear how the Stalinists have been able to reconcile their enthusiasm for the Stockholm Peace Petition with their conduct in Korea, Germany, and elsewhere. Indeed, as Senator Lodge pointed out, Mr. Vishinsky himself has propounded the doctrine quite succinctly by a quotation from Lenin in one of his recent speeches:

> Just wars are those which are designed to liberate people from capitalistic slavery. According to Lenin, a just war is not an aggression but a liberating war which is either designed to defend people from foreign attack and from attempts to enslave it, or the liberation of people from capitalistic slavery, or else the liberation of dependent peoples from the yoke of the imperialists.

From this of course it follows that since the United States is, by Communist definition, a country where capitalist slavery still prevails, the Soviets would be quite justified in attacking us. But by the same reasoning any effort to prepare ourselves for the possibility of such an attack is ipso facto warmongering. The American reasoning, however, as Senator Lodge observed, is quite different. The fact that most Americans consider life under the Soviet regime a form of slavery would not, according to our principles, justify us in making war purely for the sake of destroying the regime. Indeed, said Senator Lodge, "if the Soviet Union were again the victim of an aggressor, as it was in June, 1941, the United Nations would join to suppress that aggression."

As long as these two views remain what they are, there does not seem much hope of reconciling them. All the same, the problem of what constitutes a just war is one that has troubled moralists and philosophers for a good many centuries. And indeed, without some such exquisitely simple formula as Mr. Vishinsky's it might be difficult to search through history for examples of indubitably just wars. Even the editors of the New York Daily Worker perceive this. Commenting on Mr. O. John Rogge's valedictory speech at Warsaw, the Daily Worker observed:

> To show that he is a greater enemy of . . . aggression than the other delegates Rogge denounced the American Revolutionary War for Independence and the Civil War against slavery. There is a deadly logic to this view. For if Washington insists today in the U. N. that no colonial nation can revolt against its alien oppressors without being an "aggressor" and acting for "Soviet imperialism," then is it not plain that the American people were the "aggressors" against their lawful sovereign King George the Third? If the Korean people were the "invaders" when they took up arms against Syngman Rhee's hated regime, isn't it clear that Abraham Lincoln was also the invader of the slave-owning Confederacy of 1861?

We are beginning to think that the great appeal of communism for so many Western intellectuals for so many years was the way it simplified everything so charmingly and saved so much wear and tear on the cerebral centers. No wonder that Mr. Henry Wallace, when he parted company with the comrades, fell back upon the almost equally simple formula of Stephen Decatur.

"Nobel Nobility"

I enjoyed your November 13 editorial on the Nobelists Faulkner and Russell and congratulate your editorialist for an unusual piece of fine scholarly writing. I meant to write saying so, but took until now, prompted by Mr. Lazarus' interesting letter of November 18 about Lord Russell and the philosophers.

Mr. Lazarus is way off the beam when he alludes to the literary style of the politics of Russell and Santayana as though these were the criteria of the Nobel Prize judges. I believe that you pointed out that Russell is a model of clarity compared with the English Hegelians (you mentioned Bosanquet and this would go for that right-wing Hegelian Croce, too). Russell, the Cantabrigian, did, indeed, liberate English philosophy from the philosophical doldrums of Oxonian semantic unintelligibility. (Cook Wilson is exempted.)

When it comes to Mr. Lazarus' objections to "criteria," one can disagree that his criteria seem to be disparaging to some philosophers. True, most philosophers have been above the battle. Those who did come down to earth (which is where philosophy comes from) and who became political and possibly incarcerated are rare but not so rare as Mr. Lazarus would lead us to believe. More and more philosophers have left the cloisters to come down to the marketplace. Thoreau and Emerson are only two Americans who have been more or less political. Russell did go to prison in 1916 because of his pacifist views, though he has changed his ideas since. But he has always had the courage of his convictions, which may have been because he did not have to be concerned with any hazy Lehrerfreiheit of the academic world. Russell could indulge his many sided talents differently by authoring 51 books on as many diverse subjects.

Nor do these philosophers stand alone. Anaxagoras would have gone to prison for declaring that the sun was a red hot stone had not Pericles spirited him out of the grasp of the bigoted Athenians. As far as the Athenians were concerned, Socrates belonged in jail for he was their most voluble antidemocratic foe. And Aristotle declared that he would not let the Athenians sin against philosophy again merely because he was guilty of having tutored Alexander the Great. Hobbes and Locke, two of the most political of philosophers, could easily have gone to prison for their views, a fact which both of them knew, but they were able to escape by saying their say when and where it was convenient for their safety.

"Tibetan Plea"

With reference to your editorial of November 19, "Tibetan Plea," I wish to point out that history records Tibet as having been conquered by Kublai Khan, the grandson of Ghengis Khan, and that it has been a part of China for 700 years.

True, the Chinese allowed the Buddhist priests the chief "say so" in the land's "internal" administration, much as the kings of the dark Middle Ages allowed priests in Europe a powerful "say so." After 700 years of a rather free land, the priests of Tibet have come to think they own the land, which is quite natural.

Clothing In Korea

I see by the news that the GIs in Korea are fighting in zero weather with summer uniforms. Anyone in the last war could have guessed that this stupid, unnecessary and miserable situation would have arisen.

It isn't fair to the combat Joes to always let the Army public relations experts smooth this error out. Neither do the unctuous explanations get to the root of the problems. The responsible high officers should be made to give a bill of particulars.

Not only do miscalculations such as these make life unbearably miserable for the men up in the forward foxholes; they cause casualties from frozen feet and sickness and lead to a tough replacement problem. This unnecessarily reduces the effectiveness of the combat units.

Similar situations arose in the last war, and they show that these mistakes need not be. For instance, the Belgian Bulge was, according to General Eisenhower's report, Crusade in Europe, a very well foreseen calculated risk. Still, the men in that battle did not have snow capes or reversible winter coats with fur linings. Neither did they have galoshes.

Another very rotten piece of equipment is the celebrated combat boot. It must have taken a very far-from-the-front colonel to devise a boot with the leather reversed so water would run into the boot instead of run off it. And any Joe will tell you that you could spit on them and feel the moisture through the "water-resistant" leather.

"No More Isolationists"

In your November 15 editorial, "No More Isolationists," you apparently kiss off the isolationist threat inherent in the elections by blandly accepting at face value the "Who, me?" remarks of the Tafts and the Dirksens.

You state that many conservatives "quickly lose their indifference (to fighting aggression) when it becomes a question of aggressive thrusts inspired by the Stalinist hierarchy."

But did not Senator Taft question President Truman's action in sending United States troops to resist the Red aggression in Korea on the grounds that it was a matter for congressional debate and action?

You state that the one national issue that stood out in the election was "resentment against candidates supposed to have been too soft in dealing with communism."

But did not Taft, Nixon, Millikin and Capehart—to take only four winners—vote right down the line to cut all types of aid to our anti-Communist allies?

Yet you say, with a perfectly straight face, there "is not much out of which to fashion a bugaboo for Europe" and that "'isolationist' is meaningful only as a political weapon."

Since when did The Washington Post become an apologist for pinch-penny foreign policy voting records of the congressional super-patriots, near-sighted and know-nothings?

"Forced Migration"

I enjoyed very much your November 14 editorial "Forced Migration" for its realism and impartial attitude. However, it requires some explanations.

Unless I misinterpret your argument, you believe that the Bulgarian government makes life difficult for these Turks on purpose, in order to get them to seek a solution in emigration. That is precisely the explanation which, to my mind, is the least plausible one. In effect, under the present regime, the condition of the Bulgarian citizens of Turkish descent is not worse than that of the other citizens of the country. There are even reasons to believe that it is better, at least for those who are to be sent to Turkey on special missions.

Nevertheless, the migration is a forced one, designed to embarrass the Turkish government. It will be very difficult for Turkey to admit and settle 250,000 immigrants in the space of three months. But the Bulgarian demands are not limited to that number. The Bulgarian note to the Turkish government states that the latter must "guarantee for the future the unhampered admission of those Turks who would desire to immigrate from the People's Republic Bulgaria to Turkey."

Obviously, Bulgaria, under the present government, has decided to be rid of its Turkish minority. She has very serious reason for this action, given the international situation. It must be noted, too, that the Bulgarian demand came immediately after Turkey announced her intention of sending an armed force to take part in the Korean war. This decision was interpreted by the Soviet Union as a direct intervention in the fight against the Communist bloc, which had to be punished by immediate retaliation.

Both the Soviet-inspired retaliation and its execution emphasized once more the unequaled mastery of the Kremlin in exploiting legitimate discontents in various countries. In Bulgaria the discontent stems from the brutal expulsion in 1913 of the Bulgarian population from Eastern Thrace, numbering more than 250,000, which was given only a few hours to prepare before leaving, and which was allowed to take with it only a few personal belongings. It was the prototype for the expulsion of the Jews from Germany. Now, Bulgaria takes her revenge, and the irony of it is that she does it under a Communist government having the backing of the USSR.

In 1925, when the pact for eternal friendship was concluded by Bulgaria and Turkey, the two parties also signed a protocol-annex establishing the mode of liquidation of the property thus abandoned by the Bulgarian refugees and occupied by Turkish immigrants. This protocol, until the present day, has not even had a beginning of an application.

Bulgarian representatives in Ankara have been trying ever since to induce the Turkish government to appoint its delegates to the commission, so that it may be formed and begin to function.

Finally, in as far as the diplomatic instrument is concerned on which the Bulgarian demand is based, it is neither a convention for emigration, nor one for an exchange of populations. It is simply a convention regulating in detail the rights of individual Bulgarians entering Turkey and of individual Turks entering Bulgaria. It is a convention, signed at a time when there were no Bulgarians left in Turkey, with the exception of a few gardeners and millmen in Istanbul; it is on the insistence of the Turkish government that Article 2 was included, an article rather foreign to the text in general. It states: "the contracting parties agree that no objections shall be made to the voluntary emigration of the Turks from Bulgaria and of the Bulgarians from Turkey."

Pessimists' Field Day

By Malvina Lindsay

The "Tough Timers"

"YES, I'M telling you, things look bad!" remarked Fullerton Grouse as he neatly carved a mammoth leg off of a 17-pound turkey. "Where will prices stop? Taxes? Controls? And if those Chinese Reds mean business——"

"Hurry up Daddy or we'll miss the football game!" broke in Junior.

"No, we're going to turn it on to a play," said Mrs. Grouse. "Sister, please soften the radio music and check on the air conditioning. It's a little close in here. Now has everybody had gravy, hot rolls, cranberries, celery, olives, mashed potatoes, sweet potatoes?"

"National income's at a record high," ventured guest Ethelbert Hope. "And we've had another good crop year."

"Isn't it remarkable," exclaimed Mrs. Hope, "how many good crop years we've had! Well past the Biblical seven. We Americans must be playing in luck."

"Luck!" exclaimed Mr. Grouse. "This is the darkest Thanksgiving this country's ever had. Who knows when the bombs 'll fall?

"It all comes of changing the date," said Uncle Oswald. "Look at the Thanksgivings we used to have!"

"Everybody butter two hot rolls," directed Mrs. Grouse. "And don't miss the corn and lima beans out of our deep freeze."

"Yes," continued Mr. Grouse, "it looks like some tough times ahead. And no leadership! No defense! Traitors and spies under our beds!"

"Mamma, can I go watch a western?" asked junior.

"Oh, wait for the nice salad," pleaded Mrs. Grouse. "And pumpkin pie and ice cream."

"Is that all?"

"BE STILL Junior," reproved Mr. Grouse. "No. I tell you we're in the worse fix in the Nation's history. Barbarian hordes rising against us. And we're too weak even to clean up Korea."

"It all comes from getting mixed up with Europe," said Uncle Oswald. "Think how well off this country used to be. We could sit down at a Thanksgiving dinner and not have to worry about anything but who was going to win a football game."

"Or do the dinner dishes," supplemented Aunt Clara.

"Our new electric dishwasher will take care of that," said Mrs. Grouse.

"Look at the national debt!" continued Mr. Grouse. "And the dollar. Worth 60 cents compared to 1939."

"I move we all go back to 1939," said Mrs. Hope.

"Count me out," said Cousin Rufe. "I don't want to have to fight Hitler again."

"You may have to fight something worse," warned Mr. Grouse. "Who can tell what's going to happen?"

"That's it exactly," agreed Cousin Oswald. "The country's not like it used to be. Things have changed."

"And getting worse every day," chimed in Mr. Grouse. "Enemies lurking in wait all around us——"

"Just a minute," broke in Mr. Hope. "Let's go back to 1621—the first Thanksgiving. Plenty of enemies lying in wait then. Lurking Indians with tomahawks. Every house a fortress. At least none of us today has to watch out of the corner of his eyes as he eats. Then think of the lurking enemy—cold. Half the Plymouth colony perished the year before the first Thanksgiving.

"AND THERE were the plagues and epidemics. No modern wonder drugs. Remember how even in Revolutionary times Abigail Adams wrote her husband of dysentry carrying death into nearly every home. Yet the Continental Congress appointed 'one or more' —get that—days of Thanksgiving during Revolutionary years."

"True enough," admitted Mr. Grouse. "But I still say this country's in a mighty tight fix."

"I agree," said Mr. Hope. "Secretary Acheson has called this a very dangerous era. But I say we've been in tight fixes before, and I'll bet we didn't do as much bellyaching. Maybe we've gotten so soft that we despair more in fear our easy living will be upset."

"What do you mean, soft living?" demanded Mr. Grouse reaching for the stuffed dates and salted nuts. "Taxes and inflation are sending me to the poorhouse.

"We're licked right now if we take that attitude," said Mr. Hope. "I say Thanksgiving should be a time to bolster our confidence and courage, a time when we should give ourselves a psychological lift by thinking of our strengths. After all we do have wealth, technological skill, production know-how. We have the U. N. and we've made great strides working with other nations. What we need is more of what they had at the first Thanksgiving table—resolution, confidence, faith."

"We're about to miss the first act," said Mrs. Grouse. "And we'll be a lot more comfortable in the other room."

Heroic Dog

Once again—as it has happened times without number—a dog has been the real hero of a fire and been left to die by those whom he saved. The picture of the lad holding the rescued silver trophies left me cold, whereas it would have been heart-warming had he been holding a saved mongrel. There may have been extenuating circumstances—I hope there were—but in my own case no form of inanimate dust would have taken precedence over the life of a faithful dog.

Freedom's Meaning

By Marquis Childs

Thought For Thanksgiving Day

PLEASANT VALLEY is a typical American suburban community in a Midwestern State. It is a community in which families are today sitting down around Thanksgiving tables burdened with the good things of earth.

Childs

We'd like to think of Pleasant Valley as typically American with its new white Cape Cod cottages, most of them with television antennae proclaiming that here is the newest and latest. The following is an actual incident that occurred the other day in Pleasant Valley.

There came into being when the community was started shortly before World War II an organization that called itself the Pleasant Valley Discussion Group. They met every two or three weeks to talk for the most part about community problems—whether to try to get an improved bus schedule or to petition the school board to serve hot lunches at the community school. Sometimes they got onto larger subjects such as the United Nations or world federation or American foreign policy.

NOT long ago the wife of one of the members approached the leaders of the group with a request which she expressed with considerable hesitation and timidity. She explained that her husband was about to undergo clearance for some part-time work with one of the hush-hush Federal agencies in connection with his specialty which is statistical analysis.

They had talked it over together and she and her husband were both afraid that the Government investigators would look askance at the phrase "discussion group" on the list of organizations with which they were affiliated. Would it be possible, she asked, to change the name? Because, of course, they would both hate to sever their connection with a group that meant so much to them.

At the next meeting, with the couple absent, the question was considered. There were some who thought the request was a little far-fetched and silly. But after all it came from two well-liked members and so it was agreed that the Pleasant Valley Discussion Group should become the Pleasant Valley Improvement Association.

I HAVE no way of knowing whether this typifies anything in America today or not. I certainly hope it doesn't. At times, however, one cannot help but feel that fears and timidities imposed by big government, big business, big unions tend more and more to dominate the free American citizen. This looming bigness imposes a conformity that is deadening and sterile.

It goes against all that is best in the American heritage. It was not alone for food and creature comforts that those first Americans gave thanks to God. It was for the courage that had seen them through the long ordeal.

They had of their own accord left their comfortable homes in England to set out on a long and perilous and miserable journey. They had dared to settle in the wilderness with its real and imagined dangers, its plagues, agues, miseries, its discomforts and above all its loneliness.

And why had they defied fate in this way? Because they refused to conform. They chose to worship God in their own way. They refused to accept the dictates of what was after all a rather mild tyranny.

How many discussions there must have been before that decision was taken! History gives us some idea of how full of anxiety and concern those discussions were. And the timid must have counseled against any action at all.

Yet in the end there could be only one answer. That was the answer of men and women who believed more deeply in freedom than they believed in comfort and security. This is the American heritage which we shall forget or ignore or deliberately destroy at the peril of all that America means.

tives John J. Rooney (D., N. Y.), Donald O'Toole (D., N. Y.) and James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) acknowledging their receipt. The congressmen reportedly hit the ceiling and Rooney, who is chairman of the subcommittee handling CAB appropriations, called in the FBI.

The FBI found that the wires had ben sent by Lawrence V. Stapleton of Grant Advertising, Inc., New York agency representing National Airlines.

When Rooney and O'Toole heard the results of the investigation, they informed the CAB they did not want to press the matter. Spokesman for the Board and the airline explained that Stapleton's father, Percy C. Sapleton, had told his son to send the Rooney and O'Toole wires, saying he was close to them and it would be all right.

The elder Stapleton, whose address is the LaFayette National Bank Building, Brooklyn, is described as a political supporter of the two Congressmen.

O'Toole told The Post he planned no action in the matter, declaring it "largely the result of an over-zealous father's efforts to help his son."

Not to Press Matter

Auchincloss also indicated he did not plan to press the matter. Apparently his name was signed to a wire to the CAB after he had written a private letter to a constituent expressing disagreement with the CAB coach ruling. But the Republican Congressman and his Democratic colleagues at no time authorized use of their names, they told the CAB.

The board ruling last August banning National's plan to institute daylight coach service between New York and Miami brought many bona fide protests to the CAB from New York and Florida business and political leaders as well as some editorial criticism.

Previously, the CAB had told the airline verbally that they would approve their application. Relying on this, National advertised the service and sold tickets. Following a last moment objection raised by Eastern Airlines—a competitor—however, the CAB reversed itself on the day the coach travel was to start and postponed it pending further study.

National, after protesting, put out a pamphlet including the objections of those who actually wired the CAB, as well as the three Congressmen whose names were signed to the fake telegrams. When the latter was discovered, the airline immediately withdrew the pamphlet, called upon the Congressmen and CAB and apologized and promised disciplinary action against those involved.

Gas Pipeline Explodes

when the pipe exploded between him and the house.

When he got home, Suter found his wife and two children, Mildred, 19, and James, 5, burned about the arms, neck and head, several buildings damaged, and a number of chickens and hogs killed. The Suter family was taken to the Medical Arts Hospital in Culpepper.

Across the road, two empty hen houses owned by Farmer Earl Hawkins and located 100 yards from the pipeline were set afire. The Culpeper Fire Department put the fires out.

Buried 6 to 8 feet underground the exploding pipe ripped up a section of State Route 647 minutes after a loaded school bus passed over the spot. The road was put out of commission and traffic rerouted.

Rocks, gravel and pipe, impelled by 850 to 1000 pounds of pressure in the line, shot up along the length of the 3000-foot break, police said.

Moore said a "blowtorch-like" flame raged at the southwest end of the break for 34 minutes until pressure was cut off at a booster station near Unionville.

Company officials promised police on immediate investigation to determine the cause of the explosion. No estimate of the damage was immediately available.

should be given to a more ready access to raw materials' markets for those nations which in themselves do not produce the raw materials necessary to industry.

I am confident, my dear Duce, that you share with me the fear that the trend of the present international situation is ominous to peace. And I am confident that you share with me the desire to turn the course of the world toward stabilizing peace.

I have often wished that I might talk with you frankly and in person because from such a meeting great good might come. But we both realize the great difficulties that stand in the way—international difficulties as well as the distances of the Atlantic Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea.

I was very happy to learn that my youngest son, John, had the privilege of meeting you last week. I had charged him with conveying to you my very warm regards. Some day you and I must and shall meet in person.

Believe me, with every good wish,

Faithfully yours,

P. S. This is your birthday and I send you wishes for many happy returns of the day.

THE WHITE HOUSE,

Memorandum for the Secretary of the Treasury.

Rather serious news affecting the Treasury Department has just come.

It is understood that the head of the Department was caught sitting in a bedroom on a lounge with Joan Crawford and that if the Comptroller of the Currency had not discovered it and inserted Mrs. M., there would have been a real scandal. I am not telling the Under Secretary or any of the Assistant Secretaries, as they might all start for California.

After this word of admonition I can still hope that you are having a grand time in Honolulu and nearby places. Congress is still here and so am I. That is, as the Times would say, "All the news that's fit to print."

F. D. R.

Secretary Morgenthau and his family had, on July 24th, sailed from Los Angeles for a vacation in Hawaii. They had stopped off in Hollywood where, while watching a Joan Crawford picture in production at M. G. M., an enterprising press agent had attempted to get a photograph of the Secretary of the Treasury and Joan Crawford together. The flustered Secretary called to Mrs. Morgenthau and had her sit between them.

F.D.R. to John N. Garner in Washington

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Aug. 10 1937

Dear Jack:

The quality of a man's friendships is always a safe barometer of his character and in the case of Alben Barkley this is particularly true. And it is as an old friend that I write this note; that I embrace the opportunity to add my testimony to the words of his other old friends and colleagues who will speak tonight in token of their appreciation and affection for this man.

Alben is not only a political friend but is a friend in a very real and very deep personal sense. Our associations cover long and delightful years. We have traveled together; we have barnstormed together; we have known the exultation of victory and we have been together in times of mutual commiseration.

I know that everyone present this evening will agree with me that Alben Barkley is greatly distinguished for the things he does not say as well as for the things he does say. Whether he was born that way or has acquired this marvelous restraint through years of self-discipline, I do not know. But I do know that it is a great asset.

He has two great gifts for which he ought to be thankful and for which we are truly grateful—a sense of perspective whereby little things are not unduly magnified and the larger things of life are not minimized, and a sense of humor which enables him to distinguish between the ridiculous and the serious.

Any man who, when the discussion of some picayune subject waxes serious and acrimonious, can rise in his place and sing "Wagon Wheels" is a positive genius. He knows by sound instinct that on occasion party harmony is aided and abetted by close harmony.

Very sincerely yours,

After Senator Robinson's death, Senator Barkley of Kentucky and Senator Harrison of Mississippi were contenders for the post of Senate Majority Leader. Barkley was F. D. R.'s candidate, and won by the close vote of 38 to 37.

The dinner to Senator Barkley, given by Senate Democrats, was enlivened by a pigeon who flew over the heads of the diners to symbolize the dove of peace. F. D. R., it was reported, stayed away from the dinner in the interests of harmony.

F.D.R. to Arthur Murray on the Isle of Seil, Scotland

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Oct. 7, 1937.

Dear Arthur.

When you wrote me about Lord Mottistone you did not tell me how I could reach him on this side, but I sent word through the Cunard Line that, to my great regret, I would be on my western trip during the whole of his visit.

I left on September twenty-second and only got back yesterday, and I am awfully sorry not to have seen him as I have heard so much about him.

I wish I could have been in Germany with you. So many people who have been there this summer, but who have no ability or experience in looking below the surface of things, tell me that everything is "couleur de rose"—a happy, prosperous people. It is, indeed, difficult to get below that surface but, like you, I am convinced that all is not well at the bottom.

You will have read my speech in Chicago day before yesterday. Strictly between ourselves, I did hope for a little more unselfish spine in your foreign office! Gray and you had it.

The pictures taken at An Cala make me want more than ever to visit you, and you and Faith were both awfully good in doing so much for my friends.

As ever yours,

Lord Mottistone was Arthur Murray's brother-in-law. Colonel Murray had described Germany as a nation "in fetters" which must burst asunder at some time. The Chicago speech was the famous "quarantine" speech, in which F. D. R. called upon the peace-loving nations to act together to uphold the sanctity of treaties and warned the United States that its hopes for peace could not be realized in a world at war.

Lord Edward Gray was British Foreign Minister during World War I, and Murray had served under him.

F.D.R. to Mrs. Roosevelt

F. D. R.

The gift was a fur lining for a coat.

F.D.R. to Endicott Peabody at Groton

HYDE PARK.
Oct. 16, 1937

Dear Mr. Peabody:

This is the first chance I have had to thank you for that much appreciated telegram. As you know, I am fighting against a public psychology of long standing—a psychology which comes very close to saying "Peace at any price."

I have felt, however, that there will be a growing response to the ideal that when a few nations fail to maintain certain fundamental rules of conduct, the most practical and most peaceful thing to do in the long run is to "quarantine" them. I am inclined to think that this is more Christian, as well as more practical, than that the world should go to war with them.

Love to you all.

Affectionately,

F.D.R.'s quarantine speech had provoked a vigorous outcry from the isolationists. Six major pacifist groups declared that he was leading us down the same road that led to World War I. A telegraphic poll of Congress by the Philadelphia Inquirer showed a two-to-one opposition to common action with the League in the Far Eastern crisis.

unit to excess profits tax testimony, or a surplus profits tax bill.

Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, promptly hit Reed's proposal as confirmation of "what we have suspected all along—that the Republican members . . . are only interested in doing everything possible to avoid and delay the taxation of excessive profits derived from the war effort."

Doughton stressed that the "mandate" for an excess profits tax bill was approved by the House, 328 to 7, with Republicans as well as Democrats voting for it.

Extraneous Issues

He accused the GOP minority of trying repeatedly "to interject extraneous issues of other forms of taxation" to keep the committee from carrying out the directive.

Said Doughton: "Everyone, Republicans included, knows full well that it would be impossible to do what they propose during this Congress."

Reed insisted, however, that Republicans "recognize the necessity of raising additional corporate tax revenue to build up our military strength in the face of ruthless Communist aggression."

"But we want taxes raised in a manner that will not defeat the purpose for which they were imposed," the New York Republican said in a statement. "We want tax legislation that will give us guns, not destroy them. We want tax legislation that will encourage and stimulate defense production, not hobble it."

He said neither the Senate nor the House "intended to railroad through Congress an inflationary and destructive tax bill such has been proposed by the White House."

Thus the seven-day tax hearing closed in the same party-line controversy that has marked day-to-day conduct of the hearings.

Only three days ago the committee sidetracked by a vote of 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans a proposal by Reed to provide a 55 percent corporate tax alternative to the Administration's proposed 75 percent excess profits tax.

Doughton, meanwhile, called the committee into executive session starting Friday to begin drafting a bill. The completed draft won't be ready at earliest before the close of next week.

Despite the strict interpretation of the mandate enforced during the hearings, influential committee Democrats were already weighing the possibility of a compromise linking a mild excess profits tax with a moderate increase in regular corporate rates.

One Democrat privately construed yesterday's Republican statement as an effort to "scoop" Democrats on a "combination plan" compromise.

As a possible alternative, some Democrats were said to favor a greatly watered down excess profits tax that would nominally leave the major tax-writing job for next session.

Pass On To Consumer

Predictions of higher rates for gas, electricity, telephone and transportation service to offset any excess profits tax were given to the House Ways and Means Committee by spokesmen for the utilities industries.

Just about every element of the utilities industry was represented at yesterday's hearings. All were in agreement that an excess profits tax would have an adverse effect on the business.

Because profits of utilities are regulated by State bodies, the witnesses argued, they are in a peculiar position. To drain off the regulated profits, they said, would mean reduced dividends, more difficulty in financing needed expansion, and ultimately higher rates to consumers.

If an excess profits tax must be levied, the utilities said, their earnings equal to at least 6 percent of capital investment should be exempted and credit should be given for regular corporation income tax payments.

Harold V. Bozell of New York speaking for the United States Independent Telephone Association, told the committee the only recourse if an excess profits tax is levied would be to raise rates "to such a point that the tax can be paid and the company still earn its proper return."

Senator-Elect Butler Names Times-Herald Writer as Aide

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senator-Elect John Marshall Butler, Maryland Republican, yesterday said he has chosen Frank M. Smith, Washington newspaperman, to be his administrative assistant.

Smith is chief editorial writer for the Washington Times-Herald. He had covered the Capitol for that paper for a number of years, before his assignment to editorial duties about two years ago.

Butler told of Smith's selection for the administrative job during an informal visit they made yesterday to the Capitol.

Butler was elected November 7 to succeed U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) in January.

In his visit with Smith to the Capitol, Butler saw the Senate chamber, where a two-year remodeling job is now in the final stages, and also met several Congressional aides.

These included Capitol Architect David Lynn, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Joseph Duke, and Mark Trice, secretary to the Senate Minority.

It was Butler's first visit to the Capitol since the election.

Smith, 47, is a native of Cumberland, Md. He started his journalism career 31 years ago as a cub reporter for the Baltimore Sun, and at the same time attended journalism classes at Johns Hopkins.

He later studied at Randolph Macon College at Ashland, Va.

He joined the staff of the Washington Times—later merged into the Times-Herald—in the '20's. His service with the Times and Times-Herald totals about 25 years.

Smith is married and lives at 2700 1st rd. N., Arlington, Va. He is on leave from his paper, pending the start of his new job at the Capitol.

OF BOOKS AND BRENTANO'S

Shall we wander down the empty aisles of Brentano's this Thanksgiving Day, glancing at titles new and old, with Christmas gifts in mind, or just good winter reading? . . . Here, for example, is Winston Churchill's THE HINGE OF FATE ($5.00 until publication day, November 27; $6.00 thereafter). It is Volume Four of the epic series THE SECOND WORLD WAR, and is the story of the year that led to the invasion of Sicily. In Churchill's fine brandied prose, it narrates the ebb and flow of the grim African warfare, the discouragingly slow business of reconquest, the companionable meetings with F.D.R., the grouping efforts toward collaboration with Stalin. Surely it is one of the great works of our era, and a gift of magnificent proportion. . . . And here, in poetry, is an important book for all of us, THE COMPLETE POEMS OF CARL SANDBURG ($6.00). In one magnificent volume are assembled all the published works and 74 new poems by America's poet of the people. In it may be heard the full range and power of his voice. This, too, makes a fine gift. . . . Blithely perched on the humor counter is S. J. Perelman's THE SWISS FAMILY PERELMAN ($2.95). Illustrated by Hirschfeld, the volume presents the Perelmans loose in the unfortunate Far East. Told, of course, with S. J.'s usual mixture of understatement, overstatement and wild-eyed cliches. . . . Finally, brouse through VALLEY FORGE: 24 DECEMBER 1777 ($1.25), F. Van Wyck Mason's inspiring story of George Washington on a Christmas Eve of grim decison, when his starving, ill-clad army was held together and given new courage by a young soldier's letter to his mother. Another Christmas gift of unusual pertinence for these troubled days.

Defense Gets Collazo Jurors' Questionnaires

Attorneys for Oscar Collazo yesterday obtained permission to examine portions of questionnaires submitted by the grand jury which subsequently indicted him for the Blair House slaying November 1.

The questionnaires were sent in to the Jury Commission before the grand jurors were empanelled. They include personal and official information.

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court said that the attorneys would be allowed to get information pertaining to citizenship, criminal records and occupation of the grand jurors, but not more personal information.

Collazo, one of the two alleged assassins in the November 1 attempt on President Truman, faces trial for first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of White House Police Pvt. Leslie Coffelt.

2 Blair House Bus Stops Go

Two Capital Transit Co. bus stops between the White House and Blair House were ordered moved for security reasons yesterday by the District Public Utilities Commission.

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett said the stops "interfere with enforcement of security measures." There are no streetcar or bus stops now between the White House and President Truman's temporary residence. A Pennsylvania ave. streetcar stop just east of Blair House was removed after the attempt on the President's life November 1.

Yesterday's changes affect: (1) The Pennsylvania ave. bus stop just east of 17th st. nw., which is to be moved around the corner onto 17th st. at G st., and (2) the Jackson pl. terminal of Benning and Rhode Island ave. buses, which is to be moved to Pennsylvania just west of Madison pl. The PUC called this move temporary. Presumably, it will be moved again, when the President returns to the White House.

The PUC also ordered Capital Transit to switch its southbound rush-hour stop on 23d st. nw. from the south to the north side of M st., and to establish rush-hour stops for the new Berkshire Apartments on Massachusetts ave. nw. just east of Ward Circle.

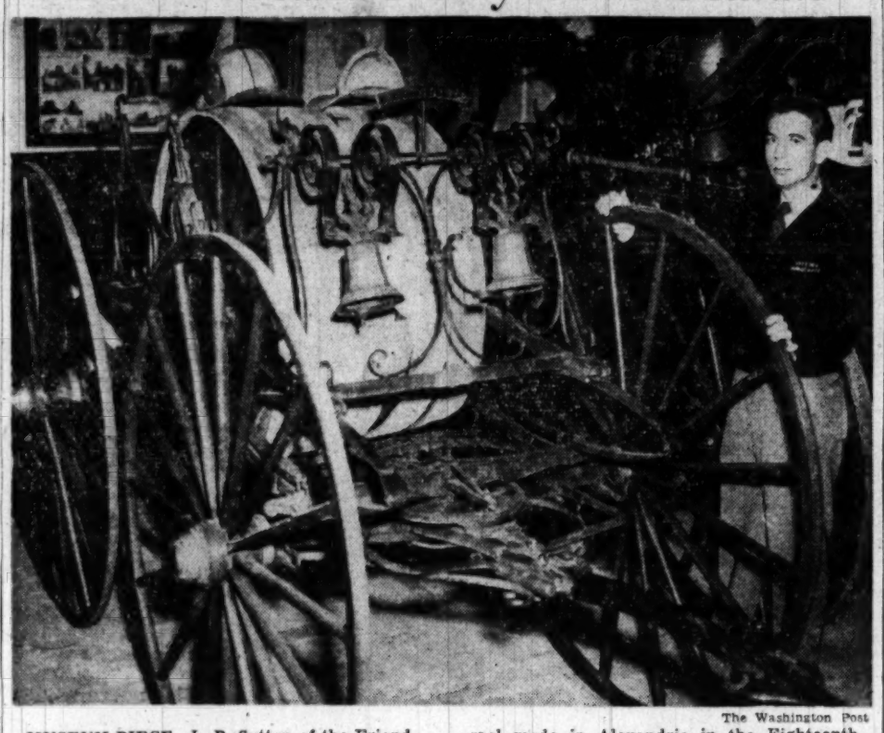
Alexandria's Historic Friendship Firehouse To Be Rededicated Friday as Public Shrine



The Washington Post

MUSEUM PIECE—L. P. Sutton of the Friendship Firehouse, poses with hand-drawn hose reel made in Alexandria in the Eighteenth Century, on display at the historic firehouse

Alexandria's historic Friendship Firehouse, of which George Washington was an honorary captain, will be rededicated as a public shrine Friday at 8 p. m.

The exercises will be held in the meeting room above the engine house at 107 S. Alfred st. They will mark formal opening of the recently-remodeled structure as a museum, under sponsorship of the reorganized Friendship Veterans Fire Engine Company.

Principal speaker at the rededication will be C. Phillip Heishley, custodian of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial. Other speakers will be Mayor Franklin P. Backus and the Rev. Ernest F. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Alexandria. The exercises will be followed by a supper and reception.

The old fire company was formed in 1744. The following year it received its first engine—a handsome, brass-studded hand-pumper donated by George Washington. According to the company's history, the engine was the "latest thing in fire-fighting apparatus." It was purchased by Washington for 80 pounds, 10 shillings—the equivalent then of $400.

Much to the regret of present members of the unit, the original pumper was "traded in" in 1849 for a "more modern" engine. The gleaming red replacement is now on display at the firehouse, alongside a two-wheeled hand-drawn hose reel and other paraphernalia. The museum is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Two Arrested In Death Plot

States. They recently sparked an armed uprising on the island.

Arrested today were Julio Pinto Gandia, 42, a veteran terrorist and New York president of the Nationalist Party, and Juan Bernardo Lebron, 28, a past president of the New York unit of the party.

More arrests may be in the offing, it was reported.

Already in custody are the wives of the two would-be assassins, Oscar Collazo and Griselio Torresola. Collazo is awaiting trial in Washington for the assassination attempt. Torresola was slain by Blair House guards.

Assistant United States Attorney Frederick H. Block said a grand jury has evidence of "the possible existence of an organized plot to assassinate the President of the United States Novemb r 1, with Griselio Torresola and Oscar Collago, gunman, having been guided in their mission by Gandia and Lebron, and the gunmen's wives."

Gandia and Lebron were charged with conspiring with the two wives—Mrs. Rosa Collazo, 42, and Mrs. Carmen Torresola, 22—against the safety of the President.

Both men were held in bonds of $50,000 each for a hearing December 6.

Lebron, stocky, swarthy and mustached, stared steadily ahead during the arraignment, his hands folded before him. Gandia, thin-faced and also wearing a mustache, kept his hands in his pockets.

Block said Lebron was president of the New York Nationalists last year. The party has about 100 members here and its headquarters is in the Bronx.

United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol said Gandia was disbarred as a lawyer in Puerto Rico after his conviction in 1937 in connection with an attempt on the life of a Federal judge there. He served six years in the Leavenworth (Kans.) Federal Penitentiary.

The two arrests came after the Government asked more time to prepare its case against Mrs. Collazo and Mrs. Torresola.

United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald granted a two-week adjournment of a conspiracy hearing against the two women and kept their bail fixed at $50,000 each.

Block told the court a grand jury was making progress in its probe into the assassination plot and added:

"These two men—the two gunmen—did not go down (to Washington) just alone representing themselves. Our investigation shows that these two defendants (the wives) were part of that conspiracy."

Then Block revealed that the two new arrests were in the offing and said "this shows the Government is making progress."

Abraham Unger, counsel for the two women, called the announcement of the new arrests a "smoke screen" intended to keep the women in jail longer.

"That's not speedy justice," Unger told McDonald. "That is a denial of justice."

Nearby Area Bank Merger Plan Denied

By S. Oliver Goodman

Current reports that Prince Georges Bank Trust Co. and the Suburban National Bank plan to merge were disclaimed yesterday by officials of the nearby Maryland institutions.

One officer admitted that a merger plan was "talked about a little earlier this year, then dropped."

T. Howard Duckett, president of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., said yesterday that such negotiations are in progress now. Duckett is also board chairman of the Suburban National Bank and serves as a director for both institutions. Oliver Metzerott also acts as a director for both banks.

Latest statement of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust So. shows resources in excess of 28 million dollars and deposits of $26,378,000 as of September 30. It has four branches as well as a main office in Hyattsville.

Resources of Suburban National Bank aggregated $29,387,061 and deposits $27,409,578 as of October 4. It has four branches, a facility at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory and main offices in Silver Spring.

Both institutions, it was learned, have filed applications for additional branches in the rapidly-growing suburban Maryland area.

RATE RAISED: The Treasury last night offered 1¾ percent five-year notes in exchange for $8,008,101,500 in securities falling due December 15 and January 1. The interest rate offered was one fourth percent higher than the last preceding five-year note issued by the Treasury March 15, 1950, and appeared to be a recognition of an uptrend recently in interest rates. The Treasury and Federal Reserve Board—recently at odds over Treasury financing policies and interest rates—were reported authoritatively to have agreed on the new offering.

WHO'S NEWS: Parke Wright 3d has been appointed district sales manager of National Airlines in New York. He formerly was sales manager in Washington . . . Edward M. Melton has joined Bell & Howell Co. as vice president in charge of the international division and general sales manager of the Rochester film division . . . Knox Ide, former president of American Home Products Corp., has been elected president of Eversharp, Inc., succeeding Daniel van Dyk . . . Allan W. Walter has been elected comptroller of Pullman, Ins. . . . Rex L. Allison has been made vice president and group manager of Allied Stores Corp.

INQUIRY: A runup of $16 a share in Capital Transit during the first seven months this year, accompanied by unusually active trading, stirred Securities and Exchange Commission interest. Area brokers were asked last August to give details on all transactions in the transit stock. After studying the brokers' data, SEC officials concluded there were no violations of trading rules. In financial quarters here, the upsurge was attributed to a "thin" market, meaning few offerings and brisk demand. Since the Wolfson group acquired stock control, Transit stock has risen from $20 to as high as $39. Current quotation is around $35.

NOTES: Hugh Leach, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, is observing his thirtieth year with the bank . . . F. L. McClure is the new director of fleet sales for Kaiser-Frazer Corp. . . Joseph F. Stein, president of the Stein's clothing chain whose Washington store is at 923 F st. nw., is marking his twenty-fifth anniversary as head of the firm which was founded in 1878 . . . Walt Smith, former publicity director of the Hotels Statler chain, has joined George L. Cassidy, New York public relations consultant . . . The Wine Growers Guild of Lodi, Calif., has appointed Guild, Bascom & Bonfigli as advertising agency with Merritt Wiley as account executive.

HOLIDAY: All security and commodity markets will suspend today in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday. Banks and building-loan associations will also be closed.

ODD LOTS: U. S. Steel Corp. subsidiaries announced that their prices for tin mill products would rise an average of about 12 percent on January 1 . . . Representatives of 11 independent video stations are discussing formation of their own movie-producing firm to turn out low budget films for exclusive TV showing . . . Newspaper advertising lineage in first 10 months gained 5.8 percent over same 1949 period. Media records reports . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 97,835 cars and 16,774 trucks, against 94,284 cars and 22,668 trucks last week.

EARNINGS: B. F. Goodrich Co. reported net income of $21,967,990, or $15.61 a common share, for the first nine months, compared with $12,451,690, or $8.34 a share, in the same 1949 period. Other earnings reports:

Egg Price Supports To End December 31

Defies Critics

Brannan Won't Quit, He Says

By the United Press

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan said yesterday after a conference with President Truman that he has no intention of quitting his Cabinet post under fire.

As he left the White House, Brannan was asked by reporters if he would stay on in the face of Republican criticism and private complaints by some Democrats that his controversial farm plan contributed to party reverses in the November 7 elections.

"I don't know how the dickens you answer a thing like that," he replied. "As far as I know I'm staying. I don't know anybody who has suggested my getting out who was for me being there in the first place."

Brannan called on the President just before leaving for the Inter-American Agricultural and Scientific Conferences at Montevideo.

The Brannan plan was a sharp campaign issue in several Farm Belt States. It calls for a system of direct subsidy payments to farmers to support the price of perishables such as meat, eggs and milk. This would be in lieu of the present system under which the Government removes surpluses from the market to keep prices from sagging.

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture Department announced yesterday that its producer price support program for eggs will be discontinued December 31.

Continued over production, involving heavy Government buying of eggs for which it has no market, was given as the major reason for discontinuance.

Thus eggs in 1951 will be unsupported for the first time since 1942.

The department said, however, that it might buy a limited quantity of shell eggs in local areas in periods of low prices if immediate non commercial outlets were available for their disposal.

This might mean the purchase of a small quantity of eggs for the Federal school lunch program.

The present support program is designed to assure producers an annual average of 37 cents a dozen. The agency buys dried eggs from processors who pay producers an average of 25 cents a dozen for ungraded eggs. This program has been limited largely to the surplus egg producing areas of the Midwest.

This year's support rate is 10 cents a dozen less than last year's. The reduction was made in an effort to discourage surplus production.

In announcing today's decision, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said the reduction in the 1950 support rate had not justified his hope that production would go down. Instead, farmers have produced about 6 percent more eggs, keeping the Government in the market for large quantities of dried eggs for which it has no outlet.

The department now has about 100 million dollars invested in dried eggs bought under the support program.

Brannan said the Government probably would take a loss of more than 85 million dollars on these eggs. In addition, the Government has lost 60 million dollars on earlier price support operations.

Brannan said he had taken the discontinuance action "reluctantly."

Grange Urged Not to Depend On Federal Aid

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 22 (AP).—A national farm leader called upon farmers today to solve their own problems and not depend on Government.

R. E. Carter of Pennsylvania, president of the National Association of County Agricultural Audits spoke at the annual convention of the National Grange.

"There is no substitute for hard work, individual initiative and independence," he said.

"Farmers must not sell their freedom for a few easy taxpayers' dollars.

"The Supreme Court of the United States recently ruled that what the United States Government subsidizes, it may control. I make that observation with no additional comment.

"I would like to add, however, that we cannot substitute Government solution for hard work and planning on the part of farmers themselves and expect the strong agricultural future our land offers . . .

"Farmers have a right to expect equal opportunities and protection from unscrupulous exploitation. I do not feel, however, that they have a right to expect Government to be their keeper, and I am sure that you do not want it."

At another point he said:

"Lasting agriculture, its advancement and growth will come, I believe, not from force and regulations or regimentation, but from knowledge, enlightenment, and the desire on the part of the farmers to have a successful, prosperous, permanent agriculture."

The convention is moving toward its conclusion Friday night, with policy reports and resolutions the important remaining business.

Still awaiting action is a recommendation by the national welfare committee that the Grange consider changing its longtime position against military conscription.

Second Californian Cited by Kefauver Crime Committee

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22 (AP). William N. (Big Bull) Pechart of Contra Costa County had his say today before the United States Senate Crime Committee which is probing into the affairs of California's gambling fraternity.

But Big Bull didn't have much to say. As he left the hearing chamber, which is closed to press and public, his attorney told reporters the committee had voted unanimously to cite Pechart to the United States Senate for contempt.

Pechart and Dave Kessel were described in the recent California Crime Commission report as operators of the Wagon Wheel, a big gambling place near El Cerrito, across the bay from here.

Yesterday, the committee, headed by United States Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), voted to bring perjury and criminal contempt proceedings against Kessel after he had appeared as a witness. Kefauver called Kessel "one of the most sinister characters the committee has encountered in some time."

Harold Faulkner, attorney for both men, told reporters that Pechart answered some of the questions asked him, but stood on his constitutional rights with regard to others—specially, those relating to his business.

While in San Francisco, the traveling committee peered deeply into the operations of the "black hand," or the Mafia.

Senator Kefauver praised a Mafia report submitted by two San Francisco police inspectors as "the finest compilation of data on this type of operation we have yet found."

The committee has been conducting closed hearings in various cities to determine whether and to what extent a nationwide crime syndicate exists. Mafia gang activities, largely involving narcotics, would fit into such a picture.

"We had a full discussion of the people believed to be Mafia members here," Kefauver told reporters. "It is not felt that San Francisco was headquarters for Mafia, but it is apparent that the San Francisco Bay area has had a greater number of Mafia members than even Kansas City."

He praised the report submitted by Frank Ahern and Tom Cahill, homicide bureau inspectors, and said they would continue aiding the committee in delving into Mafia operations.

Killed as Bomb Wrecks His Auto

NELSON HARRIS

Car Blast Kills Gambler, Wife

FORT WORTH, Nov. 22 (AP).—An exploding bomb today killed a convicted member of the Green Dragon narcotic ring, his wife and their unborn child.

Nelson Harris, 41, was almost decapitated as nitroglycerine planted in his car detonated. His 25-year-old wife was perforated by flying metal. Both she and the baby, whose birth was expected in about a week, died shortly afterward.

Harris was one of 21 persons convicted here in 1940 as members of the Green Dragon narcotic smuggling and peddling ring, operating from New York, Chicago and Southwest headquarters. The ring got its name from a Green Dragon stamped on top of small boxes, resembling match boxes, in which narcotics were delivered.

Almost exactly a year ago—on November 29, 1949—a similar car bomb exploded in Dallas, killing the pretty wife of Dallas gambler Herbert Noble. Police said that bomb was intended for Noble, who has survived several attempts on his life.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted local gamblers as saying the two bombings were indirectly connected—that Harris had been using Noble's money to buck crap games here. One gambler said "somebody got tired of it."

The Harrises had just stepped into their car when the explosives—probably wired to the starter—demolished the car and shattered windows in nearby apartments.

Harris' body was smashed back into the twisted interior of the wreckage. His wife, face blackened, was found lying on the ground near the car.

Shortly after the blast a neighbor in the Harris apartment heard the telephone ring and answered it. She said a gruff voice warned, "tell the son of a ——'s friends they'll get the same" and then hung up.

Stalin 'Semi-Invalid,' London Paper Reports

LONDON, Nov. 22 (AP).—The liberal Evening Star, quoting "Some Western observers," today said "Marshall Stalin is now a semi-invalid.'

"But nobody knows exactly what is wrong with him and the Russians have not been told at all about his prolonger absences from the Kremlin," the paper said.

Correction

Doctor Charged in Operation

A 33-year-old physician was charged yesterday with performing an abortion in his office November 16 on a 21-year-old mother of three children.

Dr. John W. Sabastian, 3801 Jay st. ne., was released under $2000 bond and his case was continued for a preliminary hearing December 13.

Police said he performed the illegal operation on the young mother, a Government clerk, in his office at 2033 Benning rd., ne. The woman was taken to Gallinger Hospital the same day and placed on the critical list police said. Her condition has improved and is now good, according to hospital authorities.

Sabastian was arrested Tuesday night at his office by Homicide Squad Detective Sergt. C. R. Winemiller.

Engineer Acquitted

REGGIO, Italy, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—A railroad engineer who was arrested five years ago after a train wreck in which nine lions escaped from circus cars and killed three men was acquitted today of murder charges.

One On the Aisle

Gripping Moments In Guerilla Story

By Richard L. Coe

"AMERICAN GUERILLA IN THE PHILIPPINES," at the Palace, is a World War II adventure with both virtues and drawbacks. For me, the virtues outweighed the drawbacks because (1) I know little about the locale, and (2) I'm cynically hardened to expect the drawbacks that are herein painfully evident.

Tyrone Power stars in this adaptation of Ira Wolfert's best-selling novel about an American naval officer who worked with the natives during the Jap occupation. The entire picture was filmed on the islands in Technicolor and both the settings and partially native cast make many of the scenes impressive. The Wolfert tome is outside my ken, but it's evident that many of the episodes in creating an intelligence radio unit for MacArthur's headquarters are found on fact. They're mighty interesting.

The drawbacks include the inevitable romance, this time Eternal Love between the hero and the French wife, eventually, wouldn't you know it, widow of a planter, and the all-too-divinely prompt return of MacArthur just when the hero and his followers are sewed up tight for earthly destruction. I don't know how Wolfert handled either the love interest or the connecting episodes, but I'm told he did them differently. At all events, I'm inclined to feel Twentieth Century-Fox cheapens things purposely by calling this "A Diary of Love Under Fire!"

However, I don't know why anyone should be so cloud-anchored as to expect matters otherwise, since, having spent a mint on its island Technicolor expedition, the company clearly figured that only by falling back on the trite and untrue could it recoup its investment from the love-yearning masses. Yes, I grant you it would have been a welcome thing to have a wartime picture without Omnipresent True Love, MacArthur Worship and the Wisecracking Enlisted Man Who Wants to Get Back to The Garage in Pocatello. Still, in an imperfect world one expects just such perfection from the movies.

So the details of chasing into island interiors, of creating a radio network out of old tin cans, of watching the natives kill incipient Quislings, of attending occasional fete of the cheerful Filipinos and risking constant sudden death all add up to some idea of what the men from Motor Torpedo Squadron 3 went through. It was adventure out of this century and in detail is fascinating.

In Defense of Power

Of the cast, Tyrone Power, in the heftiest part, fills the bill exactly. It's always comforting to think there are such men as Power about, resourceful, inevitably right and physically perfect. Cynics are inclined to scoff at the fellow, but I'm generally able to accept him for what he's supposed to be, Our Time's Superman.

Micheline Prelle is less fortunate in the baldly cooked-up role of the French gal, Technicoloredly eye-splitting, the glamorous cog in the shiny machine. Tom Ewell is the fides Achates of the enlisted ranks and Tommy Cook is outstanding as the native schoolmaster turned guerilla. Nope, that's not MacArthur in the final shots; it's Actor Robert Barrat done up in brass and sunglasses.

Swallowing the drawbacks, I found this one an instructive and sometimes gripping yarn on an adventure of which I know next to nothing.

IT'S CAGNEY: Jimmy Cagney, with crew cut and a buss from Virginia Mayo, seems to be a cadet in "The West Point Story," the Technicolor musical at the Warner and Ambassador which also stars Doris Day, Gene Nelson and Gordon MacRae

MATINEES also are billed for the town's two live theaters, "Born Yesterday," the Judy Holliday triumph, at the Gayety, and "The Taming of the Shrew" at the cheerful Arena Stage.

It's Official: Georgia vs. Texas A&M

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE OLD GRADS, some of them almost of draft-age, are getting restive with the big game only one day distant. It is Tech vs. Eastern tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium for the Inter-High School championship, the biggest doings of the season in schoolboy football.

After five years, Eastern is back in the title game. With Tech, the experience is neither so recent nor novel. Under Coach Ed Solomon, the old UCLA quarterback, the Techs have been in three of the last four titular contests, but smarting somewhat from defeats in 1946 and '49.

POVICH

It's a battle of teams unbeaten in the Interhigh League, with both of them tied once—Eastern by Anacostia High, and Tech by last year's champs, Wilson. Eastern's T-Formation squad has perhaps been the most spectacular, with a touchdown in the last 13 seconds to tie Anacostia, and then that 3-2 victory in the re-play.

Tomorrow night's contest offers another test of the T-Formation, as executed by Eastern, against the old-fashioned single-wing as exemplified by Tech. Thus far, Tech has been generaling the most power, with its 33 touchdowns in six league games against Eastern's 21 in seven contests.

THIS IS the game that annually draws the college scouts, and they'll have eyes peeled and scholarships waiting for the talent that is graduating. Since the Washington Post began sponsoring the title games in 1946, the stars who emerged have moved spectacularly into college ranks.

Georgetown's top running back, Bugs Thompson, was the hero of Tech's 14-7 victory over Central in 1947, when he scored one touchdown, set up the other. Julius Poms, off that same Tech team is playing regular tackle for William and Mary.

Central's beaten crew sent up Bill Wallace to become a regular tackle for Columbia, and it's tailback, Jimmy Pantos, is now the bright star of the Maryland freshmen. Coach Jim Tatum envisions young Pantos as the lad who, perhaps next year will be the regular quarterback of the Terrapins' Split T.

Leo Speros, Wilson's backfield ace of the 1949 game, is now at Bullis Prep and headed for Navy, and his teammate, Ray Fox, is in the backfield of the G. W. Freshmen. At G. W., they're acclaiming him as a better runner than Andy Davis.

EASTERN IS TAKING a newly-developed threat into the game, in placement kicker Dave Keys, whose tremendous 35-yard field goal against Anacostia boosted his school into the title game. With extra points highly important in schoolboy football, Keys may represent an edge for Eastern. When it is considered that Bill Dudley last week missed 26-yard and 30-yard kicking attempts for the Redskins, Schoolboy Keys' winning kick from 35 yards out was sensational.

Tech's counter-threat to Jimmy Sullivan, Eastern's talented southpaw passer who operates from the quarterback post, is John Wege, 190-pound fullback who both passes and runs. Tailbacks Benny Colandreo and Stan Kernan will test both the Eastern line and its flanks with their ball-carrying.

Eastern's backfield lines up like a transplanted bit of the Ould Sod, with Tom McHan, Danny O'Neill, and Pat McDougall teaming with Sullivan on offense. McHan, righthanded passer, operates the team when it goes into the split-T, and has been slightly devastating with the optional pass-or-run plays with Halfback Ralph Sita as his chief target.

THAT EASTERN plays the game for keeps was seen in its pre-title affair with Anacostia when Coach Dick Mentzer's lads were penalized 127 yards, much of it for over-enthusiasm, compared to the mere 10-yards penalty handed Anacostia. But Tech has been welcoming bruising battles all season, and doing very well.

The boys are literally playing tomorrow night's game for themselves. The entire receipts go into the Interhigh Equipment Fund, which is woefully lacking in money to outfit the school teams properly. On many a high school squad, all of the players except the regulars are forced to suit up in hand-me-down equipment that doesn't offer the best kind of protection. But they haven't squawked yet.

So, you ought to make it a point to cadge a couple of tickets to the affair tomorrow night and watch two gangs of kids play their hearts out for that title which stacks up as the biggest thing in their young lives. You'll see some swell football, and you'll help some kid to get the kind of equipment that will ease the bumps next season.

Last Football Contest

Hoyas, Colonials Hard One to Pick

GEORGETOWN and George Washington clash Saturday at Griffith Stadium in this season's most interesting homegrown rivalry.

George Washington has beaten Georgetown the past two years but Saturday's game looks like an even proposition, possibly an edge in Georgetown's favor.

This game is one of the difficult results to pick in The Washington Post's football contest, last of the season.

The contest winner will receive a double award. He will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, December 2, as well as roundtrip, firstclass transportation for two persons.

Shoemaker Pulls Out of Race With Joe Culmone

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 22.—Just when an elaborate stage was being set for Monday's scheduled duel here between the Nation's two leading riders, Jockey Willie Shoemaker sent word from Hollywood Park, Calif., that he wasn't coming.

Shoemaker ostensibly bowed out of his head-to-head duel with Joe Culmone in a terse statement signed by the West Coast rider; Harry Silbert, his agent, and Bert Thompson, Jockey Guild representative.

It declared, "The trip is canceled."

The gimmick behind the cancellation, according to Hollywood Park press box sources, was the Thoroughbred Racing Association's rule that a member track can't pay expenses of any jockey, horse or trainer.

Hollywood Park is a member of the TRA. Bowie once was but dropped its membership.

Thompson, the Jockey Guild representative and an adviser to Shoemaker, was doing most of the talking.

Might Start Controversy

Said Thompson, "After thinking it over, I told Shoemaker to drop the idea. It might cause some controversy and bad feeling. Perhaps it would set a precedent that would hurt relations between California tracks and the Jockey Guild."

It was Thompson, earlier, who was all for the proposed trip that would pit Shoemaker against the sensational young Italian, Culmone.

At that time, Thompson said, "It's a nice break for a jockey to be invited East. He would have a chance to meet Washington officials. I think Shoemaker could be an ambassador of good will for a profession that's taken many undeserved raps."

Although Thompson was doing the talking, it was learned that Hollywood Park Vice President Jack L. Mackenzie took a critical view of the proposed trip.

Early this fall, Hollywood invited out Culmone and his agent, Slim Edwards. It told the boys, though, it would be "unethical" for it to pay their expenses.

It didn't have anything to do with Shoemaker's decision, but Culmone had a big day here today, riding three winners.

Legion Clash Listed for ByrdStadium December 9

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The Presidential Cup was filled yesterday.

Texas A. & M. and Georgia agreed—officially—to meet in the American Legion-sponsored affair at Maryland's Byrd Stadium, December 9.

Neither team was rated among the first 26 in the Associated Press poll last week, but game officials had their cup of joy filled to the brim with the acceptance of two "name" teams who have made more than their share of bowl history.

And that's a lot better than many thought the Cup people could come up with.

Each team has a record for which it doesn't have to apologize.

Georgia Lost Only One

Georgia, for example, trampled Maryland, 27-7, and walloped Mississippi State, conqueror of Tennessee, 27-0. The Bulldogs lost their only game to strong Alabama, 14-7.

On the debit side, and there is one, unheralded St. Mary's tied the Georgians, 7-7. So did North Carolina, 0-0, and L. S. U., 13-13. And winless Boston College gave Georgia a fit before succumbing, 19-7.

Texas A. & M. lost to Oklahoma's No. 1 team by 34-28 when Leon Heath ran 4 yards for a score in the last 37 seconds. The top-ranked Sooners had to drive 65 yards to pull that one out.

The Aggies' proudest boast is their 25-20 win over Southern Methodist. They also lost one-touchdown decisions to Baylor and Rice and have a 6-3 record.

Aggies Have Texas Left

One of the big "ifs" in whether or not the game here will be a huge success hinges on a Texas A. & M. engagement with the University of Texas, the Nation's fifth ranking team. That comes up today a week, November 30, Texas' Thanksgiving, at Austin. Georgia still has to play Furman Saturday and its traditional foe, Georgia Tech, December 2.

Under astute Wally Butts, Georgia hasn't lost a post-season game and that includes appearances in the three major bowls.

Georgia defeated T.C.U., 40-26, in the 1942 Orange Bowl; U.C.L.A., 9-0, in the 1943 Rose Bowl; Texas, 20-6, in the 1946 Houston Oil Bowl; North Carolina, 20-10, in the 1947 Sugar Bowl, and tied Maryland, 20-20, in the 1948 Gator Bowl.

Texas A. & M. has a 2-2 bowl mark. The Aggies beat Tulane, 14-13, in the 1939 Sugar Bowl and Fordham, 13-12, in the 1940 Cot-

Wyoming And W-L Can Clinch Titles

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—The Wyoming Cowboys, shooting for a perfect season against oft-beaten Denver, are the tastiest dish on tomorrow's skimpy Thanksgiving football program.

Wyoming with eight straight wins is a topheavy choice to add Denver to its list of victims. Denver with a 2-6-1 record is not expected to stop twelve-ranked Wyoming's bid to nail down the Skyline Six title, not even at Denver.

The Southern Conference can be clinched by Washington and Lee with a victory over Richmond which has won only two of eight starts. Washington and Lee, beaten only by Virginia and Tennessee in nine gimes, is No. 19 in the Nation in the Associated Press poll.

The east has little to cheer about except a morning game between Columbia and Brown at Providence.

Kansas plays at Missouri in a game that sometimes rates with the best. This year Oklahoma's all-winning sweep relegated both to also rans in the Big Seven race.

Tulsa, the Missouri Valley champs, entertain Arkansas, Nevada plays at Wichita, Dayton at Chattanooga, Virginia Tech at Virginia Military, Tufts at Trinity, Bradley at California Poly, and Gettysburg at Franklin and Marshall.

Caps' Foul Shooting Cuts Down Tri-City

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

The Washington Caps showed no respect for Tri-City's lofty position atop the Western Division and defeated the Blackhawks, 65-60, last night in a National Basketball Association game at Uline Arena.

Tri-City outscored Washington, 40-36, from the floor, but the Caps dropped in 29 out of 38 free throws to sway the game in their favor. Tri-City converted only 20 out of 31 from the foul line.

A slim gathering of 1218 watched the low scoring game.

Freddie Scolari played his usual role of high scorer for the Caps although he made only 13 points.

His most important points were two foul shots which put Washington ahead, 18-17, at the first quarter mark, and three more which pulled Washington up to a 44 all tie in the third quarter.

It was the third victory for Washington in its last four games, and brought the Caps' season record to 5-7. Tonight, the Caps travel to New York to meet the New York Knickerbockers.

Bill Sharman, Washington's promising young rookie from Southern California, twisted his ankle severely in a roughhouse under the basket midway in the second quarter, and was carried off the floor. He was taken to Georegtown Hospital to have X-rays to determine a possible break.

Pistons Put 19-18 Freeze On Lakers

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 22 (AP).—In a record low-scoring National Basketball Association game, rookie Larry Foust dropped a basket with six seconds to go to give his Fort Wayne Pistons a 19-18 win from the Minneapolis Lakers tonight.

The victory cracked the Lakers' home-court string of 29, which had extended since November 27, 1949. The Chicago Stags won the last game here against the home club on that date.

It was Fort Wayne's first road win of the season and put the visitors into second place in the Western Division, demoting the losers to third.

Only eight field goals were scored in the game, four by each club. That broke the previous pro basketball record of 13. The total score of 37 points was another law for the pro ranks. The previous bottom was 38.

Fort Wayne played a control contest from the start and held the ball as long as three minutes at one point without making any try for shots. The Pistons were behind going into the fourth quarter and stayed there until Foust hit on an out-of-bounds play.

Mikan got 15 of the Lakers' 18 points, including their four field goals and Johnny Oldham was tops for the visitors with five counters.

1500 Cheer Hero Keys at Eastern High

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Eastern's 1500 students stood up and gave a five-minute ovation yesterday to the young fellow who kicked their football team into tomorrow night's Interhigh Football Championship Game against McKinley Tech at Griffith Stadium.

It was Eastern's last pep rally in the school auditorium before the title game, and Assistant Coach Sherman Rees was introducing each player who participated in Tuesday's 3-2 Group I playoff victory over Anacostia.

"And last but not least," said Rees, "here is . . ." Rees' last words were lost in the terrific cheers. Everybody recognized Dave Keys.

Keys, a slight, blond, second string halfback, placekicked a tremendous 35-yard field goal for Eastern's three points. And he smartly conceded Anacostia its two points when he intentionally grounded the ball in his end zone for a safety rather than risking a punt into a fierce headwind.

It was the first field goal by an Interhigh player in five years. And besides winning the game, it was a happy omen for the Ramblers. The last previous field goal was kicked by another Easterner, Jerry Osbourn, in 1945. That was the last year Eastern won the title.

Eastern and Anacostia had to meet in the playoff because, earlier in the year, they had battled to a 12-12 tie. Ironically, Keys came within inches of winning that first one for Eastern.

His team scored a touchdown in the last 13 seconds to tie it up at 12 all, and Keys was rushed in to try for the extra point. His placement hit the crossbar, bounced into the air, and landed on the wrong side. It was no good.

Keys, a junior, and a crackerjack shortstop, is used by Eastern only to punt, and placekick extra points, kickoffs and, of course, field goals. The field goal that beat Anacostia was the first ever tried by Keys.

Dave has made good 12 conversions out of 16 ties this season. He credits his good kicking to early Boys Club soccer playing.

Since turning to football at Eastern, he makes it a daily habit to practice placekicking for an hour. He starts at the seven-yard line and works his way back to the 40. He says that he has made as many as five in a row from the 35.

Dave says that he likes to have the ball leaning back slightly toward him, and he tries to kick it about two inches from the bottom.

Texas Picks Tennessee

DALLAS, Nov. 22 (AP).—Tennessee tonight was selected to play Texas in the Cotton Bowl January 1.

Tennessee has played in all the other major bowls—Rose, Sugar, and Orange. The Vols lost to Southern California 14-0 in the 1940 Rose Bowl and to the same team 25-0 in 1945. They beat Oklahoma 17-0 in the 1939 Orange Bowl game and lost to Rice 8-0 in 1947. They lost to Boston College 19-13 in the 1941 Sugar Bowl game but beat Tulsa 14-7 in 1943.

Texas has played in the Cotton, Sugar, and Orange Bowls. The Longhorns won the 1943 Cotton Bowl game 14-7 over Georgia Tech, tied Randolph Field 7-7 in 1944, and beat Missouri 40-27 in 1946.

They beat Alabama 27-7 in the Sugar Bowl in '948 and whipped Georgia 41-28 in the Orange Bowl in 1949.

Penn Guard Lineman of Week; Ward Rated High

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—For his outstanding role in crushing Wisconsin's attack on Saturday at Philadelphia, Bernie Lemonick, 200-pound defensive guard of the Penn Quakers, has been chosen as the Associated Press' lineman of the week.

The two who pressed Lemonick hardest for the week's laurels were Elmer Costa of North Carolina State, a tackle, and Bobbie Ward of Maryland, a guard. Each received four ecstatic nominations from Southern experts.

Tech Neighbor Named Collins Says Eastern Will Win Highs Title on Field and at Gate

Principal John Paul Collins yesterday sounded Eastern's battle cry for tomorrow night's Interhigh Football Championship Game against McKinley Tech at Griffith Stadium.

"We will beat Tech on the football field," said Collins, "and we will sell more tickets than Tech.

"I know Tech very well," said Collins. "I live right in the middle of the Tech neighborhood. They have a nice group of students and some fine football players. But let's face it, Eastern's are better."

Collins had some figures to back up his statement on ticket sales.

"We qualified for the championship game only Tuesday by beating Anacostia," said Collins, "and in one day, we sold more than 1400 tickets. There are two days left. Watch our smoke."

Collins, a Marine veteran of both World Wars, knows his football. He was a 175-pound halfback at St. John's High here and at St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, and came back to Washington in the 1920s to coach football at Eastern and Business Highs.

He has been one of the leading advocates of a more emphasized school athletic program for years.

McKinley had its last big pep assembly yesterday for the championship game, and many of the old grads came back to address the student body.

Among them were Andy Davis, class of '45 and Clarence Drayer, '46, both members of the George Washington University team.

The cheerleaders staged a mock trial with Tech the defendant, accused of "murdering Eastern." The verdict was "guilty." When the skit was completed, 10 members of the football team, who sing in the Boys Choir, brought the house down with their rendition of "Dry Bones."

Dr. Charles Bish, Tech principal, announced that Tech has sold more than 1500 tickets this week and expects to have several times that number of rooters at the game.

Shoemaker Pulls Out of Culmone Duel

the year, 336 victories to 333 for Shoemaker, Culmone won with His Image ($7); True Dream ($8.80) and Eugarp ($6).

Word of Shoemaker's cancellation was a real crusher here. It came at the same moment efforts were being made for him to meet President Truman. A big reception at Washington's Statler Hotel also was being arranged.

Perhaps the greatest sufferer will be former Jockey Mark Fator, who himself was the country's leading rider in 1922.

Fator's young son, Lannie, was stricken with polio a few weeks ago. Plans were under way to arrange a special two-horse match race between Culmone and Shoemaker. All proceeds were going to for Fator, who could use them.

Racing Secretary John Turner, sr., was going to select two horses as closely matched as possible and let the boys draw straws for their mounts.

Eventually, Shoemaker and Culmone will hook up. Both plan to ride at Florida's Tropical Park.

Legion Game Chairman Charles T. Garity said that each team would receive 40 percent of the gross gate or a "substantial guarantee," whichever amount is greater.

Garity was asked to explain a line in the publicity release, "The game has been approved by President Harry S. Truman."

The Legion official said, "I went to the White House and President Truman gave the game his approval. I made it clear to the White House people that we weren't asking the President to 'promote' it.

"I feel that every good citizen in the country including those in the White House, should support this game for the Legion's welfare fund."

Asked if the President would attend the game, Garity said, "When we met, that was held inabeyance."

Texas A. & M. Athletic Director Barlow Irvin said, "We think it a great honor for our school to play in the first Presidential Cup. As years go by, I think it will grow.

"We're not interested in making money out of our appearance. It's a good trip for the boys and I think the publicity we receive will help us."

Little Potato Bowl Game Today On Ellipse

The Eastern and Western Branches of the Washington Boys' Club Football Conference meet in 80 and 90-pound football games in the Little Potato Bowl this morning on the Ellipse. The 80-pound game starts at 10 o'clock and the 90-pounders play at 11.

The 90-pound feature contest stacks up as an individual scoring duel and a championship game. Halfback Buddy Fontana of Eastern and Fullback Dave Wilkinson of Western are two of the leading scorers in the conference, Fontana scoring 14 touchdowns in seven league games, and Wilkinson 18.

Western has won six games and lost none, while Eastern has a 6-1 record. With a triumph today, Western could clinch the 90-pound championship.

Arlington Fans Parade To Stadium

By Bill Gilbert

Washington-Lee High of Arlington and George Washington of Alexandria meet in the Old Oaken Bucket football rivalry at 11 o'clock this morning, and every space in the 16,500-seat G. W. Stadium is expected to be taken.

The two schools have been practicing full-speed all week in pushing the game, which dates back to 1928.

W-L students, aided by their Booster Club, had 500 "Beat G. W." signs printed and posted them throughout Arlington.

W-L backers will parade from Arlington into the Alexandria stadium, with five floats and the school band providing the color.

G. W. has been spreading the word, too, with the aid of roving public-address systems in Alexandria. Both schools had rallies last night.

Washington-Lee has won eight games in the series, G. W. has been victorious five times, and two contests ended in ties.

Coach Ken Batson of W-L, who had a one-two punch all season in Fullback Sam Eberdt and Wingback Johnny Herrlein, will bank mostly on Eberdt today, since Herrlein has a badly bruised knee, and will see little action, if any.

Aiding Sam will be Eppie Riddle, Don Hobbs and Al Martinti, with Dick Brady filling in for Herrlein. On the line, the Little Generals, who have won six games and lost three, have one of the best guards in the area in Bobby Kaye, a 190-pounder. Two twins, Guard Pete and Center Paul Pomponio, also lead the forward wall, with 210-pound Dick Christian and Alan Carrico, 205, tackles, lending assistance.

Tailback Fordie Thompson and Wingback George Nolan are high scorers for G. W. this season, and will carry the brunt of the Presidents' attack today. Nolan has scored 11 touchdowns this year and Thompson nine while G. W. has been winning eight and losing one.

DEAR FOLKS: AT BOWIE

Jockey Bobby Mitchell, Adair, Okla. boy who hasn't had too much luck in Maryland this fall, ran into a suspension of five days at a time when he was striking his stride. Bobby was accused of failing to keep Ala Mowlee straight in the stretch run of Tuesday's fifth race. His mount finished third, was disqualified and was placed fourth. General Manager Ed O'Hara certainly deserves credit for trying to arrange the Culbone-Shoemaker head-on clash scheduled here Monday. It was a smart move if there ever was one. I haven't heard of so much interest hereabouts since Seabiscuit and War Admiral were matched in the Pimlico Special. See you on the rail.

Fairfax Plays Mt. Vernon for County Title

Mount Vernon's Majors and the Fairfax Rebels meet at 2:30 today at Fairfax for the mythical Fairfax County High School football championship.

Both schools are enjoying their most successful season in several years. The Majors have won seven games and lost two, and Fairfax has a 3-6 record, but is stronger than the record indicates.

Mount Vernon Coach Harry Lee will be shooting for his sixth triumph over Fairfax since he started at Mount Vernon. His teams have lost to Fairfax only twice and today's is the twelfth meeting over a 10-year span.

Quarterback Eddie West and Stan Kelly direct Mount Vernon's T-formation attack, and the best man for their hardoffs is Art Kuhn, 135-pound scatback, who has broken loose for several long touchdown runs this year.

The Majors will have to stop the passing combination of Quarterback "Skinny" Saffer to End Terry Cannon if they are to win the title. Cannon has scored 70 of his team's 110 points.

In another game today, Bullis Prep travels to Annapolis to meet the Navy Plebes in a 10 p. m. game. Bullis has a 5-2 mark this year and is favored to avenge its 63-0 loss last year to the Plebes.

Bold Favored In Endurance 'Cap at Bowie

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 22.—For those who yearn to fatten the bankroll before adding to the waist line, Bowie offers Thanksgiving Day racing to be featured by $10,000 added Endurance Handicap, a local fixture since 1922.

Brookmeade Stable appears to hold a drumstick over the juvenile field tomorrow with an aptly-named youngster—Bold. To enhance his chances is the fact that Joe Culmone will ride.

With Brookmeade's Fiddler as a running mate, Bold is likely to march postward his favorite despite the fact Endurance will mark only the third start of his career.

Bold, due to carry top weight of 120 pounds, will have to be at his best. He tackles Smart Opposition in Mrs. Nora A. Mikell's Repetoire, New York stake winner, and Cary C. Boshamer's King Clover, third in the futurity.

Others in the field of 13 are: S. D. Sidell's Fixation, Mrs. Jack Gunn's La-Bu-Te, W. C. Ensor's Hocotia, Jay Cee Farm's Patty's Day, T. G. May's Whirling Bat, Cedar Farm's Sar. C. E. Tuttle's Tenure, Joe Tocci's Bob Considine, Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Euclid.

Kansas State Coach Quits

MANHATTAN, Kans., Nov. 22 (AP).—Kansas State College is looking for a new head football coach tonight.

Ralph Graham called it quits today. For three years he has tried to rebuild the gridiron prestige, once his alma mater's under such coaches as Lynn Waldorf and Alvin (Bo) McMillin when Graham himself was running to Midwest football glory.

Even Ol' Bo Admits GW-Hoya Is Tossup

Even without a lie detector, GW Coach Bo Rowland allowed yesterday that his team's big game with Georgetown here Saturday is "pretty much a tossup."

That's a startling reversal of form for Rowland who usually strives to try to talk his team into being at least a one or two-touchdown underdog.

Of course, Old Bo was quick to add that GW would have to play its best ball of the season to win.

"That's my frank opinion," said Bo, "I feel this Georgetown team is far superior to the two we've beaten the past two years.

They had that lie detector on Rowland at the Touchdown Club's luncheon this week and it was good for laughs. But with or without a lie detector, you can't get too much out of him this week.

Bo hasn't a peer on the banquet circuit. He's as talented and humorous a speaker as we have around these parts. However, when he's talking for keeps about a game that's for keeps, the Arkadelphia, Ark., traveler can be pretty closemouthed.

Some indication of how he really feels about the game, though, may be gleaned from the fact that he was talking about what a fine place-kicker Georgetown's Dick Haesler is.

"In the type of game I expect," Bo explained, "that extra-point may mean everything."

Haesler is good. He's booted 13 of 14 this season and has a record of 23 of his last 24 attempts. GW's Johnny Shullenbarger is good, too. He's made good on 19 of his 22 shots this season.

NOTES: Shullenbarger, punter as well as place-kicker, has been suffering from flu all week . . . Odd thing about Shullie, he's the only one of 11 seniors who ever played on a GW squad that lost to Georgetown . . . That was in 1946, and the Colonials lost, 18-6, despite the fact that John was the running and passing star of the game . . . He was out of school for a year, that's why he's still around . . . Graduation will just about wipe out GW's offensive line . . . Play-their last games are Ends Charlie Butler, Bill Szanyi and Charlie Jones . . . Tackles Jim Feula and Clarence Drayer . . . Guard Charley Gunner and Center Tal Dredge . . . Other backs departing include Jimmy Kline and Pete Cordelli . . . Senior End Walt Savage had to turn in his suit because of injuries to both knees . . .

Howard Plays Lincoln Today At Ball Park

Howard University meets Lincoln at 2 p. m. in Griffith Stadium today in the forty-fifth renewal of the oldest Negro intercollegiate rivalry.

With a four-game winning streak and a record of 5-3, Howard enters the game against the Pennsylvanians a 10-point favorite.

Lincoln defeated St. Paul and Moravian but lost to Morgan State, Virginia Union and Hampton and played Delaware State to a scoreless tie.

The records could mean that Lincoln will be dangerous. In the series that dates back to 1894, Howard has only a slender edge, 20-17, with seven ties.

Irving (Moon) Mondschein, former NYU star, coaches the Oxford, Pa., invaders.

Halfback Roger Goodson is Howard's top scorer with three touchdowns and is trailed closely by Ed Neverson, Andy Carr, Sam Hoston and Ernie Davis, each of whom has scored two.

Park View, Bundy Grade School Champs

Park View and Bundy are the new fifth and sixth-grade champions of the Elementary School Touch Football League. Park View defeated Bundy, 6-0, for the fifth-grade crown, and Bundy took the sixth-grade title by romping over Lovejoy, 44-0.

Baxter Can't Even Win Over Referee

Laverne Baxter was disqualified after 15 minutes of his bout with Capt. Ruffy Silverstein in the feature wrestling match before 1900 at Turner's Arena.

After his disqualification for illegal holds, Baxter and Brown scuffled, but the two other referees, Benny Bortnick and Claudio Villa, separated them.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutts

27 Federal Agencies Are Given Priority To Obtain Workers

Twenty-seven Federal departments and agencies yesterday were given the authority to requisition additional employes they may need from other Government activities.

The agency list was set up under the Whitten rider which requires most Government personnel transactions to be made on a temporary basis after last September 1. The rider also authorizes the transfer of laid-off employes from nondefense agencies to "agency programs determined by the President to be related directly to national defense."

President Truman delegated his responsibility under the rider to Budget Director Frederick Lawton, and Lawton yesterday sent Federal officials his list of defense agencies. The Civil Service Commission is expected to use the list to grant reemployment rights to most career employes in other agencies who are transferred to "critical" jobs in the 27 "defense" agencies.

Meantime, the President put a ceiling of 150 on the number of employes in defense jobs who can be paid salaries from $11,200 to $14,000 annually. The number, however, can be changed every three months to allow additional jobs in the three top classified grades.

The President acted after he had been informed by the Budget Bureau and the Civil Service Commission that the defense agencies were seeking allocations of jobs in Grades 16, 17 and 18 that were out of proportion to the number authorized for the entire Federal service. His order also gave the Civil Service Commission the authority to "reconsider" some allocations it had already approved for unfilled jobs.

Congress fixed a ceiling of 400 in the top three grades when it authorized them a year ago. But in approving the Defense Production Act it gave the President the authority to approve additional defense jobs in those grades. The Army, Navy and Air Force, in a separate rider, were authorized to increase their top classified jobs by a third.

The Budget Bureau list of "defense" agencies follows:

Executive Office of the President, Atomic Energy Commission, Central Intelligence Agency, Defense Transport Administration, Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration, Office of Requirements and Allocations, and the Office of Materials and Facilities, Commerce's National Production Authority and Office of International Trade, the Defense Department, Interior's Petroleum Administration for Defense, Solid Fuels Administration, Metals and Minerals Administration, Defense Power Administration, and the Administrator's Office for National Defense, Justice's Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Labor's Office of Defense Manpower, Treasury's Coast Guard and Customs Service, Economic Cooperation Administration, Economic Stabilization Agency, Interstate Commerce's Bureau of Service, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, Selective Service System, Subversive Activities Control Board, and the entire State Department except the International Boundary and Water Commission and the International Claims Commission.

The agencies were cautioned to use the list only for administration of the Whitten rider. They were warned not to use the list as a general classification of "defense" agencies as many agencies not included have a direct bearing on national defense.

Employes who are laid off from nondefense agencies and who are transferred to the "defense" agencies can't be given salaries or grades higher than they held last September 1.

ODTA: Clarence Barker yesterday was appointed administrative officer for the Office of Defense Transport Administration. He transferred from Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Economics where he was its job classification officer. An editor and author, Barker also served previously in the Office of Education and the United States Employment Service.

Truman Appoints Hildreth Vice Chairman of Sesqui

MELVIN D. HILDRETH
. . . Succeeds Carter Barron

President Truman yesterday named Melvin D. Hildreth, Democratic national committeeman for the District, as executive vice chairman of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission.

Hildreth fills the vacancy caused last week by the death of Carter T. Barron.

Taking office at noon, Hildreth held an immediate conference with Paul Massmann, general manager of the commission.

Hildreth said he was strongly in favor of a repeat performance next summer of Paul Green's Sesqui drama, "Faith of Our Fathers."

He added that he and Massmann had discussed the possibility of revising the drama script to place more emphasis on the development of the District of Columbia. Green would do the rewriting according to Hildreth.

After all, he said, this is the sesquicentennial of "our town," as well as that of the Nation's Capital.

Hildreth said he would also like to see the new Sesquicentennial Amphitheater in Rock Creek Park renamed the Carter T. Barron Memorial Amphitheater.

Long active in the Democratic Party, Hildreth was general chairman of the 1949 Inaugural Committee. He is a lawyer with offices in the Evans Building.

Coca-Cola Refuses to Prosecute

$16,000 Embezzlement Charge Against Cashier Is Dropped

Embezzlement charges against James N. Eshelman, 40-year-old Coca-Cola Co., cashier, were nolprossed in Municipal Court yesterday.

Eshelman was accused of embezzling more than $16,000 November 2 from the company plant at 400 7th st. sw. He was arrested a day later in Athens, Ohio, with $13,000 and readily admitted taking the company funds.

Assistant United States Attorney Warren Wilson told reporters the cast was nol prossed because Coca-Cola officials refused to prosecute their former employe. Eshelman, who had worked for the company for 25 years, made full restitution, Wilson said.

Wilson said a psychiatrist at St. Elizabeths Hospital had examined Eshelman and found "no evidence of any criminality." Eshelman has agreed to take psychotherapeutic treatment, Wilson said.

The money was stolen from two safes. It represented receipts, night deposits of drivers and the payroll, according to plant manager Frank D. Noel.

Eshelman and his wife live at 1126 S. 16th st., Arlington. He no longer works for the Coca-Cola company.

State Officials Invited for Defense Talks

The District Commissioners yesterday invited the Maryland and Virgina attorney generals here to discuss legal problems in interstate civil defense planning.

The object of the meeting, on December 4, will be to seek how to eliminate legal obstacles to mutual aid in an atomic attack. The State officials will confer with District Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

Points to be discussed, civil defense officials said, are:

Who would pay the hospital bills if a District worker is injured doing civil defense work in a nearby county? Who pays for supplies used by one jurisdiction and furnished by another? Will additional legislation be needed before such agreements can be worked out?

9.01% Rent Boost Recommended for Chancery Apts.

A 9.01 percent rent increase on 190 units at the Chancery Apartments, 3130 Wisconsin ave. nw., was recommended yesterday by District Rent Control Examiner William T. Kane.

His recommendation becomes final November 30 unless appeal for review is made to the District rent control administrator by then.

With the increase, monthly rents that now range from $50 to $125 would be raised to range from $54 to $136.25. Owner Jerry Maiatico had asked a 13.9 percent boost to compensate for increased operating costs. Rents on the apartments were last adjusted eight years ago.

On Redistricting

Fairfax Court Seen Having 3 Alternatives

Three ways are open to accomplish the redistricting of Fairfax County requested by a group of petitions to the Circuit Court last Monday.

According to State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, the court can resort to any of the following alternatives to meet the request for a revision of the county's six existing magisterial districts:

1. To proceed with redistricting without assistance or advice outside the court.

2. To appoint an advisory committee to make recommendations to the court, with the court itself having power to make a final decision.

3. To appoint a redistricting commission vested with power to make a final decision.

Regardless of which method is employed, Clarke emphasized, any qualified voter in the county can submit for the court's consideration a plan of redistricting. He pointed out the court may either increase the number of districts in the county or revise the boundaries of existing zones.

The petition filed on Monday by David Lawrence, former vice chairman of the county's Government study commission, asked that the number of districts be increased from six to nine.

During the recent campaign for a change in county government, the existing lineup of districts was criticized on the ground that three of the six districts contain only 17 percent of the county's total population. Under the county executive form of government, approved in a referendum November 7, each district will be represented—as it now is—by one member on the board of supervisors.

Prisoner Slashes His Wrist Minutes After Conviction

A 32-year-old prisoner slashed his left wrist minutes after a District jury convicted him yesterday of second-degree murder.

He is William Hightower, 32, of 1816 Swann st. nw. His condition at District Jail last night was described as "not serious."

Hightower was convicted before Judge David A. Pine of the murder of John C. Staples, 33, of 1412 T st. nw. Staples had been stabbed in the chest and abdomen. He died on September 11.

The jury returned its guilty verdict after deliberating an hour. Hightower was sent to a detention cell at the court for transfer to District Jail.

A few minutes later, a guard saw Hightower sitting with a stream of blood pouring from his arm. A tourniquet was applied and the blood stemmed.

The prisoner sobbed wildly and struggled against the guards who tried to aid him. The gash, an inch and a half long, left a pool of blood.

United States Marshal W. Bruce Matthews said that a search of the cell area and of Hightower's person disclosed no weapon.

Matthews added Hightower had sharp, long fingernails. Blood and body tissue were found under the nails of Hightower's right hand, Matthews said.

The marshal added that Hightower appeared emotionally distraught. Other court observers said when the verdict was reached, a woman and child in the courtroom wept and screamed.

The maximum sentence for second-degree murder is 15 years to life imprisonment. Judge Pine set no date for sentencing.

Boy in Hospital After 20-Foot Race Track Fall

Four-year-old Michael Clayton Shipley was reported improving yesterday from serious injuries he suffered Tuesday when he fell 20 feet from the grandstand at the Bowie racetrack.

Doctors at Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale said the boy has a cerebral concussion and is still under observation for possible internal injuries. His condition is still listed as serious.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon M. Shipley, of 15-M Laurel Hill rd., Greenbelt.

Youth, Boy Badly Hurt In Traffic

Teenager Helping To Push Car Run Over by Truck; Cyclist Is Victim

A youth and a boy were critically hurt yesterday in traffic accidents.

Francis William Talbert, 17, of 4620 Minnesota ave. ne., was injured about 8:45 p. m. when a truck attempting to push a car ran over him.

Police said the truck, driven by Donald Hansberry 19, of 4623 Minnesota ave. ne., was pushing another vehicle. Talbert was riding the bumpers to see that they were together. When the car they were pushing started, Talbert fell off and was run over. He was admitted to Gallinger Hospital with critical injuries. The accident occurred at Nash st. and Minnesota ave. ne.

Earlier Richard Roberts, 11, of 2837 Chesapeake st. nw., was also critically injured when he rode his bicycle out of an alley at 35th and Albemarle sts. nw., into the side of a passing automobile.

Police said the auto was driven by Mrs. Edith Bralove, 35, of 2801 Rock Creek dr. nw. The Chevy Chase rescue squad took the boy to Emergency Hospital. Hospital officials said he suffered a fractured skull.

Three Air Force enlisted men and their dates were injured in a two-car crash early yesterday at Connecticut ave. and K st. nw.

The six injured, police said, had left a Bolling Field dance at 1:10 a. m., an hour before the accident. The driver of the second car was unhurt.

Treated at Emergency Hospital were:

Pfc. Camille Cestare, 20, of the Women of the Air Force, who suffered a broken right arm, head injuries and multiple cuts and bruises.

Sergt. Joanne Sonego, 21, of the WAF, a head injury.

Miss Dorothy Stevens, 23, of 630 Oakland st., N., Arlington, neck injury.

Sergt. Austin Stephanoff, 21, the driver, a nose laceration and knee injury.

Corpl. Norwood T. Hoecker, 20, bruises.

The Air Force personnel, all stationed at Bolling Field, were transferred to Bolling Hospital after emergency treatment.

Driver of the second car was Robert L. Thomas, 35, f 115 D st. se., police said. Thomas is a buyer at Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Investigators said Thomas, southbound on Connecticut ave., hit the rear of Stephanoff's vehicle, traveling west on K st., sending it across the street into a tree.

Damages to Thomas' car were estimated at $200, to Stephanoff's, $450. No charges were brought, police said.

Man Jailed 6 Months For Death of Passenger

Jesse M. Myers, 37, a plumber of 2419 Naylor rd. se., was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday for responsibility in the traffic death of Charles Ricketts, 26, of Washington Grove, Md.

Ricketts was a passenger in Myers' automobile when it crashed into a tree October 21 on Rockville pike at Montrose, Md.

Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee of Rockville Police Court also imposed a fine of $500 or 90 days in jail, concurrent with the other sentence, on Myers' conviction for driving while drunk. Charges of operating on a revoked permit were dismissed, and sentence was suspended on charges of reckless driving.

Negligent Homicide Count Uncontested by Trucker

Charles C. Snoddy, 36-year-old truck driver, pleaded nolo contendere in Municipal Court yesterday to a charge of negligent homicide. His case was referred to the probation office for a presentence investigation.

Snoddy was driving a concrete-laden truck that struck and killed Mrs. Mary Gentilcore, 63, of 1217 Varnum st. ne., August 31 at 12th and Quincy sts. ne., police reported.

Mrs. Gentilcore was alighting from a streetcar with an armful of groceries when she was hit, police said. She died a few hours later.

In another negligent homicide case late Tuesday night, a Municipal Court jury cleared a Capital Transit bus driver of negligence in the traffic death of an 89-year-old pedestrian March 26.

The bus operator is James C. Sturgill, 21, 646 F st. sw. Cavour O. Bohrer, 5000 14th st. nw., was the victim.

Sturgill testified he stopped for a traffic light at 14th and I sts. nw., with one car in front of him. When the light changed and the car ahead started, he started his bus, Sturgill said. Bohrer was walking across the street, obscured by the two moving cars, and stepped directly in front of the bus, Sturgill testified.

Streetcars Crush, Seriously Hurt Man

Leonard Montgomery, 62, a Capital Transit mechanic who lives at 3409 M st. nw., suffered a possible fractured pelvis yesterday when he was crushed between two streetcars in the car barn at 5246 Wisconsin ave. nw., police said. He is in Emergency Hospital in a serious condition.

3 Men Wrestle With 16-Foot Regal Python As 35 Snakes Move Into Zoo for Winter

By Joe Armstrong—The Washington Post
King Cobra relaxes in his cage at the Zoo after his trip down from Thurmont BATTLE ROYAL—Gordon Gaver (right) and Zoo Keepers Mario de Prato (left) and Russell M. Morrison (center) tussle with 16-foot regal python who balked at being transferred from his traveling box to cage at the Zoo here. Python curled around De Prato's wrist and it took the efforts of Gaver and Morrison to prevent him from breaking it.

It was moving day for the snakes yesterday at the Zoo.

Visitors didn't realize it but behind scenes three men were wrestling a 16-foot regal python out of his trunk and into a cage.

The regal python is nonpoisonous. He can only squeeze you to death. This one wrapped himself several times around the left arm of one of the men. But the men moved quickly and at the end were none the worse for wear.

Occasion was the annual removal by Gordon Gaver of his snakes from Jungleland Snake Farm at Thurmont, Md., to the Zoo for the winter. The snakes traveled in Gaver's station wagon.

Making the trip were a 14-foot king cobra, believed to be the largest on exhibit in the United States; a large Gaboon viper, a yellow cape cobra, five Indian hooded cobras, a 11-foot boa constricter, a 10-foot African rock python, an 8-foot Indian rock python and various other crawling folk.

Making room for the king meant making Displaced Snakes out of 22 snakes that had heretofore been sharing one cage.

With a snake-hook principal reptile keeper Russell M. Morrison lifted the 22 DSs into other quarters. They rattled and hissed, but after all they were only poisonous timber and prairie rattlers. Then came the King, in a cloth bag inside a suit case. He was put, bag and all, in the cage, where he crawled out of the bag and shot out his fangs.

Next came the 16-foot regal python. Three men can wrestle a regal python. Gaver and Morrison were aided by Mario de Prato, keeper of the bears, in transferring him to his winter home.

Another Fight Looms Over 'Outside' Milk

Embassy Dairy Asks D. C. to Continue Okay For U. S. Installations

Another milk controversy loomed last night.

The protagonists, as in many battles before, were the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, versus the independent Embassy Dairy.

James J. Ward, owner of Embassy, disclosed he is opposing dropping of a District policy permitting processing of "outside" milk for sale to Government installations and areas outside the city.

The association has been pressing for its abolition, contending no local dairies are buying "outside" milk any longer and there is sufficient milk from farms inspected by the District.

The city director of public health, Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, has been considering recommending to the commissioners that the policy be dropped, but said yesterday he wanted to make sure there were no snags before doing so.

Ward explained that although he is not buying any "outside" milk now, he may want to do so after January 1 since his dairy is bidding on many Government contracts within a 200-mile radius of Washington and association prices may be high and supplies low.

An association spokesman said milk sold to local dairies for delivery to Government installations is available at a reduced price—$1.28 a hundredweight less than milk for home consumption—and "by January 1, we can take care of any demands that come along, including Government contracts."

Ward, speaking for the city's largest independent, said the policy should be retained on a standby basis in case a shortage should develop. He pointed out that in 1942 it took three weeks to arrange for "outside" milk when local sources were unable to meet the demand of Government orders.

Embassy began buying 4000 gallons of milk a day from the association on Sunday—the first purchases in 5 years. The dairy and the association have been bitter foes for many years.

Former Model Would Divorce Navy Captain

Mrs. Eilene Latta Lawrence, whose maintenance suit here last year ended with a financial settlement, yesterday filed suit for divorce in Los Angeles from Navy Capt. Harold A. Latta Lawrence.

The 43-year-old former freelance model said they were married in April 22, 1948, and separated April 1, 1949.

In her maintenance action here, she had charged that her spouse was on "close and intimate terms" with Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, 69, (R. Mass.)

Both the Congresswoman and Capt. Latta Lawrence denied the charges. He countered that the wife's suit was designed to get newspaper headlines and that she and a Los Angeles dentist had been "living together." This also was denied.

Last May Mrs. Latta Lawrence said that she accepted a "financial settlement" and was dropping the maintenance action.

Dugan to Press For Higher Taxes On Pinball Devices

Arlington County Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan said last night he will move adoption at the board's December 2 meeting of a new county ordinance raising yearly taxes on pinball machines from $25 to $250 per machine.

If necessary, Dugan added, he would vote to "raise the county tax on all such machines to $1000 in order to definitely eliminate them and their operators once and for all." He said there was "no place in Arlington County" for the operators.

The new pinball tax ordinance now is being drawn up by Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker, who ordered recent police raids in which eight illegal "free play" pinball machines were confiscated.

Man, 74, Gets 10-30 Years In Stab Death

A 74-year-old man yesterday was given a 10-to-30-year prison term for second-degree murder.

Judge Edward M. Curran of District Court meted out the punishment to Georgee W. Simms, 349 1st st. sw., who pleaded guilty to the fatal stabbing August 11 of William F. Walker, 43, of 220 B½ st. sw.

Police quoted Walker as saying when he fell dying, "Don't call an ambulance."

Leon Smith, 21, of 62 Seaton pl. ne., was sentenced to 5 to 15 years for manslaughter in the beating-death of Harry Gray, 38, of 1617½ 11th st. nw. Gray died September 1, two days after a fight with Smith.

Robert M. Jackson, 30, of 1326 South Capitol st., convicted of committing an indecent act on a 14-year-old boy, received 4 to 12-year prison term.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire said, "There is altogether too much gun and knife play in this community," as he gave Leroy Stocks, 429 8th st. nw., a one to three-year term. Stocks was found guilty of the knifing of Arvetta Pugh, 428 9th st. sw.

Albert Moody, 36, of 312 15th st. ne., who has a long police record, received 8 to 24 months for operating a numbers lottery operation.

Mrs. VanSwinderen

Diplomat's Wife Leaves $2,078,470

Mrs. Elizabeth Glover van Swinderen left virtually all of her $2,078,470 estate in trust for her husband and daughter, it was learned yesterday.

A petition to probate her will was filed in District Court with five codicils written since 1948.

Mrs. van Swinderen, who died November 16 at the age of 71, was the wife of Rene de M. van Swinderen, retired diplomat. She was the daughter of the late Charles C. Glover, first president of Riggs National Bank here.

Her will gives three-quarters of the trust income to her husband, the remainder of the income going to her only child, Lady Hoyer Millar, of London.

On their death, the property will be given to the children of Lady Hoyer Millar.

Mrs. van Swinderen willed $1000 each to Children's Hospital, Washington Home for Incurables, the vestry of St. Alban's Parish, and Children's Country Home of Washington.

There are a number of bequests ranging from $25 to $2500 to servants and friends. Some of her servants will receive monthly incomes of from $50 to $75 throughout life.

Gas Station Man Is Wounded 'Rehearsing' Holdup Defense

Frank Eakin's confidence in his ability to disarm a would-be holdup man must certainly have waned.

Eakin, 27, ended up in Arlington Hospital with a bullet in his abdomen Tuesday night after an unconvincing demonstration of how he would protect himself against an armed invasion of his filling station at Fairfax. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

The shooting, according to Fairfax Police Sergt. John Wahl, occurred when Eakin handed a .38-caliber revolver to an acquaintance, Leslie Butler, 31, of Fairfax, and invited Butler to "hold me up." Butler accepted, there was a brief tussle and the pistol was accidentally discharged, Wahl reported.

The bullet penetrated the fleshy portion of Eakin's stomach, narrowly missing vital organs, according to the hospital.

Eakin told Wahl he was aware the gun was loaded, but expected to disarm Butler without mishap, the policeman said. No charges will be pressed.

Zoning Law Overhaul Must Wait On Dispersal

Decentralization Details Required Before District Can Revise Code

A proposal in the National Capital Park and Planning Commission's 30-year master plan for a complete overhaul of the District's zoning laws probably will have to wait for clarification of the Government's dispersal program.

District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, asked about the suggestion, said zoning problems here "will be profoundly affected" by the dispersal program. That program will determine how many more people the city can expect will want to live within the District boundaries.

The master plan pointed out that under existing zoning regulations 3,670,000 people "now could be legally housed in Washington." The 1950 census showed a population of 802,178.

At present zoning rules limit density of population only by regulation of building height and yard space.

Young said the dispersal program may so materially change Washington's problems that "any comprehensive study of zoning here could not be brought to a conclusion until we have seen the impact of decentralization."

Overhaul Would Cost $50,000

The Commissioner also pointed out it would take several persons full time for at least a year to draft an overhaul of the zoning rules, first prescribed by Congress in 1920. No funds are now available for such a task and at least $50,000 probably would be needed.

The planning commission, in declaring that "present zoning is far out of line," said only half as much land is now zoned for detached houses as is used for this purpose and only a quarter as much for row houses as is so used. On the other hand four times as much land is zoned for apartments as is used that way today.

The net of this is that thousands more could be crowded into these neighborhoods. The commission would have some of this apartment zoning rescinded. The commission declared that "a great many apartments have been built for too many families on too small lots, creating extensive densities." This building has been accentuated since the report was drafted last April.

The master plan also called for coordination of zoning throughout the metropolitan area to promote "over-all, sound development and land use."

The planning body noted that the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission is drafting new zoning regulations for Montgomery County. Prince Georges County adopted a new code last year. Arlington County has undertaken "zoning modernization," the planning body added.

Problem of Nonconformity

One District problem the commission suggested be tackled is that of "nonconforming use"—what to do about ridding residential neighborhoods of a single grocery store or gas station, for example.

The planning body suggested that any new draft of zoning laws should include a method of gradually reducing these nonconforming land uses "within a time limit." Some cities have enacted laws giving property owners involved long but definite periods such as 20 or 30 years in which to make the change.

A District Zoning Commission official said yesterday there are "at least 4000 and probably more" such nonconforming uses within the city. All of these structures existed prior to enaction of the 1920 zoning law and were exempted from it. A nonconforming building may not be enlarged or changed to another nonconforming classification without a special hearing, however.

The bulk of these nonconforming uses are of the corner grocery store category. Others are gas stations, warehouses, bakeries and laundries. Some are classified in one type of commercial zoning while they properly belong in another category.

Cathedral Drive For $50,000 Goes Over Top by $535

A post-campaign cleanup drive resulted in Washington Cathedral's $50,000 local building and maintenance drive going over the top yesterday.

A. Lloyd Symington, campaign chairman, said that $50,535 had been collected, more than $5000 since the close of the initial effort two weeks ago.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, in a special message, said:

"All of us who are responsible for the witness and work of the cathedral have a special reason for gratitude on this Thanksgiving Day, thanks to the efforts of the workers and the generosity of givers in the area."

Park Site Is Sought In Northern Virginia

To Daughter

Gazette Head Loses First Court Round

Charles C. Carlin, jr., president and publisher of the Alexandria Gazette, yesterday lost the first round in a legal fight to obtain 1200 shares of Gazette stock owned by his daughter, Miss Sarah Perrine Carlin.

Alexandria Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown dismissed a suit filed by the publisher to force Miss Carlin to sell him the stock for $50,000—a price he contended was agreed to earlier. Miss Carlin, 22, testified she authorized Attorney T. Brooke Howard to negotiate for sale of the stock, but denied any price was set.

In his motion, Carlin also sought unsuccessfully to enjoin his daughter from prosecuting a suit filed in December, 1949, to compel the Gazette's trustees to turn over the same stock to her. The case will be set for hearing at the January term of the Circuit Court. In 1940, the Alexandria court ruled she was entitled to the stock under her grandfather's will. She says she has not received it.

In dismissing Carlin's suit, Judge Brown ruled there was insufficient evidence of any agreement for sale of the stock at a specified price.

Police Without Clews In Sheridan St. Rape

No definite leads have been uncovered in the rape of a 17-year-old girl here Monday night, police reported yesterday, though Sex Squad detectives and Sixth Precinct police have questioned 40 persons since the attack.

Officials said, however, that information is still coming in from people living near the 1300 block Sheridan st. nw. where the girl was assaulted as she returned to her home in that block from work in a Georgia ave. candy store.

Potential sites for a proposed Northern Virginia regional park were viewed yesterday by two of the State's top park authorities.

In Alexandria for a conference with local legislators on ways of initiating the park program, the State's director of conservation, Sidney B. Kellem, and commissioner of parks, Randolph Odell, visited several locations which area officials have been eyeing for possible park use. The number and location of the sites were not disclosed — "for obvious reasons," they said.

Arlington Delegate Maynard Magruder, who presided at the conference, said disclosure of the locations might affect the cost of the properties once it becomes known they are being considered for park use.

Without taking action, the conferees weighed the advisability of either trying to establish a State park or seeking Government aid for a Federal park in the area, Magruder said.

He said both Kellem and Odell pledged full cooperation in efforts to establish a regional park for the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax area.

Besides the two State officials and Magruder, participants in the conference included Arlington State Delegate George Damm, Fairfax Delegate Edwin Lynch, Alexandria Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission Chairman J. W. Brookfield and the nominees for membership on a proposed Northern Virginia regional park authority.

Maryland U. Building Needs Put at $15,000,000

BALTIMORE, Nov. 22 (AP).—The University of Maryland today outlined its needs for new construction "for the forseeable future" to the State Planning Commission. Its needs were estimated at 15 million dollars by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university.

About a quarter of the list, in terms of dollars, was made up of new projects at Maryland State College, Princess Anne.

Touching on this subject, Byrd said the State could try to provide equal facilities for Negroes, or admit Negroes to the University of Maryland. He said there isn't an institution in the South today in which equal facilities exist, and that it would cost Maryland millions of dollars to attempt equality.

Byrd said the efficient and economic thing to do would be to do away with Morgan and Princess Anne Colleges and admit Negroes to the university.

He added, "Whether the State wants to do it, I don't know. If it doesn't, it can do the best it can to provide equal facilities at other places."

Odd Fellows Get Odd Letter; Goes 56 Miles in 101 Yrs.

MILFORD, Conn., Nov. 22 (NYHT).—Wopowage Lodge No. 14, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Milford, has just received a letter from a sister lodge in Windsor Locks, Conn., 56 miles away. One hundred and one years had elapsed between its mailing and its receipt.

A man named E. Glew of Hackney, London, England, found the letter in a London shop and purchased it. Realizing it had never been delivered, he decided the decent thing to do was to send it right along. It arrived last week.

The address on the envelope abbreviated Connecticut as "Con." instead of "Conn." and the "O" looked like an "A." The letter probably went to Canada, finally was lost and somehow was taken to England.

Lung Cancer Study Grant Made by U. S.

A special study of smoking and other factors suspected of contributing to lung cancer will be made under a Public Health Service grant, it was announced.

The study, among lung cancer patients at several Massachusetts hospitals, will be supervised by Drs. L. S. Snegireff, of Harvard College, and Herbert L. Lombard, of the Massachusetts Department of Health.

The patients, they said, will be interviewed for information on smoking habits, exposure to occupational hazards, previous lung diseases, hereditary background and possible air impurities in their home environment.

By analyzing the complete backgrounds, the investigators hope to determine the role of tobacco smoking in cancer of the lung as compared to other environmental influences.

The grant, for $5417, is one of 17 special cancer control grants, totalling $324,525, awarded by the National Cancer Institute, of Bethesda, Md.

William J. Miller, 51, Dies; Former Conn. Congressman

Former Representative William Jennings Miller (R., Conn.), 51, who traveled the road to success without legs, died yesterday at his Wethersfield, Conn., home after a long illness.

A World War I flier, Miller broke his back and lost both his legs in an airplane crash in France. For four years thereafter he lived in a cast.

Besides running for Congress five times and winning three times, Mr. Miller established a successful insurance business in his home town, served as State department commander of the American Legion, directer Legion relief work during the 1936 flood and was a member of the Legion's National Rehabilitation Committee.

The stocky, black-haired legislator was something of a political barometer during his years in politics. He won in 1938, 1942 and 1946 as did most other Republican candidates. He lost in 1940 and 1944 when most of his Republican colleagues suffered the same fate.

Born in North Andover, Mass., Mr. Miller attended public schools there and in Lawrence, Mass. He enlisted as a private in the aviation section of the Army Signal Corps and served 17 months in France, where he was commissioned as a second lieutenant.

Soloist Ill, Symphony Plays Franck

By Paul Hume

Three of Washington's concert-giving organizations have now gone through the unhappy business of soloists' cancellations at the last minute.

Last night it was the turn of the National Symphony Orchestra. Claudio Arrau was to have played Mozart's C Minor Concerto and Liszt's Dance of Death on the subscription series. But Arrau is nursing a severe cold and had to cancel his appearance.

Conductor Mitchell rearranged his program to include Spencer Huffman's new overture, and the second symphony of Howard Hanson. And in place of the piano-orchestral works, he played the D Minor Symphony of Franck.

It was a sort of rough evening, especially to one who can live forever without hearing the Franck again. Huffman's overture is a fine piece of writing. It is not, as the composer himself says, an overture. Thus it does not do the things that an overture should.

An overture, even one without program connotations, should stand well at the beginning of a concert. That is its purpose among others. Huffman's piece demands too much intense concentration, for its fullest appreciation, to come first on a program. It would do better as the first piece after an intermission, until the composer has time to write the balance of the symphony for which it is to be the first movement.

It is fundamentally a march rhythm, with brief interruptions. In this respect, it constantly reminded me of the march movement of Tschaikowsky's sixth symphony. Its fundamental rhythmic structure is its principal point of interest. In stysistic matters, it follows the clear path laid out by Paul Hindemith. Who better for a young composer to learn from?

Hanson's symphony shows its age, but shows it most in the middle movement which now strikes as a bit too lush. The outer movements still possess inherent strengths and beauties while retaining formal outlines that give them lasting vitality. These two pieces were played with virtuosity of tone and precision.

For various reasons, the Franck lacked luster in both strings and brass at frequent climatic moments, and precision in the strings was also wanting.

The second movement alone has something to say which escapes the rhetoric and empty bombast of the first movement and the banality of the finale.

Next week things should return to normal with an outstanding list, and Margaret Tolson, soloist in Ravel.

Research Unit Asks Renewed Zoning Permit

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment gets all kinds.

Yesterday it was a scientific research center, half in and half out of a residential zone, where there is the possibility of "implosion."

The building is a five-story structure at 2010 Masachusetts ave. nw., which the National Scientific Laboratories, Inc., has occupied for the last two years. Since part of the property is zoned for residential use, the firm had to obtain special permission to use it for other purposes. Yesterday, it sought a renewal of the permit.

Director Robert I. Sarbacher said the private institution does considerable work for the Government in the fields of electronics, thermodynamics and nuclear physics. Most of the work is quiet research, Sarbacher said, but some is experimental. The experimental part is being moved out, however, and the building henceforth will be used primarily for seminars, he said.

Board members asked Sarbacher if there was any danger of an explosion. He replied that there was not. There was the possibility that an implosion might occur, he added, but none that could do any damage. An implosion, it seems, is the opposite of an explosion—like the rushing of air when a can of tennis balls is opened.

The board deferred action on Sarbacher's applications until it had inspected the property.

Mass. Mayor Faces Jail On Teachers' Pay Issue

BOSTON, Nov. 22 (AP).—Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis of Newburyport was ordered today by Judge Eugene J. Hudson in Superior Court to restore $43,800 in teachers' pay increases to the city payroll or go to jail.

The once peppery "bad boy mayor"—who in 1929 administered the city from a jail cell while serving a two-month sentence for illegally cutting trees in front of his gasoline station — heard Judge Hudson in meek silence.

His behavior in court contrasted sharply with earlier bravado. Before the hearing Gillis was adamant in his refusal to approve the increase, even if they "slap me in jail."

Coast Guard Gets Authority to Recal Reservists to Duty

The United States Coast Guard announced yesterday that it has been authorized to order reservists to extended active duty, not to exceed 21 consecutive months, on an involuntary basis.

The Coast Guard said, however, that any change from the current practice of recalling only reservists who volunteer will depend on the number of volunteers and whether the skills they offer will supply specific demands.

Each case of involuntary recall will be decided on "individual merits," the service said. Exemptions will be granted when a reservist occupies an essential position or can show service would cause family hardship.

Voters Don't Want A Labor Party, Farley Declares

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 22 (AP).—James A. Farley, one-time Democratic party boss, said tonight union defeats in the November 7 general election prove the country does not want an independent labor party.

"The principal upon which this Nation rests is that individuals vote as individuals, not as members of blocs," Farley said.

The former postmaster general, who steered Franklin D. Roosevelt's earlier presidential campaigns, spoke at the annual banquet of the Florida Chamber of Commerce.

The most important lesson to be drawn from election setbacks for union supported Democrats is "that neither the Republicans nor Democratic party, nor the working man himself, nor the voters generally, want an independent labor party," Farley said.

"The fear of that in Ohio, I know, in this year's election drove many Democrats to vote for Taft (Senator Robert A. Taft, the union's chief target because of his Taft-Hartley labor act).

Nearly a half century ago she and her husband wrote a joint column for Chicago newspapers and others. Among their better known books are "Houseboating on a Colonial Waterway," "Washington and the Lafayettes" and "Thomas Jefferson."

Mrs. Hutchins, born in Kinsman, Ohio, and her husband came to Washington shortly after the turn of the century, and following their brief stay here, the couple lived in Richmond and Norfolk, where they carried on their historic research. School Aides Bow to Green Court Suit

Arlington County Treasurer John Locke Green appeared to have won his latest tussle with the county school board yesterday.

School officials said they will abide by an injunction sought by Green to restrain the school board clerk, E. J. Braun, and the board chairman, Mrs. Edmund Campbell, from using a joint signature plate to sign checks in each other's absence.

School Superintendent William A. Early said Mrs. Campbell was expected to sign a court order Monday enforcing Green's demand. The order, already signed by Green, would go into effect with the signature of Mrs. Campbell and Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

Early said that since Green filed the suit October 12, Mrs. Campbell and Braun have obtained separate signature plates—each kept by the owner—to sign school checks.

Treasurer Green opposed vigorously a proposed $7,450,000 school bond issue that was defeated at the polls November 7. He also opposed the school board in Circuit Court in September when he refused to release funds for purchase of a warehouse the board wanted. The court ordered him to do so.

Medical Society Polls Members On Publicity Drive

The president of the District Medical Society has asked Washington doctors for their reactions to the recent publicity campaign against "socialized medicine."

The request, by William M. Ballinger, is published in the current issue of the Medical Annals, monthly periodical of the local society.

Concerning the $1,100,000 advertising campaign of the American Medical Association, Dr. Ballinger noted that some local doctors have complained of the extravagant language, the appeal to the emotions rather than the intellect, and the rather flamboyant printed material."

Others, he said, has apparently found it "an effective appeal," its materials used "well considered and wise."

Bandit Gets $165 At Drug Store and Rips Phone Wires

A thin-faced bandit last night stole $165 from the Cambridge Pharmacy, 927 19th st. nw., just as the owner, Martin Feinberg, was preparing to lock up the money for the night.

Feinberg, 47, said the robber, slouch hat low over his eyes, pulled a gun as he entered the store shortly before 11 p. m. closing time.

Feinberg said he was forced to hand over $115 in his hands and $50 already deposited in the open store safe.

Then, Feinberg told police, he and employes, Esther Reynolds, 26, 1801 Wyoming ave. nw., and James Sutton, 32, 441 M st. nw., were forced to lie down in the rest room.

When they came out a few minutes later, the store's lights were out and the telephone lines ripped out, police said. Feinberg described the thief as a white man, 25 to 30 years old, 5 feet, 8 inches tall, wearing a tan trench coat and a grey hat.

Dancing Debs Choose White

But Cotillion Crowd Likes Black, Colors

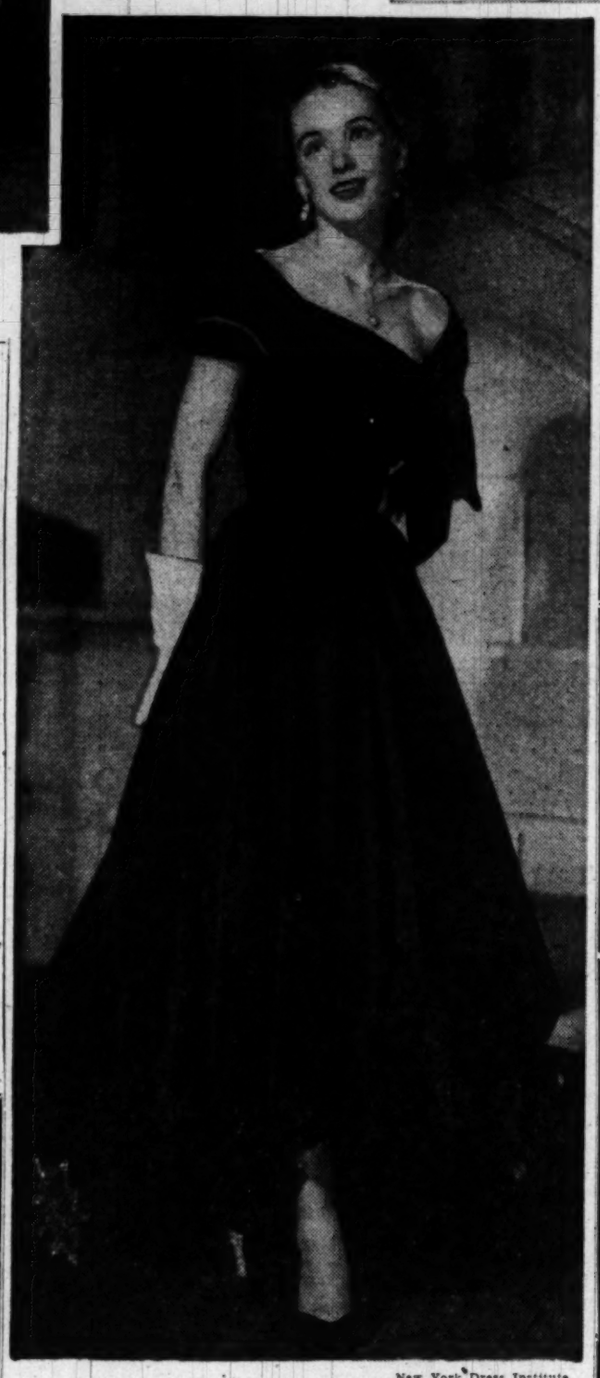
By Evelyn Hayes

THE DEBUTANTE Cotillion being held tonight in the Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel will see hundreds of the Capital's most attractive younger set dancing in dresses such as we have pictured here. Those who are making their debut this year will receive from 10 to 11 p. m. and will wear white—dreamy white—floating and flattering such as the white net gown pictured from Best's.

Last year's debutantes will wear black tonight—beautiful bewitching black. Perhaps one will wear the dress from Nancye Fleming. Because tonight's party is so important in the social calendar, other guests will be wearing the prettiest dresses they own—any fabric—any color—but pretty. Such a dress might be Gretchen Cole's featured flatterer in net with roses.

Any of these dresses would make the most glamorous present of all for a father to give his partying daughter for Christmas—and she may enjoy it even more if she receives this big present now so she can shine in it at all the holiday parties. A handy tip for doting males: something pretty to wear is always the best gift of all for Eve and any of her daughters.

ANGEL DRESS—This young junior miss looks sweet as spun sugar in a dream dress that falls softly to the floor in drifts of white net. The strapless top is embroidered in rhinestones and pearls, has matching stole. At Best's.



New York Dress Institute

Guests from New Jersey

Mrs. Jesse I. Miller has had as her guests at Wardman Park, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Goldsmith of Deal, N. J., and their daughter, Miss Ann Goldsmith, whose engagement to Jesse I. Miller, jr., was recently announced.

Holiday Party Whirl Begins

By Marie McNair

LEBANON CELEBRATED its Independence Day yesterday, at a reception at the Lebanese Embassy.

Air Vice Marshal R. L. R. Atcherly, Commander-in-Chief of the Royal Pakistan Air Force, was guest of honor at a cocktail party given by the Pakistan Ambassador and Mme. Ispahani.

And diplomats, officials and "old Washington" all met at Miss Rose Saul's late day cocktail fete in her apartment at the Kennedy-Warren.

Making the rounds yesterday, I called early at the Pakistan Embassy, met the 6-foot 3 air marshal waiting with the Ambassador and Mme. Ispahani for guests to arrive, Mme. Ispahani in a Nile green sari with underskirt of the same green embroidered in vari-colored flowers. The Air Marshal, like the heads of the Pakistan army and navy, is on loan from Britain's service. He was a distinguished flyer during the war, I learned, but admitted yesterday that flying isn't always fun. He was interested to note that American women are so fond of traveling by plane and was intrigued by the casual way they take an air trip, playing gin rummy or other cards the entire trip.

In the drawing room at the embassy which is bright with color—gold brocade walls, rose sofas, mirrors, blue draperies, were uniforms of the American Air Force and those of half a dozen or more foreign countries. Lieut. Gen. B. K. Wolfe, USAF, was there, and in a group were the Air Attache of the New Zealand Embassy, Air Comdr. J. L. Findlay, and Mrs. Findlay; the Air Attache of the Australian Embassy, group Capt. C. W. Pearce, and Mrs. Pearce; Colonel Meyers, just returned from a tour as United States Military Attache in Pakistan with his pretty daughter "Ginger" who's home for Thanksgiving from college in New York.

Gen. Omar Bradley, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Mrs. Bradley, had a chat with Mme. Raza, wife of the Military and Air Attache of the Parkistan Embassy, were interested to learn that she's been giving a series of lectures in this country.

Also there were Colonel Meyers, just back from a tour of duty as United States Air Attache in Karachi, with his daughter, pretty "Ginger" Meyers, here for Thanksgiving from school in New York.

Gen. Sir Neil Ritche, Chief of the British Military Staff, of the British Joint Services, was a tall 6 feet-plus in his dark blue uniform. Then there were the Air Attache of the Indian Embassy, Wing Commander Varma, and Mme. Varma, and new Military Attache of the South African Embassy, his khaki uniform decked with gold braid and tabbed in red.

AT THE LEBANESE EMBASSY on McGill Terrace hundreds of guests were in and out, some staying long enough to have supper from the long buffet where Middle East dishes such as spiced meatballs of several verieties were offered along with typical American hams and turkeys. Mme. Malik smiled through the afternoon, in a gown of deep green brocade, cocktail length, with a matching tulle scarf about her shoulders and a skirt ending in a floor length side panel.

I met Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, waiting for her car, and met her again at Rose Saul's. Saw the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer, Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton, the French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet. The British Ambassador and Lady Franks came in briefly; Gen. and Mrs. Harry Vaughan offered their felicitations, and others there were Mrs. Henry Flood, Mrs. Martin Vogel with her niece, Fay Lewishon who's a working "goil" now with a job at Mme. d' Anecourt's antique and gift shop in Georgetown.

Then there were Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Engert, Mme. Benard of the French Embassy, the Ceylonese Ambassador and Mme. Corea, Capt. and Mrs. John P. Jackson, neighbors from across the street; Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mr. and Mrs. James Souby and Alfred Lilienthal.

ROSE SAUL needed to make no introductions for everyone knew everyone else at her party.

In a quick look-see, there were Mrs. Wade Hayslip, the Greek Ambassador, Athanase Politis; Mme. Economou-Gouras talking to Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, who with Colonel Guggenheim was going on to the Norwegian Embassy for dinner with Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha.

Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch and Mrs. Blake Clark had their heads together; Mme. Vladimir Rybar and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis were surrounded; and others there were Mrs. Mason Gulick, Mrs. Fred Britten, Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn, Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mrs. Vogel and Fay Lewishon again; the Edgar Morrises; Mrs. A. Bruce Fahnestock and Ed Williams, a twosome; Major Gen. and Mrs. Robert Walsh, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. Pearson Rust, Mrs. William A. Morgan, Pendleton Turner, Mrs. Clarence Goodwin and son, Norton; Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Katharine Byron.

ALONG EMBASSY ROW

AT THE TURKISH EMBASSY last evening a dinner was given by the Ambassador and Mme. Erkin. The Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Thomen were ranking guests.

Blair House Opens Doors to Royalty

DINNER AT BLAIR HOUSE today will be highly traditional, with stuffed turkey and giblet gravy. The President and his family will have their dinner quietly without outside guests. There will be the President, Mrs. Truman, Margaret and Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. David Wallace of Independence, Mo.

Yesterday Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha of Norway were guests of the President and Mrs. Truman at a luncheon at Blair House.

The Ambassador of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, was unable to attend, as he was taken with a cold and fever in the morning. Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, hostess to the Crown Prince and Princess during their visit here, accompanied Their Royal Highnesses to the luncheon.

Miss Margaret Truman, the Prince's Aide-de-Camp, Col. Nikolai R. Ostgaard, and Mme. Ostgaard attended. Also, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson, and Secretary of the President William D. Hassett.

Others were the Chief of Protocol and Mrs. John Farr Simmons, the United States Ambassador to Norway and Mrs. Charles U. Bay; Eigil Nygaard, counselor at the Norwegian Embassy, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Harry H. Vaughan.

Yellow roses, white pompons, heather and Baker fern centered the table.

The Crown Prince and Princess were honor guests at a dinner at the Norwegian Embassy last night, the company numbering 26. Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Ambassador, was hostess.

The royal twosome will leave today for New York to be the guests of Clifford N. Carver at his home in Locust Valley, Long Island.

DOES THE bright-eyed boy at the left seem self-confident?

It's really not surprising! Carving a turkey isn't the task you might think (it says here in a release from the National Poultry and Egg Board.)

To turn it into child's play, all you need is a sharp knife and the proper frame of mind. If you've got the first, maybe our annual review of the Board's carving tips will help you develop the latter.

AFTER THE blessing is said, stand calmly and judiciously over the bird while the rest of the family unfold their napkins and settle their feathers generally around the table.

Next, remove most of what parsley and other garnish to a side plate. Now be sure the turkey's turned with drumsticks pointing to your left. Grasp the drummie farthest from you between thumb and forefinger, raise your knife, and you're ready to go:

REMOVE THE leg first. Cut through skin by drawing knife back and forth and sever joint. Press leg away from body with flat side of knife, then cut remaining skin on back. Place leg on service platter.

Separate the drumstick from the thigh. Slice off leg meat by holding drumstick at right angles to plate and cutting down, turning leg to get uniform slices. Slice thigh meat lengthwise.

Cut into white meat parallel to wing. Make a deep cut into the breast to the body frame parallel and as close to the wing as possible. Do not remove wing.

SLICE WHITE meat, beginning at the front and starting halfway up the breast. Cut thin slices of white meat down to the cut made parallel to the wing. The slices will fall away from the turkey as they are cut to this line.

Serve the meat from one side before carving the other. Who knows? Maybe there'll be enough to go around, and you can leave that other side for the cook to struggle with when she makes sandwiches for lunch tomorrow!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 22, College Graduate and Phi Beta Kappa, Whose Parents Are Proud, Victorian and Wealthy, Has Problem in Unwanted, Uneducated Suitor, 34

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college graduate, 22, tagged with a Phi Beta key; but despite this I am not bad looking and have enjoyed a moderate popularity. My family is rather well off, extremely proud of its history, and somewhat Victorian. I am an only child and have been rather strictly brought up.

My problem is Tony, 34, whose background is vastly different from mine. At the age of 15 he was thrown out bodily by his father, and has been alone in life ever since. Although he isn't stupid, he is uneducated, through no fault of his own. I hope this doesn't sound snobbish of me. He is generous, unselfish and considerate; and if I am bored or moody he is sympathy personified, thinking I must be sick.

We've been dating fairly often, and suddenly I realized some weeks ago that Tony not only thinks we are "going steady," but that we are engaged. I don't know how he can fail to see we have nothing in common, not even conversationally, unless we confine ourselves to Lil Abner and Walter Winchell.

I am sorry for Tony because he's had so little happiness and feels no one understands him; but pity is not the right foundation for a strong and lasting marriage. And I don't love him.

I LOVE LESLEY, a doctor on the West Coast, and we are planning to announce our engagement as soon as I have dispatched Tony. I really believe Tony is in love with me, for he is certainly old enough to know his own mind. He strongly believes that love conquers all and that there is only one person in the world for each of us. I don't want to hurt him, yet I don't know how to break away. Is it better to do it slowly or quickly?

For myself, I've always thought if a love affair of mine were ending without knowing it, I would appreciate a gradual letdown,—time in which to fall out of love. I've considered going to a marriage counselor and getting him to tell Tony how unsuited we are. Lesley knows about the situation and understands. Please advise me soon, because the longer I wait, the more difficult it is.

D. A.

DEAR D. A.: It seems to me the problem is that you are somewhat afraid to reverse yourself in relation to Tony by letting him know you've developed a more serious and suitable heart interest that cancels out your erstwhile infatuation with him. Because of his uncouth background, so different from yours, and his self pitying appeal to a woman's feelings, you aren't sure that he won't make trouble if you should try frankly to discard him,—and I'm not, either.

However, I'm sure his idea that you've been going steady with him, and are tacitly engaged to him, wasn't entirely cooked up in his head. A man in his right mind doesn't think confidently along those lines unless the girl encourages him to feel he is tops with her; and doubtless this was your attitude towards Tony, in all sincerity, during the life of your crush on him—or until Lesley offered you marriage.

TO SAY THAT you suddenly discovered you've nothing in common with Tony, not even conversationally, aside from Abner and Winchell, is to admit indirectly that his attraction for you was strictly physical while it lasted; and that it faded almost overnight, when Lesley's more congenial cultural assets and personal qualties, including sex magnetism, had caught your fancy.

I suppose you became worriedly aware of Tony's proprietary claim to your company, after you'd decided you were tired of him and wanted Lesley, who also wants you.

Because of Tony's unfortunate background, neurotic temperament, limited interests, lack of schooling, etc., he's bound to feel inferior as compared to you, whether he admits it or not. Thus a disappointment in love, in relation to you, is going to hurt his pride as well as his heart; and the jolt might find him without other friends to help him through the worst of the pain. His association with you is probably the only personal affiliation he has, of any significance; so I think it advisable to follow your hunch and try to break gradually,—say over a period of a month or six weeks.

If you've been dating him fairly often, a series of mild refusals to go out with him should be your first diplomatic move. The usual polite excuses will do; but live up to them. Don't turn him down and then appear with Tom, Dick or Harry.

After sufficient tactful resistance, he may ask what's up. Then is your cue to explain that you were disturbed by his idea that you are practically engaged to each other, or at any rate going steady, because that wasn't your idea; and so you thought it best to cut down on your dates with him, to put an end to false encouragement, if you'd been making that mistake.

Meanwhile, you ought to take your parents or a marriage counselor into your confidence, to clarify your thinking and strengthen your hand in dealing with Tony, in case he becomes darkly difficult and demanding as you try to dismiss him.

Experiment Blanche

And She Lived Happily Ever After

By Ann Lawrence

Final Day of Blanche's Beauty Program

TWO WEEKS AGO, we introduced you to Blanche Cooper, a 48-year-old widow, who had never used make-up and who, by her own admission, had completely neglected any beauty and grooming program for the past several years.

BLANCHE

Her first question to us, you may remember, was, "It is too late to start? What can I do with myself now, to prepare myself to find an office job and meet the public?

The answer you see pictured here.

Blanche learned to tone down her florid complexion with an ivory-tinted cream make-up base. To enhance her blue-gray eyes, with their almost-invisible lashes and brows, she learned to darken her brows with a light yellow-brown pencil, apply mascara right down to the roots of her lashes and add the tiniest touch of eye shadow. To give herself a "happy" mouth, she learned to paint a smiling, upturned bow and she learned the proper lipstick shades, a clear red and a golden-red, for her coloring.

THE HAIR-DO SHE had been wearing not only detracted from her good features, but actually accented her poorer ones. With hair pulled back from the forehead, the receding hairline was clearly revealed. When her hair was swept back from the temples, the cheekbones, the widest part of her face, seemed broader.

What was needed was a hair-do which would give her face an oval effect, foreshortening the forehead, narrowing the cheekbone area, bringing the pointed, narrow chin into better balance. Now her hair has been thinned and cut about 1 inch shorter. Cap-shaped to the crown of her head, the hair was then pin-curled in two rows, the curls at the right side of her face pinned, clockwise, to the face, the curls on the left side, pinned counter-clockwise, again to the face. The bang seems to foreshorten her diamond-shaped face. A soft lift at the temples gives a more youthful appearance. The ends, swirling toward her face form a flattering frame and add width at the narrow chinline.

As for the climax to the story—Blanche has a job today! She is a receptionist for a large manufacturing company, happy on her job, poised and able to meet the public with ease and grace, confident that she can advance to a better position.

Precious Argyle Socks End Up on the Wrong Feet; Housewife Asks First Aid

DEAR ANNE:

Could you help me, please, before I make any costly errors? My husband has just acquired six pairs of imported pure wool argyle socks. They are marked shrink-resistant.

On a drying frame of presumably the same size, they are slightly loose (before washing.) Is that an allowance made by the manufacturer, or would it be wiser to buy larger frames on which they would fit snugly?

In washing: Soap, soap powder, or one of the popular detergent powders? To rinse or not to rinse? Partially or completely?

Up to now, I have always inherited his shrunken sox after a short time—but really, he needs them more than I!

M. F., Washington.

Is the dryer one that has been used satisfactorily for your husband's socks before? Or is it marked with the same size as he wears? If so, I wouldn't worry over the fact that the socks seem a bit loose on it. It should certainly dry them so that they are large enough for him to wear. If you are in doubt on the dryer's size though, why not experiment first with a pair of cheap socks?

Use either very mild soap or one of the detergents made particularly for use on woolens. A large woolen mill puts out one of the latter that is quite satisfactory. (Never use an all-purpose laundry soap.)

Use lukewarm water, and do rinse. You get out a lot of dirt this way. Some people leave a little soap in for the possible softening effect of the oil, but I believe it is better to rinse woolens free of soap.

Squeeze in a Turkish towel, then dry on the forms in a warm place but away from fire or direct sunlight. Excess heat can easily harden them.

DEAR ANNE:

What can I do about a silk blouse I dipped in bleach water? I added a small quantity of the bleach to remove a dye stain and the blouse turned a horrid pale tan in color. Can you give me any advice on how I can get it back to its original color—just off white? If not, can you advise me on how I can dye it?

M. O. S., Washington.

Chlorine bleach has a destructive effect on silk. However, since you used very little, perhaps the fibers are not too damaged to reclaim the fabric. You may be able to whiten the blouse with one of the dye stripping compounds made by manufacturers of home dyes and sold in drug stores. Or you can buy some dye and tint the blouse by dipping it in the dye solution.. You'll find directions on the box.

Md. Mother Gets Fourth War Telegram

(From Press Services and Correspondents)

Four times in the last eight years Mrs. Sarah Kathryn Duke of Glen Burnie, Md., has received telegrams from the Army Department saying that her son, Maj. Robert M. Miller, has been wounded in action or hurt in line of duty.

But Mrs. Duke was ready for the most recent wire. Before it came, her son called from a hospital in Japan to say he had been hit in the left arm by a grenade fragment in the Korean fighting.

Major Miller was wounded twice in France during World War II. Previously, he was injured in a training accident while his outfit, the twenty-nineth Division, prepared for the Normandy landings.

His mother got a telegram on each occasion.

75 Killed, 125 Hurt In N. Y. Train Crash were going out to Long Island for the Thanksgiving holiday.

About 125 passengers were seriously injured and scores of others shaken, cut and bruised by flying glass or jagged, twisted metal.

Dr. Randy Wyman, a director of the municipal hospital system, alerted hospitals to "be prepared to receive 50 bodies." Police earlier had estimated the dead at from 25 to 50.

Inspector Curry said 20 bodies had been removed from the wreckage of the two trains, each of which was composed of 12 electric cars.

It was the second major Long Island Railroad disaster in nine months—31 persons died February 17 in a Rockville Centre crash.

The motorman of the first train said his brakes locked as he slowed his train at about 6:30 o'clock. A second train, roaring in from behind, knifed into the standing train.

The front and end cars that took the shock of the impact were telescoped or sliced apart "like a loaf of bread."

From all over the great New York City area poured rescue workers with power saws, jacks and acetylene torches to try and cut the trapped victims from the ghastly mess.

The heartbreaking task went on for hours. Dead and injured still were trapped in the wreckage at midnight—nearly six hours after the crash.

Searchlights picked out the still figures of passengers inside the cars, their heads lolling in death like pale rag dolls.

"It's a bloody, bloody mess," said a physician who treated some victims. "War couldn't be any worse."

Said Howard Austin, conductor of the second train:

"Both of the telescoped cars were jammed with passengers and I don't see how any of them could have escaped alive."

13 Miles From Square

The crash scene is 13 miles from Times Square, in the Kew Gardens section of Queens Borough. It is on the Long Island's main line from Pennsylvania Station to the island.

The area is a quiet one of private homes, small shops and towering apartment dwellings.

Through the area the 116-year-old Long Island channels its trains outward onto 1000 miles of track on the island. The busiest passenger line in the United States, it carries 300,000 persons a day.

Four minutes behind it came No. 174 on its way to Babylon, along the same line where last February's crash occurred.

Motorman William Murphy on the first train told police he slowed for a caution signal. It changed to a go-ahead, he said, but for some unexplained reason his brakes jammed and he could not release them. His train ground to a stop.

No Explanation

There was no explanation why the railroad's block signal did not stop the second train.

"The train stopped for a few seconds," said Anthony Tartaglia, a passenger on the first train. "Then she tried to start up. Then all hell broke loose."

The crash came with what eyewitnesses described as a roar and a flash of light. There was no fire.

The lead car of the second train burrowed under the last car of the first train.

Said accountant Jeff Kaufman, a passenger on the Babylon train:

"I saw steel shooting through the car. It was sheared right in half—like a slice of bread."

He said there was no panic but that shrieks of the dying filled the moment of awful silence that followed the ripping, grinding crash.

Few of the cars were derailed.

As thousands of horrified onlookers gathered, the grim rescue work began beneath the searchlights. Women wept and cried in the semidaylight of the lights as they sought friends or relatives in the wreckage.

Arms and legs of victims hung out through holes or rips in the cars.

Priests, ministers and rabbis moved through the tangled mass of rescue apparatus, doing what they could to ease the torture of trapped or injured passengers.

Ambulances slipped into the center of the area, took on their loads of groaning victims and then dashed off to one of six hospitals pressed into service.

First persons on the scene took some of the injured to private homes.

Some of the trapped and injured looked down from the wrecked cars, watching the rescue operations through their pain-induced stupor.

The Queens Red Cross put an unlimited supply of blood plasma and whole blood at the disposal of rescue workers.

Women living in the area set up aid stations for the less badly injured. They also served hot coffee, tea and soup to survivors.

Sherwood Faubel, 40, of Hempstead, said the train on which he was a passenger was so crowded people were standing in the aisle.

Most of them were homeward bound from their New York jobs. Others were headed for a Thanksgiving holiday on Long Island.

Faubel gave this description of the crash:

"Suddenly all the lights went out and the crash came. There were screams and shouts and frightful confusion as everybody tried to jam out at once.

"The car I was in was packed, with a lot of people in the aisle. I managed to crawl toward the head of the car on my hands and knees, and get out somehow, after awhile."

31 Dead in February

Last February, two Long Island trains came together head on in Rockville Centre on a stretch of temporary track. Besides 31 dead, more than 100 were injured then.

Law suits still are being disposed of in this crash. The motorman of one train was tried for manslaughter for running through a stop signal. But he was found innocent after he said he blacked out and did not remember the light.

Last August 5, a young brakeman opened the wrong switch on the Long Island near Huntington on the north shore of Long Island. As a result, a passenger train rammed a freight. More than 50 persons were injured, but no one was killed.

Andrew Papps, a State Public Service Commission supervisor of railroad equipment, and Assistant Queens District Attorney Thomas Cullen were on the scene of tonight's wreck.

"If we find any evidence of criminal negligence on the part of any person, there will be prosecution," they said in a joint statement.

Eyewitness Accounts

Standing Room Only on Train, As Passengers Hurry Home

William Good, 32, advertising executive of Merrick, N. Y., was aboard the outbound Long Island Railroad express which rammed a standing train today. Good escaped unhurt. This is his story of the tragedy.

By William Good

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The train stopped suddenly but I wasn't sure it was a wreck until I got out and walked forward. What I saw was pitiful.

I was in the eighth car. When I got up to what was left of the first car they were trying to pull out the bodies. I don't see how they could get them out without a crane to lift the wreckage.

There wasn't a sound from inside the smashed cars. I saw bloody hands hanging out windows and I didn't want to go closer. They must have been dead, all of them.

There was standing room only on the train. The brakes were applied suddenly, but I've been thrown around before on trains. I was standing at the time.

"I was thrown down the aisle. The brakes were on for two or three seconds and then we stopped with a jolt. Some glass in my car broke but I don't think anybody in the car was hurt.

The train I was on—the 6:13 express outbound from Pennsylvania station to Babylon—hit a standing train from behind. From the sudden way our motorman threw on brakes, I don't think he had any notice that the collision was coming.

The first car of the train I was on was smashed to pieces. It didn't telescope with the last car of the other train. It just drove up under it, like a wedge. The last car of the other train just rose up on top of our first car.

There wasn't any hysteria way back in my section of the train. But when I walked forward to the wreckage I realized it was pretty awful. At first glance I saw at least 10 bodies, and those hands in the windows.

I'm glad I was riding eight cars back. I wasn't scratched.

Roaring Crash Sends Passenger Into Aisle

By Dave George

Publicity representative of the Long Island Railroad

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—I left New York on the 6:09 p. m. (EST) train for Hempstead and walked to the front end of the rear car.

The train was crowded with passengers leaving town for the holiday and I was unable to get a seat.

As we neared Jamaica at 125th street our train made an emergency stop. Minutes later there was a roaring crash and I was hurled to the aisle, losing consciousness for a brief period.

Beside me on the floor was Bob Patterson of Williston Park, assistant to the traffic manager of the Long Island railroad.

I miraculously was uninjured but Patterson received a deep cut on his forehead.

There was dead silence for seconds after the impact followed by screams and cries of "help! help!"

Passengers in the forward end of the car immediately tried to get the most seriously injured passengers out of the wreckage, and were assisted by railroad employes who rushed to the scene with flashlights and crowbars.

The passengers in all other cars of both trains remained quietly seated, apparently unaware of what had happened.

All of the casualties probably were confined to the rear car of the first rain and the first car of the second train.

L. I. Rail Wreck Only 11 Miles From February Disaster Scene

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Long Island Railroad wreck today happened only 11 miles from Rockville Centre, L. I., where 32 persons were killed and more than 100 injured last February 17 when two trains collided on a single track near the station.

Jacob Kiefer, motorman of one of the trains in the Rockville Centre wreck was charged with criminal negligence and second-degree manslaughter, but was found innocent September 26.

At that time, Kiefer's defense was that he fainted from high blood pressure while at the train controls. His attorneys dwelt also on the danger of the temporary gantlet, or overlapping track on which the accident occurred.

As a result of the Rockville Centre wreck, many damage suits were filed against the railroad. The largest settlement went to John H. Tonjes, 33, Lindenhurst, N. Y., who was reported to have been permanently injured. He sued for $400,000 and was awarded $101,648.49.

On March 30, a special Nassau County grand jury at Mineola, L. I., charged the Long Island with failure "to give due and adequate consideration to safeguarding the public" and recommended a program for improving safety facilities on the railroad.

At a hearing before the State Public Service Commission, an assistant PSC counsel read into the record statistics showing 1158 safety violations against 266 of the Long Island's 299 enginemen.

Shortly after the Rockville Centre wreck, the Long Island said it would install manually-operated tripping devices which could prevent another accident on the gantlet track.

Disaster Doctor Says Victims In Terrible Shape

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP).—"It's a bloody, bloody mess," said the physician in charge of Queens General Hospital's disaster unit as victims of the Long Island Railroad wreck were being brought in tonight.

"Most of the people being brought in here are terribly cut-up and mangled," said Dr. Jack Ruthberg.

"War wouldn't be any worse. The poor people being brought in here are in terrible shape—mostly fractures and bad contusions."

Dr. Ruthberg said it was the first test of Queens County's new civil defense set-up.

"We've been rehearsing for weeks for just such a thing as this, and the machinery is working wonderfully," he said.

He said 100 visiting physicians had been called in for emergency work, together with scores of technicians.

Sunflower Found Growing in Lung Of Kansas Girl

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 22 (AP).—A sunflower plant was found growing in the lung of a two-year old Kansas girl today.

True, it had only a half-inch-long sprout and roots, but the flower seed had germinated and was making lusty growth in the lower lung of Patricia Fredlake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fredlake of Offerle.

Patricia had suffered from pneumonia and recurring illness before X-rays showed the foreign object. Today surgeons removed the Kansas State flower seed and its sprouts with a bronchoscope. Patricia was in good condition, the University of Kansas Medical Center reported.

Col. Marcano Slated As Venezuela Head

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 22 (AP).—Informed sources said tonight Venezuela's new provisional president will be Lieut. Col. Jorge Marcano and control of the government will remain with an all-military junta.

These sources said Marcano will succeed Lieut. Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud, who was slain by a civilian gang 10 days ago.

Marcano was formerly Venezuela's military attache in Washington. He is now military adviser to his country's United Nations delegation. He has held the post of minister of communictions.

Neo-Fascists Plan Trick For Elections

ROME, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Italy's neo-Fascists moved swiftly today to escape legal banning by hiding behind a new Rightist coalition which they boasted would "sweep the south" in the 1951 administrative elections.

They also ordered members to stop using Fascist insignia and the name of their spiritual archangel, Benito Mussolini.

The Italian Social Movement (MSI) faced legal banning under the government's new anti-totalitarian law—which also will clip Communist political violence. While party officials would not declare publicly their allies in the planned coalition, Parliamentary quarters said the Monarchists and Liberals were "acceptable" to an election bloc with the Neo-Fascists.

Just what such a coalition would mean in Italy's "poor south" was shown by past elections where the MSI, monarchists and liberals collected up to 25 percent of the local vote—enough to give them the power of control between the governing christian democrats and Communists.

Roberto Mieville, MSI deputy and leader of the MSI youth organization, said "we will sweep Sicily, the Campania and the Apulia regions. We are very strong in those regions, because the Christian Democrats deluded everybody."

The MSI is working with keenly-planned precision to stave off legal action under the anti-totalitarian bill. Orders went out to all MSI cells today to cease using fascist emblems, fascist slogans and the name of Benito Mussolini and to avoid any public actions which might bring them into court for banning.

Mieville said the MSI would not "run alone next year." The monarchists and liberals have denounced the antitotalitarian law, and representatives of big landowners and supporters of the royalty—which helped Mussolini to power—often have found themselves in accord with MSI policy.

The 1951 elections are not national elections. But almost every municipality will elect new councils. The monarchists and liberals do much better in local tests than in national voting and the same has held true for the MSI in tests to date. This would indicate that such a coalittion could win absolute control in hundreds of municipalities in the south—a preparatory step toward consolidating national support.

M'Farland Willing To Take Position As Senate Leader

By The Associated Press

Senator Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.) said yesterday he would enjoy serving as majority leader of the Senate but was not campaigning for the job.

The Western lawmaker arrived here by airplane as Southern Democrats boomed him to succeed Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) at the new session starting January 3. Lucas was defeated for reelection.

"I am not a candidate for majority leader," McFarland told a reporter, after first trying to turn talk to other subjects. "I think that jobs should seek the individuals and individuals should not seek the job."

McFarland then acknowledged that other Democrats had been urging him to take the post and that he had enjoyed serving as acting leader during the last session when Senators Lucas and Myers (D., Pa.) were away from the Senate campaigning.

First public plug for McFarland came recently from Senator Russell (D., Ga.), leader of the bloc of Southern Senators, after Russell himself had been boosted for the key legislative spot.

Barkley Spending Holiday, Birthday In Naval Hospital

Vice President Barkley is spending Thanksgiving and his own 73d birthday in Naval Hospital.

Barkley entered the hospital yesterday. He said he was going there to get his first general physical checkup in more than 10 years. He will be 73 Friday.

An office aide said the hospital visit did not interrupt any special birthday plans, because the Vice President had made none.

Barkley said he was taking advantage of the period before Congress meets to get the checkup, even though he is practically rid of the severe cold contracted during the recent campaign.

He said he did not know how long the checkup would take but that "I expect to be on hand Monday when the Senate meets."

Bank Robber Killed

CHICAGO, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Police, in a chase reminiscent of old-time Chicago crime days, forced a getaway car into a curb and killed one gunman and captured two others today after they robbed a savings association of $20,000.

Canadian Troop Train Wreck Toll Set at 20

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 22 (AP).—The toll of a head-on collision of a troop train and a passenger high in the Rockies rose today to 20 dead or missing and at least 61 injured, 22 seriously.

Fourteen soldiers were known to be dead and two others were listed by the army as missing and believed dead. Four trainmen were killed.

A flaw in the delivery of train orders was blamed for the crash, which came in below-zero weather yesterday on the curve of a desolate, snow-covered mountainside 312 miles west of Edmonton.

The troop train was westbound from Shilo, Man., with 340 members of Canada's special service force headed for Fort Lewis, Wash., and possible duty in Korea. They were members of the Second Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

. . . In New York

New Yorkers Are Talking About . . .

The White House people, who secretly conferred with leaders of industry. To give them the off-the-record "inside" on the serious world situation: That it was now up to Russia; that we have done everything possible; to expect anything . . . James Roosevelt being mentioned as one of the "names" for next chancellor at N. Y. Univ. . . . The Mae West marriage plans striking a snag. He's her pianist in "Diamond Lil" . . . Garbo's used-to-be Dr. Gayelord Hauser and his flaming romance with Countess Lily Dela Pagerie of France . . . Millionaire James Kimberly of Chicago, the reason Ginger Rogers didn't hasten back to Hollywood and barrister Greg Bautzer . . . Shirley Temple's probable wedding date—Christmas . . . Myron McCormick and the lovely Geraldine Brooks . . . Jean ("Peter Pan") Arthur and Mary ("So. Pac.") Martin, who used to be great friends, letting it die . . . Lord Beaverbrook of the London Express (at the Waldorf Towers), who has matrimonial plans which he intends will remain his own scoop.

Christine Cromwell (Mrs. R. Hoffman, jr.) and her new diversion which she takes with her on the smart-spot rounds. A trained mouse! Lets it scamper all over the night club table on a leash . . . The prominent lawyer on the "Wanted" police lists. Looted several wealthy clients' safety vaults . . . The big romance between J. Hammerstein of "Mr. Roberts" and "Pat" Englund, recently in "As You Like It" . . . Moira Shearer getting the star assignment for S. Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Andersen" film. Goldwyn bought it for Vera Zorina, who prefers having babies . . . Madame de Castro, the Brazilionaire, and Prince Djordgadze of White Russian aristocracy having their own United Notions . . . Suzanne ("Breakthrough") Dalbert's legs going to her head. Such a temper! Mon Dieu!

Eddie Cantor, who has all that money, giving a list of potential backers to his daughter Marilyn for her musical show . . . Bette Davis' NBC deal—Working alternate programs with Tallulah Bankhead starting Dec. 17. The network and the stars will hoke up their alleged feud, which is getting tahrsome . . . The swank spot exec who is having trouble getting a heavy insurance policy because the insurance firms expect some husband to shorten his career one day . . . "Peep Show" beauties Rosemary Williamson and Charlotte Bergmeier clashing because of stage mgr. Chas. Wood, who adores them both . . . Star hurler Gene Bearden's collapse on the mound last season being blamed on Hollywood's sexiest blonde—not Grable . . . Claudia Cassidy, the Chicago critic, being the first to dissent on the merit of "South Pacific," which is doing capacity, anyhow.

"International Burlesque," a sleeper in the film business, produced for less than $50,000 (believed to be the record for small budget movies) which is packing the Rialto Theater in its 4th week . . . Agnes De Mille, who has been in and out of the directorial spot at Cole Porter's "Out of This World" every other day for weeks. But read her excellent thesis on "Martha Graham" in Harper's—she can write . . . The George Sanders (Zaza Gabor), who wish their best false friends would quit planting their differences of opinion in the colyums . . . Glenn McCarthy (Houston's Shamrock Hotel man) getting stuck for considerable via phony checks by a film actor . . . The State Dep't's Jacqueline Whiton, who becomes Mrs. George Pendleton (popular Washington lawyer) Satdee . . . The lovely "All My Love" song, words by Mitchell Parish, who did the poetry for "Star Dust."

The new jeweled fingertips which added to the glitter and dazzle of Gogi's LaRue opening. The brain-child of Ann Delafield of the Hudnut Salon . . . Betty Underwood, who clicked in six pictures for RKO but was dropped in the economy purge, having the last laugh. The same execs want her back, but her teevy bookings won't permit. Ha, ha . . . Senator Wherry's beautiful new staffer, whose fashions have smart-setters gasping with envy. Her name is Jennifer Renn, just in from Nebraska . . . Bibi Osterwald, understudy to the femme stars in "Gents Prefer Blondes," who goes out of circulation Jan. 14 at St. Bartholomew's. He is Justin Armt of the Paris Trio . . . The new baby boy for the John Paul Goebels at St. Clare's Hosp. The mama is a daughter of the Nick Kennys . . . The New Yorker's amusing series on Toots Shor. It has photographed him better than any camera.

The royalty now punching clocks in New York. Count V. Adleberg of Russia, now a hand-pumper at the Sherry-Netherlands . . . Princess Hammada of Egypt, who became a literary agent . . . The Duchess de Grammont of France, who toils at Lizzie Arden's . . . Adam Koc, once Secretary of the Interior for Poland, who is a hotel cook here . . . Prince Radziwil of the same country, clerking in Wall Street . . . The gorgeous Countess Eleanor von Etzdorf of Austria, actressing on teevy . . . Baron George Wrangle (Russia) in Jay Thorpe's fur dep't . . . The interior decorator, who wears the jools of the late Marie Antoinette on all her jobs—Princess Marta, wife of Austria's Archduke Franz Josef.

Zanuck star Jean Peters' torch, which can be seen all the way from Hollywood. Her sweetheart at Ohio State married a hometown girl . . . Mayor Impellitteri's big surprise for those who jumped on his bandwagon too late . . . Lowell Thomas, Jr's terriffic money-maker with the color films he took on his trip to Tibet with his pop. Outgrossing every form of entertainment in the Nation . . . Mrs. Clark Gable's next big income—the teevy rights to all her ex-husband's (Doug Fairbanks) films . . . The exciting "Solomon's Mines" movie, which has all the hocus-focus of the old Pearl White thrillers. The stampede of zebras in it was done with four real zebras—the hundreds of others are mules—with painted stripes . . . The loveliest face on the current mag covers: Look's Rembrandt of Esther Williams.

New Yorkers Are Talking About the diamond tiara Napoleon gave to Josephine in the Van Cleef & Arpels windows. No price tag . . . The "Take Off the Coat" hit ditty in "Bless You All." The only thing salvaged from the ill-fated "That's the Ticket" show, which trapped backers for $250,000 . . . Rosita Serrano's clean bill from the U. S. Gov't. She's the Chilean songbird banished by Hitler for helping his victims . . . George Getty, son of the Hotel Pierre prop, and lovely Julie Draper, the actress . . . The G-men, who are wise to those attending private showing of Soviet propaganda films. Malik of the U. N. runs them for "selected Americans" . . . Bob Hope's lawsuit against radio critic John Crosby over his remarks in a recent Life. Hope should have kidded the whole thing on his program instead of being funny like an Indignant Subscriber. The sole judge of a dinner, Bob, is the guest and not the cook.

FTC Investigates TV 'Child Appeal' Ads

The Federal Trade Commission said yesterday it is investigating the current "child appeal" advertising designed to promote the sale of television sets.

The advertisement which brought on the investigation was headed, "There Are Some Things A Son Or Daughter Won't Tell You."

The FTC announcement quoted this section of the ad:

"You can give your child's body all the sunshine and fresh air and vitamins you can. How about sunshine for his morale? How about vitamins for his mind? Educators agree—television is all that and more for a growing child."

The ad, a full-page affair which said youngsters would be shamed before their friends and might suffer in their school work if their homes had no video receivers, has been widely denounced by parents, educators and others.

The Federal Trade Commission, charged with keeping advertising honest, wrote 22 TV manufacturers it is "considering certain recent advertising of TV sets in order to determine the truth or falsity of statements and representations appearing therein."

It said an identical letter has been sent to "the New York advertising agency said to be handling the campaign."

Ruthrauff & Ryan, New York advertising agency, said Monday the first ad was "out of bounds as far as taste was concerned." An agency official said future ads would be different. Subsequent displays have featured the "positive" aspects of TV set ownership.

The advertising-industry newspaper "Advertising Age" quoted Cal J. McCarthy, jr., account executive of Ruthrauff & Ryan, as replying to "squawks" about the ad by saying:

"We expect to have that sort of thing in a hard-hitting campaign like this. We had it when we introduced the B. O. theme for Lifebuoy and when we used highway accident scenes in safety ads for Goodrich years ago."

The FTC asked the manufacturers to furnish specimens of all advertising material "placed through or handled by the advertising agency" for which they were in any way responsible. It asked the agency to give the names and addresses of all manufacturers who participated in the campaign.

The commission said it was prompted to begin an investigation by "numerous complaints from parents and educators criticizing the ad." Under the law the FTC may, after an inquiry, order manufacturers to stop false or misleading advertising.

The ad in question was published over the name of the "American Television Dealers and Manufacturers, New York."

FBI Arrests Cashier In Bank Embezzlement

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The FBI today arrested an assistant bank cashier, who also was an alderman and church leader, on charges of embezzling $100,000 during the past 11 years.

FBI agents from Memphis, Tenn., arrested Terrell Collins O'Neal, 43, after examiners making a routine checkup found shortages at the Merchants and Planters Bank at nearby Drew, Miss.

O'Neal readily admitted taking the money and spending it all since 1939, the FBI said, but would not offer an inkling of how he had spent it.

Godfrey Disappoints, In Three Colors

By John Crosby

I TOOK three strong drinks today and then went off to look at Arthur Godfrey in three colors. "We anticipated something of an historic occasion—the first regularly scheduled commercial color television program. But due to circumstances beyond our control . . ." said the announcer. The circumstances were a court action in Chicago. The occasion, with or without court action, was somewhat less than historic.

Crosby

Godfrey in full color, the real live Godfrey who is displayed over at CBS in an open cage during the hours he is not on the air, is a wonderfully colorful spectacle. His hair is brick red, a sort of dark Williamsburg brick—aged, it seems, by several centuries. His freckles and ruddy complexion contribute a good deal to a personality that is easily one of the wonders of our times.

In color, though—that is, televised CBS color as opposed to 485 Madison ave. color or, as it is sometimes known, God's color—Godfrey was a grave disappointment. Arthur's head, one of the glories of the universe, came out pretty close to black. His complexion was streaked with red lines, like an Indian in full war paint, and when he wrinkled his forehead, he looked as if he had scarlet fever.

THIS IS ESPECIALLY frustrating to me because I touted CBS color television to my friends for months as a very fine thing. However, the CBS color I have seen has been piped into CBS studios; this was actually broadcast over the air in order to demonstrate what would come into your homes, provided all those legal barriers were lifted. Well, CBS color is still a pretty wonderful thing, but it is not as good as I had said it was, (though, of course, it is always astonishing to anyone who is accustomed to black and white).

As a show, the first almost-regularly-scheduled commercial television show wasn't much. It opened, as do all CBS color combinations, with Miss Patty Painter who is generally known around CBS as Miss Color Television.

In order to get an objective look at Miss Painter, I took along my secretary—she's a girl—whose outlook on females is more disinterested than mine. I append her comments: "Struck by fact inanimate objects look wonderful but Patty Painter looks awful. Skin a pale gray. Mouth smeary. Hair brassy with greenish tinge and dark roots." I wouldn't have been that severe myself but I think that girls have an eye for feminine details which elude me.

THE TRI-COLOR GODFREY—I'll take this chore on personally—wore a lei of red carnations, a print Hawaiian shirt and posed against a pale blue painted sea, strumming a ukulele. "From the sublime to the ridiculous," he muttered as the color cameras shifted from Miss Painter to himself.

Janette Davis, of the regular Godfrey crew, appeared. Miss Davis is a red head, too, but she appeared almost black-haired to the color cameras. More comments from my secretary: "Hair looks dull, dark brown and lips smeary. Skin ghastly pale shade. Everybody looks as if they have hangovers."

It's only fair to add—having looked over the rather sour comments above—that color television brings a depth and detail to television that isn't possible in black and white. The first almost-regularly-scheduled commercial telecast just didn't do it justice.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Thanksgiving Day

We thank Thee, Lord of every sect,
For keeping our land free;
For health, and wealth, and deep respect
For each man's dignity.

We thank Thee for the sword of Truth
By which we are preserved;
For wisdom, sparked by drive of youth,
For bounties undeserved.

We pray Thee still each evil voice;
From tyranny surcease;
That all Thy children may rejoice
And live again in peace.

THEN AND NOW

Mrs. Frank Vrana of 4614 Drexel rd., College Park, Md., reports that she found this quotation in a 1912 edition of a well-known cookbook:

"The lower part of the turkey leg (or drumstick) is rarely ever helped to anyone, but allowed to remain in the dish."

Good grief—didn't they have kids in those days? At our house you've got to have a top priority to get a drumstick.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Young male kitten." (District 2438 between 5 and 9 p. m.)

"Sleek, extremely affectionate black-and-white kitten; will deliver." (Overlook 3831.)

"Three housebroken black kittens; they like children." (Oliver 6214.)

THE ETERNAL FEMININE

At the risk of angering my best girl, let me tell you what happened after I served as a judge in that Hyattsville High School beauty contest the other day.

Ann Owings of 4507 Oliver st., Riverdale, Md., was chosen "Queen," and subsequently appeared on Art Lamb's WTTG television program, where she was roundly complimented for her charm and wit.

All went well until Lamb concluded with: "Boy, can that Bill Gold pick 'em—you should see what a cute wife he's got, too."

"The dear boy needs glasses," murmured the lady who has been darning my sox for the past 17 years. But a few minutes later, doggone if I didn't find her peering intently into a mirror, looking for wrinkles.

MR. TRUMAN HAS COMPANY

"Many thanks to the friends of the United States Marine Corps who are sending cakes to Sergt. Mike Hackett and his buddies," writes Warren L. Granger, national vice commandant of the Marine Corps League.

"There's nothing finer than a District Liner," he adds. "Let's forgive the rushed bakery employe who refused to wrap a package for a fighting man."

Hmmmm! The Marines seem to be getting a lot of practice in forgiving people this season.

PETARDS AWAY!

Several interesting letters have come in as a result of my recent use of the expression "hoist with my own petard." It might be well to explain it.

The "hoist" in that expression is from the verb "hoise," meaning to raise, as by means of a tackle; hence, to lift, or bear off.

A petard is a bomb; specifically, it's an old-time explosive charge used in the Middle Ages to blow open castle gates and whatever else folks blew up in those days.

Post Reporter Marshall Andrews tells me that this was a dangerous business all around, because of the instability of gunpowder in those early times and the inexpertness of those who set the charges. Very often a man placing a petard would set it off prematurely.

"Hoist with his own petard" therefore means, literally, "blown up by his own bomb." The idiom has been employed to convey the idea of one who has been hurt by his own machinations.

In checking on the expression, I find little agreement among lexicographers as to whether it should be "hoist with," "hoist by," or "hoist on." Webster prefers "with," so that's what I used.

Actually, of course, I could have saved all of us a lot of time and thought by saying that I had been caught in my own booby trap—or something similarly modern.

On the other hand, if we didn't experiment with unfamiliar words occasionally, we'd never learn much, would we?

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Why can't I be the well adjusted type, who enjoys a Thanksgiving turkey without the annoying distraction of thinking ahead to a week of hash?

WILL TURKEY FILE PROTEST WITH U.N.?

Mary Ellen observes that "a turkey goes gobble, gobble, gobble—and on Thanksgiving Day, so do we."

Ellis Island's Pathetic 'Tenants'

By Drew Pearson

ELLIS ISLAND, N. Y.—Thanksgiving began as a day on which a group of English immigrants gave thanks for being able to weather the rigors of one year on a new continent.

PEARSON

Today, three centuries later, immigrants are still arriving in small numbers in this country; only on this Thanksgiving Day the latest arrivals have little to be thankful for.

For the Statute of Liberty which once welcomed new arrivals like a beacon of hope in New York's cluttered harbor, stands with its back turned, both actually and figuratively, on Ellis Island.

This austere island has been doing a brisk business since the McCarran Communist control law went into effect. And Thanksgiving Day is anything but that for those who came seeking the land of promise, but found themselves shunted behind the red brick walls and high wire fences here along with stowaways and undesirable aliens.

Immigrants come along only in a trickle now—about 1000 a month, compared with a million or so a month in the old days. And ironically, out of the approximate 1000 new arrivals since the McCarran Act, only a handful are suspected of being Communists. The rest are guilty of nothing more than belonging to a Hitler or Mussolini front, usually as school kids or to get ration books.

To get the human story behind the law, you have to visit Ellis Island yourself. There the detainees stand in sullen clusters, mumbling in strange languages, gazing longingly at the New York skyline.

A lady immigrant passed the time giving haircuts, a father patiently taught his youngster to say "Hallo" and "Okaay" to the guards, a mother tugged at an official's sleeve and pleaded in broken English: "My baby, she is sick." Others wept quietly.

War Bride Waits

A pretty, 23-year-old German war bride, her eyes afloat, clutched a tiny bouquet of flowers. Her former GI husband had given them to her at the dock, then she had been whisked off to Ellis Island.

"My husband is at the dock . . ." she sniffled. "Only five minutes . . . I see him only five minutes."

Her name was Henny Jacobsen—Mrs. Fred Jacobsen, she added through the tears. She met Fred in Essen, Germany, after the war. They were married in 1948, came to America and settled down in Baltimore. She was supposed to become an American citizen in December. Then her mother suffered a stroke, and Henny sailed back to Germany this summer to be at her side.

The guards asked Henny not to cry. They even tried to locate her husband by telephone.

"We don't like this any better than you," said one, gently.

Later in the afternoon, Henny was sworn in and faced an examiner.

"I was not a Nazi. I told the man on the boat I was not a Nazi," she pleaded.

But it turned out that Henny had joined a girls' group in school at the age of 10. It was on the list of Hitler organizations.

Though Henny had been forced to join and had quit as soon as she left school, the law made no exceptions. So the examiner intoned that Henny Jacobsen was "excluded from entering the United States," that her citizenship could not be granted.

Temporary Stay

Then, as she sobbed quietly, he dropped his formal manner and urged her not to worry. Attorney General McGrath, he said, had mercifully decreed that immigrants who had held only "nominal" membership in totalitarian organizations could be admitted for six months. By that time, maybe Congress would change the law.

It was the same story for elderly Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Vassal, who had come to live with their daughter, Mrs. Liesselote Masia of Chicago.

"My employer (in Germany) told me that if I wanted to work for him, I must be registered for the Nazi Party," Mr. Vassal, a frail former chauffeur, told the examiner. In spite of this, he became so disgusted with the Nazis that he pulled out in 1938

"A very good friend—he had a Jewish wife—and I like them so much that I said I am not going to belong to the Nazi Party," Mr. Vassal shrugged. "I went to the party and I told them I don't want to be a member any more."

The Vassals, too, got six months' grace, but, under the law, they can't stay in this country.

Blackshirt at 6

Probably the most pathetic case was Antonio de Maria and his pregnant, 22-year-old wife who had left Italy in search of economic freedom, only to be stopped at Ellis Island.

The expectant mother, her eyes wet, admitted that she had belonged to a Fascist organization—at the age of 6.

This small confession will send her back to Italy in six months—unless the McCarran Act is amended.

"But my child will be an American citizen," she smiled triumphantly.

Those immigrants who had been approved for six months gathered up their frayed bundles and boarded an ancient ferry for the New York mainland. As the boat pushed through the congested harbor, a handful of immigrants, left behind, pulled out white handkerchiefs and waved pathetically. They didn't stop waving until the ferry touched the other side.

But the accepted immigrants were already thronging eagerly in the bow. When the docking was completed, they burst headlong off the ferry and raced on the mainland, shouting joyfully. They had reached America.

LIONEL TRAINS

What makes Lionel trains go so fast? It's "Magna-Traction" . . . brand new this-year feature of Lionel trains. It means these powerful little engines go faster (size for size) than a crack mainliner! They climb steeper grades, make sharper curves, stop with more accurate control (size for size). See them in action at The Hecht Co. . . . whistling, puffing smoke, roaring through tunnels. Start your youngster's fascinating Lionel layout this Christmas.
